Preamble.

WHEREAS numerous persons of European extraction are at present wandering in a destitute condition throughout India, and whereas such conduct is prejudicial to public order, and it is expedient to prevent the same; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

PART I.—PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The European Vagrancy Act, 1869."

Commencement and extent of Act.

2. Sections three, seventeen, eighteen, twenty-one, twenty-two, twenty-three, twenty-seven, twenty-eight, thirty, thirty-two, thirty-three and thirty-four shall come into operation at once, and shall extend to the whole of British India and to the dominions of Princes and States in India in alliance with Her Majesty:

Sections twenty-five, twenty-six, and thirty-one shall come into operation on the first day of January 1870, and shall extend to the whole of British India and to the said dominions:

And the rest of this Act shall come into operation in such parts of British India and of the said dominions and on such day or respective days as the Governor General of India in Council shall from time to time by notification in the Gazette of India appoint in this behalf.

Interpretation clause.

3. In this Act—

"Person of European extraction."

"Person of European extraction" includes Americans and Australasians:

"Vagrant."

"Vagrant" means a person of European extraction found asking for alms, or wandering about without any employment or visible means of subsistence:

"Master of a ship."

"Master of a ship" includes any person in charge of a decked vessel:

"Magistrate."

And in Parts III and V of this Act "Magistrate" means, within the limits of the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, a Magistrate of Police, and, outside those limits, a person exercising powers under the Code of Criminal Procedure not less than those of a Subordinate Magistrate of the first class.

PART II.—PROCEDURE.

Power to require apparent vagrant to go before Police Magistrate, or Justice of the Peace with full powers of a Magistrate.

4. Any Police officer may, within the limits of the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, require any person who is apparently a vagrant to accompany him or any other Police officer to and to appear before the nearest Magistrate of Police, and may, without those limits, require any such person to accompany him or any other Police officer to and to appear before the nearest Justice of the Peace exercising the full powers of a Magistrate under the Code of Criminal Procedure.

Summary inquiry into vagrant's circumstances.

5. The Magistrate of Police or Justice shall make a summary inquiry into the circumstances and character of the alleged vagrant; and if he is satisfied that such person is a vagrant, he shall record in his office a declaration to that effect.

Order to go to work-house.

If he is further of opinion that the vagrant is not likely to obtain employment at once, or if he has reason to believe that a declaration of vagrancy has on any former occasion been recorded in respect of such vagrant, he shall require the vagrant to go to a Government work-house and shall draw out an order to that effect.

The vagrant shall then be placed in charge of the Police for the purpose of being forwarded to the work-house, and the said order shall be a sufficient authority to the Police for retaining him in their charge while he is on his way to the work-house, and to the governor of the work-house for receiving and detaining such vagrant.

Forwarding vagrant to place of employment.

6. Where the officer making the inquiry mentioned in section five is of opinion that the vagrant is likely to obtain employment in any place subject to the Local Government or (when the vagrant is in any part of the said dominions) in any place subject to the nearest Local Government, such officer may in his discretion forward the vagrant to such place in charge of the Police and draw up an order to that effect.

Such order shall be a sufficient authority to the Police for retaining the vagrant in their charge while he is on his way to such place of employment.

Assistance to obtain employment.

7. Upon his arrival at the place of employment, the vagrant shall be taken before the nearest Magistrate of Police or Justice of the Peace exercising full powers as aforesaid, to whom the order for transmission shall be delivered.

Such officer shall thereupon, to the best of his ability, assist the vagrant in seeking employment, and may in the mean time, if he think fit, keep the vagrant in the charge of the Police.

Should the vagrant fail to obtain suitable employment within a reasonable time not exceeding fifteen days from such arrival, such officer shall forward him to a Government work-house in the manner provided by section five.

Subsistence allowance.

8. Every person while in charge of the Police, whether before inquiry as to his vagrancy, or while he is on his way, under section five, to the work-house, or, under section six, to a place of employment, shall be entitled to an allowance for his subsistence at the rate of eight annas per diem.

The Magistrate of Police or Justice, before whom any vagrant is taken under section seven, may, if he thinks fit, order the vagrant to receive a similar allowance while he is seeking employment.

The Local Government shall cause such allowances to be paid out of such funds at its disposal and in such manner as it may from time to time direct.

Power to give certificates.

9. Any Magistrate of Police or Justice of the Peace exercising full powers as aforesaid may, on being satisfied that any person of European extraction is not likely to become a vagrant, give such person a certificate under his hand stating that for a certain time (mentioning it), not exceeding six months from the date of the certificate, and within certain limits (mentioning them), nothing in sections four, five, six and seven shall apply to the holder of such certificate; and thereupon (subject to the provisions contained in sections twenty-three and twenty-four) nothing in sections four, five, six and seven shall apply to such person for such time and within such limits as aforesaid.

Form of certificate.

Every such certificate shall be in the form set forth in the first schedule to this Act annexed, or as near thereto as circumstances will admit.

Power to invest [illegible] Justices, District Superintendents of Police, &c., with certain [illegible] full powers [illegible] Part II.

10. The Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, invest any Justice of the Peace, District Superintendent of Police, or Assistant District Superintendent of Police with the jurisdiction and powers conferred by this Part on a Justice of the Peace exercising full powers as aforesaid.

PART III.—GOVERNMENT WORK-HOUSES.

Provision of Government work-houses.

11. The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General of India in Council, may provide work-houses, with their necessary furniture and establishment, at such places as it may think proper, for the temporary reception of vagrants.

It may by writing under the hand of a Secretary to such Government, certify any building, or part of a building not provided as a work-house under the former part of this section, to be fit for a work-house for the purposes of this Act. Every such certificate shall be published in the local official Gazette; and thereupon such building or part of a building shall, until the Local Government otherwise orders, be deemed a Government work-house under this Act.

The Local Government shall allow the same scale of diet for the support of vagrants received in such work-houses as is for the time being allowed for Europeans confined in the local prisons or penitentiaries.

Every such governor shall, if the Local Government think fit, be subject to the orders of a Committee of Management appointed from time to time by such Government, or, in the absence of a Committee, to the orders of such officer as the Local Government shall from time to time appoint in this behalf.

Search of vagrants.

13. Every such governor may order that any vagrant admitted to the work-house under his charge shall be searched, and that the vagrant's bundles, packages and other effects shall be inspected, and may direct that any money then found with or on the vagrant, shall be applied (subject to the orders of the Local Government) towards the expense of carrying this Act into execution, and may order that all or any of the said effects shall be sold, and that the produce of the sale be applied as aforesaid, but subject to the like orders.

Discipline.

14. Vagrants admitted to work-houses under this Act shall be subject to such rules of management and discipline as may from time to time be prescribed by the Local Government with the previous sanction of the Governor General of India in Council.

Any vagrant who knowingly disobeys or neglects any such rule, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be punishable with rigorous imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months.

[illegible] employment.

15. The governor and the Committee of Management (if any) of every such work-house shall use his and their best endeavours to obtain outside the work-house suitable employment for the vagrants admitted thereto.

When such employment is obtained, any such vagrant refusing or neglecting to avail himself thereof, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be punishable with rigorous imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month.

PART IV.—REMOVAL FROM INDIA.

Removal of vagrants.

16. If after the lapse of a reasonable time no suitable employment is obtainable for any such vagrant, the Local Government may either (when he shall have entered into such agreement as hereinafter mentioned) cause him to be removed from British India in manner hereinafter provided, the cost of such removal being paid by Government;

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

WHEN the Indian Succession Act, 1865, was under the consideration of the Legislature, it was proposed to extend to Natives the testamentary portion of that measure; but it was felt that, in three respects, sufficient information was not before the Council to justify an immediate extension in this direction. Doubts were entertained as to how far it would be politic to interfere with the power to make oral wills which Muhammadans have always possessed, and evidence was wanting as to the propriety of restricting Natives in creating perpetuities and in making bequests to religious and charitable uses. A clause was accordingly introduced, as a temporary provision, excluding the Hindús, Muhammadans and Buddhists from the operation of any part of the Act.

Some months after the passing of the Act, a circular was issued from the Home Department to the several Local Governments respecting the extension to Natives of its testamentary clauses. Attention was called to the fact that, although liberty of testation was established throughout British India, and although the testamentary power of Hindús was derived from the English law, there were no securities for the due exercise of that power by Natives, such as the requirement of writing, signature and attestation, which were found indispensable in Europe.

It was also pointed out that, although in England nuncupative wills have long been placed under considerable restrictions as to the persons by whom they can be made, as to the witnesses required to be present, and as to the time within which testimony is admissible to prove the speaking, in India, our Courts were compelled to recognize such wills when made by Hindús of any age or calling and under any circumstances whatever. It was observed that the favourite fraud of bringing forward false wills was encouraged by the non-requirement of writing; that the evidence setting up a false nuncupative will might revoke a true written one, and that, even in the case of a genuine testamentary disposition, the certainty of writing was replaced by the frailty of memory. Further remarks, which will now be merely referred to, were made as to the absence, in the case of Native testators, of any restraints on the creation of perpetuities and on devises to religious or charitable uses, as to the non-requirement of probate of their wills, whether written or oral, and as to the difficulty of ascertaining the character and powers of a Native executor.

The circular concluded by pointing out the provisions of the Indian Succession Act on the subjects thus treated of, and by requesting an opinion as to the advisability of extending those provisions to Natives.

To this circular replies were received from all the local authorities, accompanied, in almost every instance, by papers written by such European and Native gentlemen as were deemed best capable of advising on the matter. The general result of the opinions thus obtained may, so far as they relate to the Presidencies of Bengal, Madras and Bombay, to Oudh, and to the Central Provinces, be compendiously expressed as follows :—

1st.—The practice of making nuncupative wills should be abolished, and the provisions of the Indian Succession Act as to execution of wills and codicils should be adopted in the case not only of Hindús but Muhammadans.

2nd.—Marriage should not, in the case of a Native testator, revoke his will. In other respects the provisions of the Succession Act as to revocation should be followed.

3rd.—It is inexpedient to impose, in the case of Natives, any restrictions on the exercise of the testamentary power in favour of religious or charitable uses, or for the creation of perpetuties.

4th.—The provisions of the Succession Act as to the interpretation of wills should, with some few exceptions, be adopted.

5th.—Probate should be made compulsory, and the provisions of the Succession Act as to administration with will annexed and as to the powers and duties of an executor, should be extended with some slight modifications.

The primary object of the present Bill is to preclude the fraud and perjury which are notoriously encouraged by the absence of restriction on the making of nuncupative testaments. Its secondary objects are to prevent the evils arising from the non-requirement of probate of Native wills, and from the prevailing uncertainty as to the character and powers of Native executors.

As a Native's written will need not now be proved, it need not, of course, be deposited for safe custody. The resulting opportunities for forgery and fraudulent alteration are obvious, and have, it is believed, been often taken advantage of. Moreover, in England the granting of probate is conclusive as to the testamentary character of the instrument as regards all claimants of the personalty. The result of this rule is most satisfactory in precluding litigation. But in India, a far more litigious country, even when a Native's will is proved, or when letters of administration are granted cum test annexo, the probate or grant is binding o against those who obtain or who oppose i against persons who have no means of app or right to dispute the probate or grant, no greater effect than the ordinary decree civil suit.

Then the Native executor takes nothing any grant of the Court. His title is f solely on the will considered as an instrum gift. His acts between the testator's dea the grant of probate are not (as in E rendered valid by the grant. It seems d whether, as against creditors who have peared or been cited, he can retain any his own debt. In the interest of the executor, therefore, legislation seems ne this direction. Moreover, a Native execut according to the High Court at Fort W no greater power over immoveable propert a manager. His powers are, therefore, a in the Lower Provinces of Bengal, limi qualified, and if he makes a mortgage or s lender or purchaser, as the case may be, i to enquire into the necessity of the tran
What the law on the subject is in Ma
Bombay does not appear to have hithert decided. It is hard to conceive a state o more calculated to interfere with that fre lation of property so desirable in a count
India.

A Native executor, moreover, can compelled, except by a law-suit, to ex inventory or account of his testator's est many cases, therefore, there is no adequa upon him; and at any distance of ti difficult to fix him with the possession perty comprised in the will.

The Bill only applies to Hindús and Bu
Muhammadans have an elaborate system mentary law, which, like the rest of the they regard as of divine origin. To im Muhammadans a body of rules which wo the effect of superseding any part of t isting law, might create alarm and dis and would therefore be impolitic. The Hindús is clearly distinguishable. Hin being unknown to Hindú law, being in creature of English Courts, the legisl entitled to subject them to all expedient tions. Similar remarks apply to the Buddhists.

The Bill, too, is confined in its oper the Presidency Towns. Hereafter it desirable to extend its provisions to Hin
Buddhists in the Mofussil and Burma. yet the practice of testation does not amongst Natives to any great extent those towns; and for the present, the seems advisable to limit the incidenc proposed legislation.

The power of alienation inter vivos
Hindú possesses is everywhere subject trictions, and varies from the nearly freedom enjoyed, even as to ancestral by a Native of Bengal, to the comp limited authority of a Native of Madras territory subject to the law of the M
The High Courts at Calcutta and Mad held that a Hindú's testamentary power co-extensive with his independent p alienation during life. The Bill adopts th and provides that nothing therein contai

authorize a testator to bequeath property which he could not have alienated inter vivos. Connected with this provision is a clause expressly negativing the power of a Native testator to deprive his relatives of any right of maintenance which they would have possessed if he had died intestate.

The rest of the Bill extends to the wills of Hindús and Buddhists certain sections of the Succession Act.

Of these, section 46 declares the testamentary power, and will be read in connection with the limitation above-mentioned.

Sections 48, 49, 50, 51, 54, 55, 57, to 60 relate (inter alia) to the execution, revocation, and revival of wills and codicils. It will be seen that the Bill expressly provides that marriage shall not operate as a revocation. It is the opinion of competent authorities that in the case of a polygamist marriage does nto create such a change in the testator's condition as to raise a presumption that he would not adhere to a will made previously. The principle, therefore, on which marriage revokes a will in England, does not apply.

Part XI of the Succession Act contains rules as to the construction of wills. Of these the Bill proposes to extend sections 61 to 77, and sections 82, 83, 85, and 88 to 98 (both inclusive). It omits sections 80 and 81, which provide rules for the cases of bequests to 'heirs,' 'next-of-kin,' 'nearest relation,' &c., or the 'representatives' of a particular person. These rules have been framed with reference to the English law of succession ab intestato, and are therefore in applicable to Natives.

By section 84, a bequest to A. and his children gives the whole interest to A. But the intentions of a Hindú testator, to whom the idea of a father and his sons being in a state of natural coparcenary is familiar, would probably be frustrated by the application of such a rule, which, therefore, has been omitted.

Section 86 ties down the construction of terms or relationship. Natives are generally so vgaue and inaccurate in using these terms that the section cannot safely be applied to their wills.

The general rule laid down by section 87, that words expressing relationship shall denote only legitimate relations, has also been omitted as being scarcely applicable to the wills of Hindús and Buddhists, whose notions as to legitimacy and illegitimacy are so different from those of Europeans.

Sections 179 to 261 relate to grants of probate and letters of administration. The Bill extends so much of them as relates to probate and grants cum testamento annexo, subject, however, to two modifications. Section 179 declares that all the property of the deceased person vests in the executor as such. This might give rise to a misconception, and the Bill expressly provides that nothing in the proposed Act shall vest in the executor or administrator with will annexed any property which the deceased could not have alienated during his life. And the Bill modifies sections 195, 198, 230 and 231 of the Succession Act so as to make it clear that the rules laid down in the 201st and the following sections, as to the order in which surviving relatives are entitled to administration in case of intestacy, do not apply to grants to Natives of letters of administration with will annexed. In such cases the practice will continue to be as at present, viz., to let the grant follow the interest.

As adoption is practised not only by Hindús, but by Buddhists, it has been necessary to provide that the words 'son,' 'child,' 'children,' when they occur in the sections extended, shall include an adopted son.

It may, in conclusion, be remarked that the testamentary clauses of the Succession Act apply to the Pársís: that most of these clauses were extended to the Oudh Taluqdárs by Act I of 1869, and that the similar provisions contained in the Indian Wills Act (XXV of 1838) have for the last twenty years applied to all classes in the Straits Settlement—Muhammadans, Hindús, and Chinese as well as Englishmen.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA,

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT.

SIMLA, THE 14TH SEPTEMBER 1869.

READ—

A memorandum from the Home Department, No. 429, dated 12th August 1869, giving cover to a statement of fresh charges sanctioned by the Government of Madras during the month of May last, in which a charge for three bachelor studentships in the Madras University of the value of Rs. 70 each per mensem has been sanctioned.

OBSERVATIONS.—His Excellency in Council observes that the charge which has been permanently sanctioned by the Government of Madras is a considerable one, and should have received the previous sanction of the Supreme Government.

2. Even the provisional sanction of permanent charges by Local Governments appears to the Governor General in Council inconsistent with the financial control which it is necessary to reserve to the Supreme Government. His Excellency in Council therefore desires that Local Governments may be informed that no sanction to charges of a permanent nature must in future be given without the previous consent of the Supreme Government.

3. The proposal of the Home Department, that sanction should not be accorded to the arrangement further than to express the willingness of the Government of India to assign a studentship on the plan proposed for every one such studentship, not exceeding three in number, for which funds may be supplied by private liberality, is approved.

ORDER.—Ordered, that the foregoing Resolution be communicated to the Home, Marine, Public Works, and Foreign Departments; to all Local Governments and Administrations; to the Comptroller-General of Accounts, and to Accountants and Deputy Accountants-General.

Circular Orders by the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

From F. B. Peacock, Esq., Registrar of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, to all District Judges and Judicial Commissioners,—(No. 10, dated Calcutta, the 22nd September 1869.)

The Registrar-General of Assurances being desirous of the assistance and co-operation of Zillah Judges, with a view to the more accurate definition of those Moonsiffees which are imperfectly described in the list of the districts and sub-districts appended to his new edition of the Registration Manual, the Court request, at the instance of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, that all District Judges and Judicial Commissioners will render the Registrar-General all the assistance in their power in obtaining the requisite information.

By Order, &c.,

(Sd.) F. B. Peacock,

Registrar.

From F. B. Peacock, Esq., Registrar of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, to all Sessions Judges and Judicial Commissioners, Lower Provinces,—(No, 10, dated Calcutta, the 22nd September 1869)

(Criminal Side.)

With reference to the accompanying copy of a Circular which the Inspector-General of Police has been authorized to issue to District Superintendents, the Court, at the instance of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, direct all Zillah Judges and Judicial Commissioners to allow the Government Pleaders in their several districts to have access to their decisions in all criminal cases in which medical evidence is taken for the purpose indicated in the Circular.

2. The intervention of the Government Pleader will, however, only be necessary in cases where for any reason it may be thought undesirable that this duty should be performed by the Court Inspector to whom it should ordinarily be entrusted.

By Order, &c.,

(Sd.) F. B. Peacock,

Registrar.

BENGAL POLICE.

Circular from Lieutenant-Colonel A. H. Paterson, Officiating Inspector-General of Police, Lower Provinces, to all Deputy Inspectors-General and District Superintendents of Police,—(No. ——, dated Fort William, the August 1869.)

With a view to facilitate the compilation and circulation, for general information, of complete Medico-legal Reports of the most important criminal cases, the following instructions are issued:—

On receipt of the Memorandum (Form No. 26) from the Court Officer, showing the result of a case in which a report has been asked for, from the Civil Surgeon, the District Superintendent will communicate the final order in the case to the Civil Surgeon in as few words as possible with a reference to the report above mentioned. Ordinarily it will be sufficient to note whether the accused has been convicted or acquitted; but in all cases where the final order appears to be opposed to the medical evidence, the Civil Surgeon should be furnished with any remarks made in the decision regarding that evidence. These remarks will be communicated to the District Superintendent by the Court Officer when reporting the result of the case.

In Sessions cases the Court Inspector will obtain the necessary information through the Government Pleader (who will have access to the records), and will furnish it to the District Superintendent in the same manner as in other cases.

The following are the Conditions of Sale:—

1. The Opium will be sold for exportation by sea only, and no Certificate will be granted except to cover such export.

2. The Opium will be ordinarily offered for sale at an upset price of Rupees 800 per chest, and sold to the highest bidder above that price, except under the circumstances for which provision is made by Clause 12th of these Conditions of Sale.

3. The sale shall commence at the hour of 11 A. M. of the day fixed by previous notification, and shall not be continued after the hour of 5 P. M.; but if at that hour any of the lots advertised for sale shall remain unsold, the sale may, at the discretion of the Board of Revenue, be resumed on the next day following (not being Sunday or a public holiday) at the hour of 11 A. M., and so on until the whole of the remaining lots are disposed of, or, if the whole quantity advertised shall not be sold on the day appointed, the Board may dispose of the lots which remain on hand at a future sale.

4. Each lot shall contain five chests.

5. A Promissory Note for a sum calculated according to the scale noted in the margin shall be taken as a deposit on each lot from the purchaser in the sale-room, and before the lot is registered in the sale book, and all such Promissory Notes shall be redeemed on the part of the purchasers at this Office by Bank of Bengal receipts, or by substitution of other public securities of the Bengal Government, on or before 4 o'clock in the afternoon of the fifth day after the sale, or on the other hand, failing such redemption by the time aforesaid then the lot or lots for which no Bank of Bengal receipts, or deposit of other public securities as aforesaid shall have been delivered in, shall be re-sold at such time or times and under such conditions of re-sale as the Board of Revenue shall see fit, and all losses and expenses whatsoever attending such re-sale shall be borne and paid by the defaulters, whilst any profit accruing from such re-sale shall be forfeited to Government.

DEPOSIT.

When the amount bid is less than Rs 1,200 per chest, Rs. 200 per chest.

On bids of Rs. 1,200 and upwards, but less than Rs. 1,600 per chest, Rs. 300 per chest.

On bids of Rs. 1,600 and upwards, but less than Rs. 2,000 per chest, Rs. 400 per chest.

And so on, Rs. 100 being added to the deposit for every bid additional to the extent of Rs. 400.

6. The Promissory Notes taken on the day of sale under the last mentioned condition, if remaining unredeemed at 4 o'clock of the fifth day following the day of sale, will be placed in the hands of the Solicitor to the Government for realization in such manner as to him shall seem fit.

7. No tender of money, Bank of Bengal receipts, or public securities, on account of Opium, upon which the prescribed deposit may not have been made before 4 o'clock of the fifth day following the day of sale, will be afterwards accepted.

8. The Opium advertised for sale shall be paid for within fifteen clear days from the day of sale, and in case any lots of such Opium shall not be so paid for and adjusted, then the cash deposit made under the fifth condition, or any public securities that may have been deposited on account of such lots or chests shall be forfeited, and the Opium shall be disposed of on account of Government at such time and in such manner as the Board of Revenue shall think fit, and the first purchaser shall further be required to make good any loss or difference of price between that obtained at the re-sale and the amount at which the Opium was first purchased, forfeiting all advantages that may arise from such re-sale.

9. Purchasers taking out Certificates or Orders for the delivery of Opium, after making full payment as above prescribed, shall have the option of naming the number of lots of their purchase, which they may desire to be included in each Certificate or Order, and it is to be clearly understood that the Certificates or Orders so taken out shall be considered final, and not afterwards changeable for other Certificates or Orders authorising the delivery of single lots, or of a different number of lots or chests, whether more or less than the number of lots or chests originally required to be included in each Certificate or Order.

10. No deposit of public securities under the fifth of the present Conditions will be received in this Office, except from the party recorded as the purchaser in the sale book, or his authorised Agent. The receipt for deposit of public securities will be granted only in the name of such purchaser, and the securities so deposited will be returned when payment in full has been made by the said purchaser or his order.

11. The Officer superintending the sale on the part of the Board of Revenue is empowered to reject, at his discretion, the bid of any individual, unless such individual shall, on demand, tender at the time a deposit either in Government of India Notes, Bank of Bengal receipts, or Government securities, a sum equal to the amount for which a Promissory Note would otherwise be taken under the fifth of these Conditions.

12. With a view to prevent fictitious biddings designed to obstruct the sale, it is hereby notified that the Officer of Government superintending the sale shall be competent, at any time during the sale, to withdraw any unsold lot, and immediately to put it up again for sale at a maximum upset price diminishing the same gradually until a bid is obtained, and the first bond fide bidder for a lot after it has been offered for sale in the mode here described shall be held and declared to be the purchaser of the said lot, and the Officer of Government superintending the sale shall also be competent to dispose, in the same manner, of as many of the subsequent lots as he may think proper, provided always that no lot shall be sold below the minimum price of 800 Rupees specified in the second of these Conditions.

13. The purchaser of any lot shall have the option of naming and purchasing in immediate succession, at the same price and under the same conditions, any number of lots of the same Agency Opium not exceeding altogether twenty-five lots, provided always that there remain a sufficient number of lots of the Opium to complete the said twenty-five.

14. In the event of any dispute or difference touching or concerning any matter or question arising out of the sale of the Opium included in this Notification, or adjustment of the account thereof, the same shall and may be tried and decided in the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

15. The following papers will be exhibited for inspection on the day of sale, or may be seen previously to that date by application at the Office of the Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue:—No. 1, Certificate of the Opium advertised for sale. No. 2, Report of the examination of such Opium.

16. The public are hereby informed that in providing the investment of the Behar and Benares Opium for the year 1868-69, the same precautions have been taken as those which have been observed during past years, to have the drug procured and sent down in a pure state, to have only the prescribed quantity of leaves used in forming the cakes, and to have the due proportion of Opium put into each cake. An account of the weight of the drug when packed at Behar and Benares, and a statement of the average weight of the chests, indiscriminately taken for the purpose of comparison from the despatches on arrival at Calcutta, may be seen on application at the Office of the Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue.

17. Any further information respecting weight or quality of the Opium advertised for sale that may be desired by parties connected with the trade, will, as heretofore, be furnished to them on application at the Office of the Board of Revenue. But, in accordance with established usage, under no circumstances will the Board entertain or recognise any claim to compensation for loss from any alleged deficiency of weight, abstraction of Opium or adulteration of the drug, which may be preferred on reference to chests, after the sale and delivery of the Opium for shipment.

18. It is hereby further notified that, under the 6th Article of the Convention between Great Britain and France, dated the 7th March 1815, quoted below, the Agents of India in the French Government, or persons duly appointed by them, are entitled to demand, that out of the quantities of Behar and Benares Opium declared as above for sale at the twelve sales of the year 1870, there shall be delivered to them, at the average of the particular sale or sales to which the Opium so applied for may belong, a quantity not exceeding in the aggregate 300 chests, and the Agents of the French Government must make requisition specifying the quantity of Opium required by them at any particular sale, within thirty days from the advertisement of such intended sale, provided, however, that the Agents of the French Government may make such requisition for the whole quantity within thirty days from the publication of this notification. If the Agents of the French Government shall not make the requisition for Opium within the time abovementioned, the entire quantity of about 48,000 chests of Behar and Benares as above estimated, will be brought to sale in the usual manner, and if they shall make application for a quantity of Opium to be delivered to them out of the quantity advertised for sale at each or any of the twelve sales abovementioned, but shall not pay for it within the prescribed period of payment, the Government of Bengal reserves to itself the right of disposing of the Opium which the French Authorities may so fail to pay for, either by increasing the quantity reserved at the sale next ensuing the date of payment, or by selling it at a sale to be held expressly for the purpose.

Article of the Convention above referred to:—

Article VI.—"With regard to the trade in Opium, it is agreed between the high contracting parties that at each of the periodical sales of that article, there shall be reserved for the French Government, and delivered upon requisition duly made by the Agents of His Most Christian Majesty, or by the persons duly appointed by them, the number of chests so applied for, provided that such supply shall not exceed three hundred chests in each year, and the price for the same shall be determined by the average rate at which Opium shall have been sold at every such periodical sale, it being understood that, if the quantity of Opium applied for at any one time shall not be taken on account of the French Government by the Agents of His Most Christian Majesty, within the usual period of delivery, the quantity so applied for shall nevertheless be considered as so much in reduction of the three hundred chests hereinbefore mentioned. The requisitions for Opium as aforesaid are to be addressed to the Governor General at Calcutta within thirty days after notice of the intended sales shall have been published in the Government Gazette."

The following Rules are published for general information :—

Rules for the examination of Lime Juice.

1. All applications for the examination of Lime Juice intended for sale for the use of ships' crews must be addressed to the Inspector of Antiscorbutics at the Custom House, and must state where the Lime Juice is stored. The Inspector of Antiscorbutics will then appoint a time to examine the same.

In the event of any very large quantity being submitted for examination, notice should be given one clear day before that on which the examination is to be made.

2. The Lime Juice after being approved shall be fortified and bottled in the presence of the Inspector of Antiscorbutics, or of a Customs' Officer deputed by him.

3. The Lime Juice shall be fortified with 15 per centum (calculated at London-proof) of proper and palatable spirits, and shall be bottled in bottles of reputed quart size counting by measurement six to the gallon, and after being properly sealed, shall be secured by the approved label being fastened round the neck and on the seal of the bottle.

The label shall be of a yellow color and bear the following inscription :—

LIME JUICE.

Certified fit for Ships' use.

Inspector of Antiscorbutics.

4. Lime Juice to which duty-paid spirits shall be added, can at once be removed to the vendor's stores immediately after attachment of the label.

5. Lime Juice to which duty-free spirits are to be added must be deposited in a Licensed Warehouse, either by the owner making arrangements for such deposit with some one who has already a License for a Warehouse for storing wines and spirits, or else by his taking out a License for a Warehouse himself under the terms of Act VI. of 1863—The Consolidated Customs' Act.

6. Lime Juice to which duty-free spirits are to be added, shall be dealt with as regards fortifying, bottling, and labelling, as laid down in Rules 2 and 3, but must be kept in a Licensed Warehouse.

7. Lime Juice landed for rectification with spirits duty-free from a Licensed Warehouse under engagement to re-ship, must be dealt with as regards the fortifying and labelling under Rules 2 and 3, and be re-shipped under the terms of Section 183, Act VI. of 1863.

The mean Barometer, as likewise the Dry and Wet Bulb Thermometer means, are derived from the Twenty-four hourly Observations made during the day.

The Dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants.—The figures in column ten represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken at unity.—The receiver of the lower rain gauge is 1½ feet, and that of the Anemometer 70 feet 10 inches above the level of the ground.—The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's Anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.

An Act to provide against European Vagrancy.

Preamble.

WHEREAS numerous persons of European extraction are at present wandering in a destitute condition throughout India, and whereas such conduct is prejudicial to public order, and it is expedient to prevent the same; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

PART I.—PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The European Vagrancy Act, 1869."

Commencement and extent of Act.

2. Sections three, seventeen, eighteen, twenty-one, twenty-two, twenty-three, twenty-seven, twenty-eight, thirty, thirty-two, thirty-three and thirty-four shall come into operation at once, and shall extend to the whole of British India and to the dominions of Princes and States in India in alliance with Her Majesty:

Sections twenty-five, twenty-six, and thirty-one shall come into operation on the first day of January 1870, and shall extend to the whole of British India and to the said dominions:

And the rest of this Act shall come into operation in such parts of British India and of the said dominions and on such day or respective days as the Governor General of India in Council shall from time to time by notification in the Gazette of India appoint in this behalf.

Interpretation clause.

3. In this Act—

"Person of European extraction."

"Person of European extraction" includes Americans and Australasians:

"Vagrant."

"Vagrant" means a person of European extraction found asking for alms, or wandering about without any employment or visible means of subsistence:

"Master of a ship."

"Master of a ship" includes any person in charge of a decked vessel:

"Magistrate."

And in Parts III and V of this Act "Magistrate" means, within the limits of the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, a Magistrate of Police, and, outside those limits, a person exercising powers under the Code of Criminal Procedure not less than those of a Subordinate Magistrate of the first class.

PART II.—PROCEDURE.

Power to require apparent vagrant to go before Police Magistrate, or Justice of the Peace with full powers of a Magistrate.

4. Any Police officer may, within the limits of the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, require any person who is apparently a vagrant to accompany him or any other Police officer to and to appear before the nearest Magistrate of Police, and may, without those limits, require any such person to accompany him or any other Police officer to and to appear before the nearest Justice of the Peace exercising the full powers of a Magistrate under the Code of Criminal Procedure.

Summary inquiry into vagrant's circumstances.

5. The Magistrate of Police or Justice shall make a summary inquiry into the circumstances and character of the alleged vagrant; and if he is satisfied that such person is a vagrant, he shall record in his office a declaration to that effect.

Order to go to work-house.

If he is further of opinion that the vagrant is not likely to obtain employment at once, or if he has reason to believe that a declaration of vagrancy has on any former occasion been recorded in respect of such vagrant, he shall require the vagrant to go to a Government work-house and shall draw out an order to that effect.

The vagrant shall then be placed in charge of the Police for the purpose of being forwarded to the work-house, and the said order shall be a sufficient authority to the Police for retaining him in their charge while he is on his way to the work-house, and to the governor of the work-house for receiving and detaining such vagrant.

Forwarding vagrant to place of employment.

6. Where the officer making the inquiry mentioned in section five is of opinion that the vagrant is likely to obtain employment in any place subject to the Local Government or (when the vagrant is in any part of the said dominions) in any place subject to the nearest Local Government, such officer may in his discretion forward the vagrant to such place in charge of the Police and draw up an order to that effect.

Such order shall be a sufficient authority to the Police for retaining the vagrant in their charge while he is on his way to such place of employment.

Assistance to obtain employment.

7. Upon his arrival at the place of employment, the vagrant shall be taken before the nearest Magistrate of Police or Justice of the Peace exercising full powers as aforesaid, to whom the order for transmission shall be delivered.

Such officer shall thereupon, to the best of his ability, assist the vagrant in seeking employment, and may in the mean time, if he think fit, keep the vagrant in the charge of the Police.

Should the vagrant fail to obtain suitable employment within a reasonable time not exceeding fifteen days from such arrival, such officer shall forward him to a Government work-house in the manner provided by section five.

Subsistence allowance.

8. Every person while in charge of the Police, whether before inquiry as to his vagrancy, or while he is on his way, under section five, to the work-house, or, under section six, to a place of employment, shall be entitled to an allowance for his subsistence at the rate of eight annas per diem.

The Magistrate of Police or Justice, before whom any vagrant is taken under section seven, may, if he think fit, order the vagrant to receive a similar allowance while he is seeking employment.

The Local Government shall cause such allowance to be paid out of such funds at its disposal and in such manner as it may from time to time direct.

Power to give certificates.

9. Any Magistrate of Police or Justice of the Peace exercising full powers as aforesaid may, on being satisfied that any person of European extraction is not likely to become a vagrant, give such person a certificate under his hand stating that for a certain time (mentioning it) not exceeding six months from the date of the certificate, and within certain limits (mentioning them), nothing in sections four, five, six and seven shall apply to the holder of such certificate; and thereupon (subject to the provisions contained in sections twenty-three and twenty-four) nothing in sections four, five, six and seven shall apply to such person for such time and within such limits as aforesaid.

Form of certificate.

Every such certificate shall be in the form set forth in the first schedule to this Act annexed, or as near thereto as circumstances will admit.

Power to invest Justices, District Superintendents of Police, &c., with jurisdiction of full power Justices under Part II.

10. The Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, invest any Justice of the Peace, District Superintendent of Police, or Assistant District Superintendent of Police with the jurisdiction and powers conferred by this Part on a Justice of the Peace exercising full powers as aforesaid.

PART III.—GOVERNMENT WORK-HOUSES.

Provision of Government work-houses.

11. The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General of India in Council, may provide work-houses, with their necessary furniture and establishment, at such places as it may think proper, for the temporary reception of vagrants, or may by writing under the hand of a Secretary to such Government, certify any building, or part of a building not provided as a work-house under the former part of this section, to be fit for a work-house for the purposes of this Act. Every such certificate shall be published in the local official Gazette, and thereupon such building or part of a building shall, until the Local Government otherwise orders, be deemed a Government work-house under this Act.

Scale of diet.

The Local Government shall allow the same scale of diet for the support of vagrants received in such work-houses as is for the time being allowed for Europeans confined in the local prisons or penitentiaries.

Superintendence of work-houses.

12. Every such work-house shall be under the immediate charge of a governor, who shall be appointed and may be suspended or removed by the Local Government.

Every such governor shall, if the Local Government think fit, be subject to the orders of a Committee of Management appointed from time to time by such Government, or, in the absence of a Committee, to the orders of such officer as the Local Government shall from time to time appoint in this behalf.

Search of vagrants.

13. Every such governor may order that any vagrant admitted to the work-house under his charge shall be searched, and that the vagrant's bundles, packages and other effects shall be inspected, and may direct that any money then found with or on the vagrant, shall be applied (subject to the orders of the Local Government) towards the expense of carrying this Act into execution, and may order that all or any of the said effects shall be sold, and that the produce of the sale be applied as aforesaid, but subject to the like orders.

Discipline.

14. Vagrants admitted to work-houses under this Act shall be subject to such rules of management and discipline, as may from time to time be prescribed by the Local Government with the previous sanction of the Governor General of India in Council.

Any vagrant who knowingly disobeys or neglects any such rule, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be punishable with rigorous imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months.

Refusal to accept employment.

15. The governor and the Committee of Management (if any) of every such work-house shall use his and their best endeavours to obtain outside the work-house suitable employment for the vagrants admitted thereto.

When such employment is obtained, any such vagrant refusing or neglecting to avail himself thereof, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be punishable with rigorous imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month.

PART IV.—REMOVAL FROM INDIA.

Removal of vagrants.

Cost of removal.

16. If after the lapse of a reasonable time no suitable employment is obtainable for any such vagrant, the Local Government may either (when he shall have entered into such agreement as hereinafter mentioned) cause him to be removed from British India in manner hereinafter provided, the cost of such removal being paid by Government;

Agreements with vagrants.

17. Any vagrant or other person of European extraction may enter into an agreement in writing with the Secretary of State for India in Council, binding himself—

(a.) to proceed to such port in British India as shall be mentioned in the agreement;

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

WHEN the Indian Succession Act, 1865, was under the consideration of the Legislature, it was proposed to extend to Natives the testamentary portion of that measure; but it was felt that, in three respects, sufficient information was not before the Council to justify an immediate extension in this direction. Doubts were entertained as to how far it would be politic to interfere with the power to make oral wills which Muhammadans have always possessed, and evidence was wanting as to the propriety of restricting Natives in creating perpetuities and in making bequests to religious and charitable uses. A clause was accordingly introduced, as a temporary provision, excluding the Hindús, Muhammadans and Buddhists from the operation of any part of the Act.

Some months after the passing of the Act, a circular was issued from the Home Department to the several Local Governments respecting the extension to Natives of its testamentary clauses. Attention was called to the fact that, although liberty of testation was established throughout British India, and although the testamentary power of Hindús was derived from the English law, there were no securities for the due exercise of that power by Natives, such as the requirement of writing, signature and attestation, which were found indispensable in Europe.

It was also pointed out that, although in England nuncupative wills have long been placed under considerable restrictions as to the persons by whom they can be made, as to the witnesses required to be present, and as to the time within which testimony is admissible to prove the speaking, in India, our Courts were compelled to recognize such wills when made by Hindús of any age or calling and under any circumstances whatever. It was observed that the favourite fraud of bringing forward false wills was encouraged by the non-requirement of writing; that the evidence setting up a false nuncupative will might revoke a true written one, and that, even in the case of a genuine testamentary disposition, the certainty of writing was replaced by the frailty of memory. Further remarks, which will now be merely referred to, were made as to the absence, in the case of Native testators, of any restraints on the creation of perpetuities and on devises to religious or charitable uses, as to the non-requirement of probate of their wills, whether written or oral, and as to the difficulty of ascertaining the character and powers of a Native executor.

The circular concluded by pointing out the provisions of the Indian Succession Act on the subjects thus treated of, and by requesting an opinion as to the advisability of extending those provisions to Natives.

To this circular replies were received from all the local authorities, accompanied, in almost every instance, by papers written by such European and Native gentlemen as were deemed best capable of advising on the matter. The general result of the opinions thus obtained may, so far as they relate to the Presidencies of Bengal, Madras and Bombay, to Oudh, and to the Central Provinces, be compendiously expressed as follows :—

1st.—The practice of making nuncupative wills should be abolished, and the provisions of the Indian Succession Act as to execution of wills and codicils should be adopted in the case not only of Hindús but Muhammadans.

2nd.—Marriage should not, in the case of a Native testator, revoke his will. In other respects the provisions of the Succession Act as to revocation should be followed.

3rd.—It is inexpedient to impose, in the case of Natives, any restrictions on the exercise of the testamentary power in favour of religious or charitable uses, or for the creation of perpetuties.

4th.— The provisions of the Succession Act as to the interpretation of wills should, with some few exceptions, be adopted.

5th.—Probate should be made compulsory, and the provisions of the Succession Act as to administration with will annexed and as to the powers and duties of an executor, should be extended with some slight modifications.

The primary object of the present Bill is to preclude the fraud and perjury which are notoriously encouraged by the absence of restriction on the making of nuncupative testaments. Its secondary objects are to prevent the evils arising from the non-requirement of probate of Native wills, and from the prevailing uncertainty as to the character and powers of Native executors.

As a Native's written will need not now be proved, it need not, of course, be deposited for safe custody. The resulting opportunities for forgery and fraudulent alteration are obvious, and have, it is believed, been often taken advantage of. Moreover, in England the granting of probate is conclusive as to the testamentary character of the instrument as regards all claimants of the personalty. The result of this rule is most satisfactory in precluding litigation. But in India, a far more litigious country, even when a Native's will is proved, or when letters of administration are granted cum testamento annexo, the probate or grant is binding only as against those who obtain or who oppose it. As against persons who have no means of appearing, or right to dispute the probate or grant, it has no greater effect than the ordinary decree in a civil suit.

Then the Native executor takes nothing from any grant of the Court. His title is founded solely on the will considered as an instrument of gift. His acts between the testator's death and the grant of probate are not (as in England) rendered valid by the grant. It seems doubtful whether, as against creditors who have not appeared or been cited, he can retain any part of his own debt. In the interest of the honest executor, therefore, legislation seems needed in this direction. Moreover, a Native executor has, according to the High Court at Fort William, no greater power over immoveable property than a manager. His powers are, therefore, at least in the Lower Provinces of Bengal, limited and qualified, and if he makes a mortgage or sale, the lender or purchaser, as the case may be, is bound to enquire into the necessity of the transaction. What the law on the subject is in Madras and Bombay does not appear to have hitherto been decided. It is hard to conceive a state of things more calculated to interfere with that free circulation of property so desirable in a country like India.

A Native executor, moreover, cannot be compelled, except by a law-suit, to exhibit an inventory or account of his testator's estate. In many cases, therefore, there is no adequate check upon him; and at any distance of time it is difficult to fix him with the possession of property comprised in the will.

The Bill only applies to Hindús and Buddhists. Muhammadans have an elaborate system of testamentary law, which, like the rest of their code, they regard as of divine origin. To impose on Muhammadans a body of rules which would have the effect of superseding any part of their existing law, might create alarm and discontent, and would therefore be impolitic. The case of Hindús is clearly distinguishable. Hindú wills being unknown to Hindú law, being in fact the creature of English Courts, the legislature is entitled to subject them to all expedient restrictions. Similar remarks apply to the wills of Buddhists.

The Bill, too, is confined in its operation to the Presidency Towns. Hereafter it may be desirable to extend its provisions to Hindús and Buddhists in the Mofussil and Burma. But as yet the practice of testation does not prevail amongst Natives to any great extent outside those towns; and for the present, therefore, it seems advisable to limit the incidence of the proposed legislation.

The power of alienation inter vivos which a Hindú possesses is everywhere subject to restrictions, and varies from the nearly absolute freedom enjoyed, even as to ancestral property, by a Native of Bengal, to the comparatively limited authority of a Native of Madras or other territory subject to the law of the Mitákshará. The High Courts at Calcutta and Madras have held that a Hindú's testamentary power is only co-extensive with his independent power of alienation during life. The Bill adopts this ruling, and provides that nothing therein contained shall authorize a testator to bequeath property which he could not have alienated inter vivos. Connected with this provision is a clause expressly negativing the power of a Native testator to deprive his relatives of any right of maintenance which they would have possessed if he had died intestate.

The rest of the Bill extends to the wills of Hindús and Buddhists certain sections of the Succession Act.

Of these, section 46 declares the testamentary power, and will be read in connection with the limitation above-mentioned.

Sections 48, 49, 50, 51, 54, 55, 57, to 60 relate (inter alia) to the execution, revocation, and revival of wills and codicils. It will be seen that the Bill expressly provides that marriage shall not operate as a revocation. It is the opinion of competent authorities that in the case of a polygamist marriage does nto create such a change in the testator's condition as to raise a presumption that he would not adhere to a will made previously. The principle, therefore, on which marriage revokes a will in England, does not apply.

Part XI of the Succession Act contains rules as to the construction of wills. Of these the Bill proposes to extend sections 61 to 77, and sections 82, 83, 85, and 88 to 98 (both inclusive). It omits sections 80 and 81, which provide rules for the cases of bequests to 'heirs,' 'next-of-kin,' 'nearest relation,' &c., or the 'representatives' of a particular person. These rules have been framed with reference to the English law of succession ab intestato, and are therefore in applicable to Natives.

By section 84, a bequest to A. and his children gives the whole interest to A. But the intentions of a Hindú testator, to whom the idea of a father and his sons being in a state of natural coparcenary is familiar, would probably be frustrated by the application of such a rule, which, therefore, has been omitted.

Section 86 ties down the construction of terms or relationship. Natives are generally so vague and inaccurate in using these terms that the section cannot safely be applied to their wills.

The general rule laid down by section 87, that words expressing relationship shall denote only legitimate relations, has also been omitted as being scarcely applicable to the wills of Hindús and Buddhists, whose notions as to legitimacy and elligitimacy are so different from those of Europeans.

Sections 179 to 264 relate to grants of probate and letters of administration. The Bill extends so much of them as relates to probate and grants cum testamento annexo, subject, however, to two modifications. Section 179 declares that all the property of the deceased person vests in the executor as such. This might give rise to a misconception, and the Bill expressly provides that nothing in the proposed Act shall vest in the executor or administrator with will annexed any property which the deceased could not have alienated during his life. And the Bill modifies sections 195, 198, 230 and 231 of the Succession Act so as to make it clear that the rules laid down in the 201st and the following sections, as to the order in which surviving relatives are entitled to administration in case of intestacy, do not apply to grants to Natives of letters of administration with will annexed. In such cases the practice will continue to be as at present, viz., to let the grant follow the interest.

As adoption is practised not only by Hindús, but by Buddhists, it has been necessary to provide that the words 'son,' 'child,' 'children,' when they occur in the sections extended, shall include an adopted son.

It may, in conclusion, be remarked that the testamentary clauses of the Succession Act apply to the Pársís: that most of these clauses were extended to the Oudh Taluqdárs by Act I of 1869, and that the similar provisions contained in the Indian Wills Act (XXV of 1838) have for the last twenty years applied to all classes in the Straits Settlement—Muhammadans, Hindús, and Chinese as well as Englishmen.

The following Order issued by the Government of India, in the Marine Department, is re-published for general information :—

No. 15 —Simla, the 28th September 1869.—Notification.—The following notice has been received for publication from the Chief Commissioner, British Burmah, in a letter dated Rangoon, the 13th September 1869 :—

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

From and after the 15th September 1869, the lights on the following Lighthouses will be, night by night, continuously exhibited, and on the 21st September the light-ship, which has hitherto marked the entrance of the Rangoon River, will be removed.

In accordance with the provisons of Section 3 of Act XIII. of 1867, a coast light due of one anna a ton will be levied on and after the 15th September on all vessels of fifty tons burden and upwards if the voyage be from Rangoon or Maulmain to Bassein, or from Bassein to Rangoon or Maulmain.

N. B.—The bearings and courses given are all true.

I.—Coast Lighthouse on the Krishna Shoal, Gulf of Martaban, in latitude 15° 36′ 30″ north, longitude 95° 35′ east.

A Lighthouse on screw piles in 3 fathoms at low water, on the south-eastern edge of the above shoal, showing a fixed dioptric light of the second order. The focal plane of the light 60 feet above high-water mark, visible 14 nautical miles. Rise and fall of tide 12 feet. H. W. at F. and C. XII. hours. The light is cut off at W. S. W. to the westward, and at N. N. E. to the eastward, the centre of the light being south-east.

It is provided with a fog bell which, in foggy weather, will be sounded at intervals of 30 seconds.

In making the light (the object of which is to enable vessels to round Baragu Point so as to avoid the dangers of the Baragu Flat and Krishna Shoal) from the westward, a vessel should keep in not less than 7 fathoms of water to the southward, steering eastward until the light bears north-west and distant 5 to 10 miles, then steering, according to strength and set of the tide, between north-east by north, and north-east 40 miles, to make China Buckeer Lighthouse off the mouth of Rangoon River.

Vessels from the northward going south must not get into less than 6 fathoms of water when standing to the westward, or bring the light to bear to the southward of S. W. by W. ½ W.

No vessel should approach within 5 miles of the Lighthouse.

A vessel bound to the westward may steer in that direction after she has brought the light to bear north, distant 5 to 10 miles, taking care to keep in not less than 7 fathoms of water.

II.—Harbour Lighthouse on China Buckeer, off the entrance of Rangoon River.

Hitherto the entrance to the channel of the Rangoon River has been marked by a light-ship in 3½ fathoms of water. The Lighthouse is situated on the high land of China Buckeer, which is generally first made by ships bound to Rangoon, and is about 3 miles north-east of the mouth of the China Buckeer River. It is built on screw piles, and the lower part being against a back ground of dark trees will be painted white. It is close to high water-mark, but the sands at low water stretch 6 miles to the eastward of it. Ships must therefore keep well to seaward from it. It will bear a dioptric light of the first order, the upper and lower cupolas showing a fixed light, and the centre drum a revolving light attaining its greatest brilliancy once a minute. It can be seen 15 nautical miles from the deck, or 17 nautical miles from the mast head of a ship. It is in latitude 16° 19′ 30″ north. and longitude 96° 12′ east.

III.—Harbour Lighthouse near the Eastern Grove, off the mouth of the Rangoon River.

This Lighthouse is also on screw piles, in latitude 16° 29′ north, and longitude 96° 26′ 30″ east. It will shew a light over an arc of 60°. It will be cut off to the eastward due south. 10° of this angle will show a condensed light. the centre of which will pass through the present position of the light-ship, or in a direction south 30° west. This condensed light will be visible 16 nautical miles from the deck, or 18 nautical miles from the mast head of a ship, and the remaining 50° of light 12 miles from the deck of a vessel. It is not intended to be a leading light into the river, but to prevent vessels, making the land or China Buckeer Light, from running too far to the westward.

Sailing directions for making the mouth of the Rangoon River.

Steer so as to make China Buckeer Light bearing between N. by E. and W. by N. To avoid the eastern sands, a vessel should not go so far north as to bring the light to bear to the southward of west; and to avoid the western sands. the Eastern Grove Lighthouse must not be brought to bear to the eastward of N. N. E. ½ E. With China Buckeer Light bearing west and the Eastern Grove Light bearing between N. N. E. ½ E. and north, vessels will be on the Rangoon Pilot Station, in the neighbourhood of which pilot vessels are constantly cruising, and should anchor until daylight, or until a pilot is obtained.

Report on the state of the People and the prospect of the Crops in the Shahabad District.

From W. D. PRATT, ESQ., District Superintendent of Police, Shahabad, to the Magistrate of Shahabad,—(No. 159, dated Camp Sasseram, the 21st September 1869.)

IN reply to your memorandum No. 1625 of the 16th of September, covering a copy of the Commissioner's letter No. 65R., dated 13th instant, I have the honor to inform you that I stopped at Nasrigunge from the 12th to the 20th of this month, and had ample opportunity to judge of the present state of the people in that part.

2. The Assistant Superintendent of Sasseram left Nasrigunge on the 11th, but before leaving made every arrangement for feeding the distressed, leaving the work in the hands of the Court of Wards' Manager.

I saw the manner in which the Manager conducted the relief operations, and I am satisfied that relief has been given only to those who really required it.

3. I have the pleasure to report that in my opinion relief measures need not be continued at Nasrigunge for more than a fortnight or three weeks longer to give the bhadye rice time to get into the market. A great deal of this has already been cut, yielding an average of eight maunds to the beegah. I have asked many a cultivator and have personally examined many a "sera" rice field, and without hesitation assert that the "bhadye" rice crop, within a radius of 12 miles of Nasrigunge, has turned out a 14 anna one.

4. Mr. Solano still feeds 2 or 300 hundred people daily. I called on Mr. Solano and inspected his poor. He told me that he would stop all relief in about 10 days. Both Mr. Nolan and he say that all fear of more deaths from starvation has passed away.

5. I may in conclusion state that the "bhadye" crop, gathered in from the country on both sides of the grand trunk road from Dehree to Sasseram, has turned out a 16 anna one. Every person I have asked for an opinion on the matter agrees with me that scarcity is at an end, and that the crops have turned out as well as could be expected in that part of the district that lies between the Arrah and Sasseram roads and the Soane river. I learn also that the crops are very fine between Chenaree and Sasseram, to the south of the grand trunk road. I am not so sure about the crops being fine in the Chomsah and Chynepore Pergunnahs. I have heard rumours that rain has been very partial to the west of the district. As I shall be in those parts next week, I will be able to report satisfactorily on the prospects of the crops there.

Memorandum from R. P. JENKINS, ESQ., Commissioner of the Patna Division,—(No. 130R., dated Patna, the 27th September 1869.)

FORWARDED to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal for information in continuation of this Office letter No. 125R., dated 20th instant, and previous correspondence.

2. The District Superintendent's report is, in the Commissioner's opinion, very cheering and satisfactory.

The Dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants.—The figures in column ten represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken at unity.—The receiver of the lower rain gauge is 1½ feet, and that of the Anemometer 70 feet 10 inches above the level of the ground.—The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's Anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.

Preamble.

WHEREAS numerous persons of European extraction are at present wandering in a destitute condition throughout India, and whereas such conduct is prejudicial to public order, and it is expedient to prevent the same; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

PART I.—PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called "The European Vagrancy Act, 1869."

Commencement and extent of Act.

2. Sections three, seventeen, eighteen, twenty-one, twenty-two, twenty-three, twenty-seven, twenty-eight, thirty, thirty-two, thirty-three and thirty-four shall come into operation at once, and shall extend to the whole of British India and to the dominions of Princes and States in India in alliance with Her Majesty:

Sections twenty-five, twenty-six, and thirty-one shall come into operation on the first day of January 1870, and shall extend to the whole of British India and to the said dominions:

And the rest of this Act shall come into operation in such parts of British India and of the said dominions and on such day or respective days as the Governor General of India in Council shall from time to time by notification in the Gazette of India appoint in this behalf.

Interpretation clause.

3. In this Act—

"Person of European extraction."

"Person of European extraction" includes Americans and Australasians:

"Vagrant."

"Vagrant" means a person of European extraction found asking for alms, or wandering about without any employment or visible means of subsistence:

"Master of a ship."

"Master of a ship" includes any person in charge of a decked vessel:

"Magistrate."

And in Parts III and V of this Act "Magistrate" means, within the limits of the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, a Magistrate of Police, and, outside those limits, a person exercising powers under the Code of Criminal Procedure not less than those of a Subordinate Magistrate of the first class.

PART II.—PROCEDURE.

Power to require apparent vagrant to go before Police Magistrate, or Justice of the Peace with full powers of a Magistrate.

4. Any Police officer may, within the limits of the towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, require any person who is apparently a vagrant to accompany him or any other Police officer to and to appear before the nearest Magistrate of Police, and may, without those limits, require any such person to accompany him or any other Police officer to and to appear before the nearest Justice of the Peace exercising the full powers of a Magistrate under the Code of Criminal Procedure.

Summary inquiry into vagrant's circumstances.

5. The Magistrate of Police or Justice shall make a summary inquiry into the circumstances and character of the alleged vagrant; and if he is satisfied that such person is a vagrant, he shall record in his office a declaration to that effect.

Order to go to work-house.

If he is further of opinion that the vagrant is not likely to obtain employment at once, or if he has reason to believe that a declaration of vagrancy has on any former occasion been recorded in respect of such vagrant, he shall require the vagrant to go to a Government work-house and shall draw out an order to that effect.

The vagrant shall then be placed in charge of the Police for the purpose of being forwarded to the work-house, and the said order shall be a sufficient authority to the Police for retaining him in their charge while he is on his way to the work-house, and to the governor of the work-house for receiving and detaining such vagrant.

Forwarding vagrant to place of employment.

6. Where the officer making the inquiry mentioned in section five is of opinion that the vagrant is likely to obtain employment in any place subject to the Local Government or (when the vagrant is in any part of the said dominions) in any place subject to the nearest Local Government, such officer may in his discretion forward the vagrant to such place in charge of the Police and draw up an order to that effect.

Such order shall be a sufficient authority to the Police for retaining the vagrant in their charge while he is on his way to such place of employment.

Assistance to obtain employment.

7. Upon his arrival at the place of employment, the vagrant shall be taken before the nearest Magistrate of Police or Justice of the Peace exercising full powers as aforesaid, to whom the order for transmission shall be delivered.

Such officer shall thereupon, to the best of his ability, assist the vagrant in seeking employment, and may in the mean time, if he think fit, keep the vagrant in the charge of the Police.

Should the vagrant fail to obtain suitable employment within a reasonable time not exceeding fifteen days from such arrival, such officer shall forward him to a Government work-house in the manner provided by section five.

Subsistence allowance.

8. Every person while in charge of the Police, whether before inquiry as to his vagrancy, or while he is on his way, under section five, to the work-house, or, under section six, to a place of employment, shall be entitled to an allowance for his subsistence at the rate of eight annas per diem.

The Magistrate of Police or Justice, before whom any vagrant is taken under section seven, may, if he think fit, order the vagrant to receive a similar allowance while he is seeking employment.

The Local Government shall cause such allowance to be paid out of such funds at its disposal and in such manner as it may from time to time direct.

Power to give certificates.

9. Any Magistrate of Police or Justice of the Peace exercising full powers as aforesaid may, on being satisfied that any person of European extraction is not likely to become a vagrant, give such person a certificate under his hand stating that for a certain time (mentioning it) not exceeding six months from the date of the certificate, and within certain limits (mentioning them), nothing in sections four, five, six and seven shall apply to the holder of such certificate; and thereupon (subject to the provisions contained in sections twenty-three and twenty-four) nothing in sections four, five, six and seven shall apply to such person for such time and within such limits as aforesaid.

Form of certificate.

Every such certificate shall be in the form set forth in the first schedule to this Act annexed, or as near thereto as circumstances will admit.

Power to invest Justices, District Superintendents of Police, &c., with jurisdiction of full power Justices under Part II.

10. The Local Government may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, invest any Justice of the Peace, District Superintendent of Police, or Assistant District Superintendent of Police with the jurisdiction and powers conferred by this Part on a Justice of the Peace exercising full powers as aforesaid.

PART III.—GOVERNMENT WORK-HOUSES.

Provision of Government work-houses.

11. The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General of India in Council, may provide work-houses, with their necessary furniture and establishment, at such places as it may think proper, for the temporary reception of vagrants, or may by writing under the hand of a Secretary to such Government, certify any building, or part of a building not provided as a work-house under the former part of this section, to be fit for a work-house for the purposes of this Act. Every such certificate shall be published in the local official Gazette, and thereupon such building or part of a building shall, until the Local Government otherwise orders, be deemed a Government work-house under this Act.

Scale of diet.

The Local Government shall allow the same scale of diet for the support of vagrants received in such work-houses as is for the time being allowed for Europeans confined in the local prisons or penitentiaries.

Superintendence of work-houses.

12. Every such work-house shall be under the immediate charge of a governor, who shall be appointed and may be suspended or removed by the Local Government.

Every such governor shall, if the Local Government think fit, be subject to the orders of a Committee of Management appointed from time to time by such Government, or, in the absence of a Committee, to the orders of such officer as the Local Government shall from time to time appoint in this behalf.

Search of vagrants.

13. Every such governor may order that any vagrant admitted to the work-house under his charge shall be searched, and that the vagrant's bundles, packages and other effects shall be inspected, and may direct that any money then found with or on the vagrant, shall be applied (subject to the orders of the Local Government) towards the expense of carrying this Act into execution, and may order that all or any of the said effects shall be sold, and that the produce of the sale be applied as aforesaid, but subject to the like orders.

Discipline.

14. Vagrants admitted to work-houses under this Act shall be subject to such rules of management and discipline as may from time to time be prescribed by the Local Government with the previous sanction of the Governor General of India in Council.

Any vagrant who knowingly disobeys or neglects any such rule, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be punishable with rigorous imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months.

Refusal to accept employment.

15. The governor and the Committee of Management (if any) of every such work-house shall use his and their best endeavours to obtain outside the work-house suitable employment for the vagrants admitted thereto.

When such employment is obtained, any such vagrant refusing or neglecting to avail himself thereof, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be punishable with rigorous imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month.

PART IV.—REMOVAL FROM INDIA.

Removal of vagrants.

Cost of removal.

16. If after the lapse of a reasonable time no suitable employment is obtainable for any such vagrant, the Local Government may either (when he shall have entered into such agreement as hereinafter mentioned) cause him to be removed from British India in manner hereinafter provided, the cost of such removal being paid by Government;

Agreements with vagrants.

17. Any vagrant or other person of European extraction may enter into an agreement in writing with the Secretary of State for India in Council, binding himself—

(a.) to proceed to such port in British India as shall be mentioned in the agreement;

(b.) there to embark on board such ship and at such time as shall be directed by an officer appointed in this behalf by the Local Government of the territories in which such port is situate, for the purpose of being removed from India at the expense of the said Secretary of State in Council;

(c.) to remain on board such ship until she shall have arrived at her port of destination; and

(d.) not to return to India until five years shall have elapsed from the date of such embakation.

Form of Agreement.

Every such agreement may be on unstamped paper and shall be in the form set forth in the second schedule to this Act annexed, or as near thereto as circumstances will admit.

Power to perform agreement.

18. The Local Government of the territories in which the said port is situate may enter into such contracts for conveyance or otherwise, and perform such other acts as may be necessary to carry out such agreement on the part of the said Secretary of State in Council.

PART V.—PENALTIES.

Refusal to go before Police Magistrate or Justice.

19. Any person refusing or failing to accompany a Police officer to, or to appear before a Magistrate of Police or Justice of the Peace, for the purpose of preliminary inquiry when required so to do under section four, shall be punishable, whether he be or be not an European British subject, on conviction before a Magistrate, with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month, or with fine, or with both.

Assaulting Police.

And any person who, when required under section four to accompany a Police officer to, or to appear before a Magistrate of Police or Justice of the Peace, commits an offence punishable under section three hundred and fifty-three of the Indian Penal Code, may, whether he be or not an European British subject, be tried by a Magistrate for such offence.

Escaping from Police.

20. Any vagrant escaping from the Police while committed to their charge under orders specified in sections five and six, or leaving a work-house under this Act without permission from the governor, shall for every such offence be punishable, on conviction before a Magistrate, with rigorous imprisonment for a term which may extend to two years.

Quitting work-house without leave.

Failing to proceed to port of embarkation.

21. Any person entering into an agreement under section seventeen and failing to proceed in pursuance thereof to the port therein mentioned,

Refusing to go on board-ship.

Escaping from ship.

No. 15 OF 1869.

A Bill to regulate the Wills of Hindús and Buddhists in the Presidency Towns.

Certain sections of Succession Act extended to wills of Hindús and Buddhists in the Presidency Towns.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

WHEN the Indian Succession Act, 1865, was under the consideration of the Legislature, it was proposed to extend to Natives the testamentary portion of that measure; but it was felt that, in three respects, sufficient information was not before the Council to justify an immediate extension in this direction. Doubts were entertained as to how far it would be politic to interfere with the power to make oral wills which Muhammadans have always possessed, and evidence was wanting as to the propriety of restricting Natives in creating perpetuities and in making bequests to religious and charitable uses. A clause was accordingly introduced, as a temporary provision, excluding the Hindús, Muhammadans and Buddhists from the operation of any part of the Act.

Some months after the passing of the Act, a circular was issued from the Home Department to the several Local Governments respecting the extension to Natives of its testamentary clauses. Attention was called to the fact that, although liberty of testation was established throughout British India, and although the testamentary power of Hindús was derived from the English law, there were no securities for the due exercise of that power by Natives, such as the requirement of writing, signature and attestation, which were found indispensable in Europe.

It was also pointed out that, although in England nuncupative wills have long been placed under considerable restrictions as to the persons by whom they can be made, as to the witnesses required to be present, and as to the time within which testimony is admissible to prove the speaking, in India, our Courts were compelled to recognize such wills when made by Hindús of any age or calling and under any circumstances whatever. It was observed that the favourite fraud of bringing forward false wills was encouraged by the non-requirement of writing; that the evidence setting up a false nuncupative will might revoke a true written one, and that, even in the case of a genuine testamentary disposition, the certainty of writing was replaced by the frailty of memory. Further remarks, which will now be merely referred to, were made as to the absence, in the case of Native testators, of any restraints on the creation of perpetuities and on devises to religious or charitable uses, as to the non-requirement of probate of their wills, whether written or oral, and as to the difficulty of ascertaining the character and powers of a Native executor.

The circular concluded by pointing out the provisions of the Indian Succession Act on the subjects thus treated of, and by requesting an opinion as to the advisability of extending those provisions to Natives.

To this circular replies were received from all the local authorities, accompanied, in almost every instance, by papers written by such European and Native gentlemen as were deemed best capable of advising on the matter. The general result of the opinions thus obtained may, so far as they relate to the Presidencies of Bengal, Madras and Bombay, to Oudh, and to the Central Provinces, be compendiously expressed as follows :—

1st.—The practice of making nuncupative wills should be abolished, and the provisions of the Indian Succession Act as to execution of wills and codicils should be adopted in the case not only of Hindús but Muhammadans.

2nd.—Marriage should not, in the case of a Native testator, revoke his will. In other respects the provisions of the Succession Act as to revocation should be followed.

3rd.—It is inexpedient to impose, in the case of Natives, any restrictions on the exercise of the testamentary power in favour of religious or charitable uses, or for the creation of perpetuties.

4th.—The provisions of the Succession Act as to the interpretation of wills should, with some few exceptions, be adopted.

5th.—Probate should be made compulsory, and the provisions of the Succession Act as to administration with will annexed and as to the powers and duties of an executor, should be extended with some slight modifications.

The primary object of the present Bill is to preclude the fraud and perjury which are notoriously encouraged by the absence of restriction on the making of nuncupative testaments. Its secondary objects are to prevent the evils arising from the non-requirement of probate of Native wills, and from the prevailing uncertainty as to the character and powers of Native executors.

As a Native's written will need not now be proved, it need not, of course, be deposited for safe custody. The resulting opportunities for forgery and fraudulent alteration are obvious, and have, it is believed, been often taken advantage of. Moreover, in England the granting of probate is conclusive as to the testamentary character of the instrument as regards all claimants of the personalty. The result of this rule is most satisfactory in precluding litigation. But in India, a far more litigious country, even when a Native's will is proved, or when letters of administration are granted cum testamento annexo, the probate or grant is binding only as against those who obtain or who oppose it. As against persons who have no means of appearing, or right to dispute the probate or grant, it has no greater effect than the ordinary decreee in a civil suit.

Then the Native executor takes nothing from any grant of the Court. His title is founded solely on the will considered as an instrument of gift. His acts between the testator's death and the grant of probate are not (as in England) rendered valid by the grant. It seems doubtful whether, as against creditors who have not appeared or been cited, he can retain any part of his own debt. In the interest of the honest executor, therefore, legislation seems needed in this direction. Moreover, a Native executor has, according to the High Court at Fort William, no greater power over immoveable property than a manager. His powers are, therefore, at least in the Lower Provinces of Bengal, limited and qualified, and if he makes a mortgage or sale, the lender or purchaser, as the case may be, is bound to enquire into the necessity of the transaction. What the law on the subject is in Madras and Bombay does not appear to have hitherto been decided. It is hard to conceive a state of things more calculated to interfere with that free circulation of property so desirable in a country like India.

A Native executor, moreover, cannot be compelled, except by a law-suit, to exhibit an inventory or account of his testator's estate. In many cases, therefore, there is no adequate check upon him; and at any distance of time it is difficult to fix him with the possession of property comprised in the will.

The Bill only applies to Hindús and Buddhists. Muhammadans have an elaborate system of testamentary law, which, like the rest of their code, they regard as of divine origin. To impose on Muhammadans a body of rules which would have the effect of superseding any part of their existing law, might create alarm and discontent, and would therefore be impolitic. The case of Hindús is clearly distinguishable. Hindú wills being unknown to Hindú law, being in fact the creature of English Courts, the legislature is entitled to subject them to all expedient restrictions. Similar remarks apply to the wills of Buddhists.

The Bill, too, is confined in its operation to the Presidency Towns. Hereafter it may be desirable to extend its provisions to Hindús and Buddhists in the Mofussil and Burma. But as yet the practice of testation does not prevail amongst Natives to any great extent outside those towns; and for the present, therefore, it seems advisable to limit the incidence of the proposed legislation.

The power of alienation inter vivos which a Hindú possesses is everywhere subject to restrictions, and varies from the nearly absolute freedom enjoyed, even as to ancestral property, by a Native of Bengal, to the comparatively limited authority of a Native of Madras or other territory subject to the law of the Mitákshará. The High Courts at Calcutta and Madras have held that a Hindú's testamentary power is only co-extensive with his independent power of alienation during life. The Bill adopts this ruling, and provides that nothing therein contained shall authorize a testator to bequeath property which he could not have alienated inter vivos. Connected with this provision is a clause expressly negativing the power of a Native testator to deprive his relatives of any right of maintenance which they would have possessed if he had died intestate.

The rest of the Bill extends to the wills of Hindús and Buddhists certain sections of the Succession Act.

Of these, section 46 declares the testamentary power, and will be read in connection with the limitation above-mentioned.

Sections 48, 49, 50, 51, 54, 55, 57, to 60 relate (inter alia) to the execution, revocation, and revival of wills and codicils. It will be seen that the Bill expressly provides that marriage shall not operate as a revocation. It is the opinion of competent authorities that in the case of a polygamist marriage does nto create such a change in the testator's condition as to raise a presumption that he would not adhere to a will made previously The principle, therefore, on which marriage revokes a will in England, does not apply.

Part XI of the Succession Act contains rules as to the construction of wills. Of these the Bill proposes to extend sections 61 to 77, and sections 82, 83, 85, and 88 to 98 (both inclusive). It omits sections 80 and 81, which provide rules for the cases of bequests to 'heirs,' 'next-of-kin,' 'nearest relation,' &c., or the 'representatives' of a particular person. These rules have been framed with reference to the English law of succession ab intestato, and are therefore in applicable to Natives.

By section 84, a bequest to A. and his children gives the whole interest to A. But the intentions of a Hindú testator, to whom the idea of a father and his sons being in a state of natural coparcenary is familiar, would probably be frustrated by the application of such a rule, which, therefore, has been omitted.

Section 86 ties down the construction of terms or relationship. Natives are generally so vague and inaccurate in using these terms that the section cannot safely be applied to their wills.

The general rule laid down by section 87, that words expressing relationship shall denote only legitimate relations, has also been omitted as being scarcely applicable to the wills of Hindús and Buddhists, whose notions as to legitimacy and illegitimacy are so different from those of Europeans.

Sections 179 to 264 relate to grants of probate and letters of administration. The Bill extends so much of them as relates to probate and grants cum testamento annexo, subject, however, to two modifications. Section 179 declares that all the property of the deceased person vests in the executor as such. This might give rise to a misconception, and the Bill expressly provides that nothing in the proposed Act shall vest in the executor or administrator with will annexed any property which the deceased could not have alienated during his life. And the Bill modifies sections 195, 198, 230 and 231 of the Succession Act so as to make it clear that the rules laid down in the 201st and the following sections, as to the order in which surviving relatives are entitled to administration in case of intestacy, do not apply to grants to Natives of letters of administration with will annexed. In such cases the practice will continue to be as at present, viz., to let the grant follow the interest.

As adoption is practised not only by Hindús, but by Buddhists, it has been necessary to provide that the words 'son,' 'child,' 'children,' when they occur in the sections extended, shall include an adopted son.

It may, in conclusion, be remarked that the testamentary clauses of the Succession Act apply to the Pársís: that most of these clauses were extended to the Oudh Taluqdárs by Act I of 1869, and that the similar provisions contained in the Indian Wills Act (XXV of 1838) have for the last twenty years applied to all classes in the Straits Settlement—Muhammadans, Hindús, and Chinese as well as Englishmen.

The following are the Conditions of Sale:—

1. The Opium will be sold for exportation by sea only, and no Certificate will be granted except to cover such export.

2. The Opium will be ordinarily offered for sale at an upset price of Rupees 800 per chest, and sold to the highest bidder above that price, except under the circumstances for which provision is made by Clause 12th of these Conditions of Sale.

3. The sale shall commence at the hour of 11 A. M. of the day fixed by previous notification, and shall not be continued after the hour of 5 P. M.; but if at that hour any of the lots advertised for sale shall remain unsold, the sale may, at the discretion of the Board of Revenue, be resumed on the next day following (not being Sunday or a public holiday) at the hour of 11 A. M., and so on until the whole of the remaining lots are disposed of, or, if the whole quantity advertised shall not be sold on the day appointed, the Board may dispose of the lots which remain on hand at a future sale.

4. Each lot shall contain five chests.

5. A Promissory Note for a sum calculated according to the scale noted in the margin shall be taken as a deposit on each lot from the purchaser in the sale-room, and before the lot is registered in the sale book, and all such Promissory Notes shall be redeemed on the part of the purchasers at this Office by Bank of Bengal receipts, or by substitution of other public securities of the Bengal Government, on or before 4 o'clock in the afternoon of the fifth day after the sale, or on the other hand, failing such redemption by the time aforesaid then the lot or lots for which no Bank of Bengal receipts, or deposit of other public securities as aforesaid shall have been delivered in, shall be re-sold at such time or times and under such conditions of re-sale as the Board of Revenue shall see fit, and all losses and expenses whatsoever attending such re-sale shall be borne and paid by the defaulters, whilst any profit accruing from such re-sale shall be forfeited to Government.

DEPOSIT.

When the amount bid is less than Rs 1,200 per chest, Rs. 200 per. chest.

On bids of Rs. 1,200 and upwards, but less than Rs. 1,600 per chest, Rs. 300 per chest.

On bids of Rs. 1,600 and upwards, but less than Rs. 2,000 per chest, Rs. 400 per chest.

And so on, Rs. 100 being added to the deposit for every bid additional to the extent of Rs. 400.

6. The Promissory Notes taken on the day of sale under the last mentioned condition, if remaining unredeemed at 4 o'clock of the fifth day following the day of sale, will be placed in the hands of the Solicitor to the Government for realization in such manner as to him shall seem fit.

7. No tender of money, Bank of Bengal receipts, or public securities, on account of Opium, upon which the prescribed deposit may not have been made before 4 o'clock of the fifth day following the day of sale, will be afterwards accepted.

8. The Opium advertised for sale shall be paid for within fifteen clear days from the day of sale, and in case any lots of such Opium shall not be so paid for and adjusted, then the cash deposit made under the fifth condition, or any public securities that may have been deposited on account of such lots or chests shall be forfeited, and the Opium shall be disposed of on account of Government at such time and in such manner as the Board of Revenue shall think fit, and the first purchaser shall further be required to make good any loss or difference of price between that obtained at the re-sale and the amount at which the Opium was first purchased, forfeiting all advantages that may arise from such re-sale.

9. Purchasers taking out Certificates or Orders for the delivery of Opium, after making full payment as above prescribed, shall have the option of naming the number of lots of their purchase, which they may desire to be included in each Certificate or Order, and it is to be clearly understood that the Certificates or Orders so taken out shall be considered final, and not afterwards changeable for other Certificates or Orders authorising the delivery of single lots, or of a different number of lots or chests, whether more or less than the number of lots or chests originally required to be included in each Certificate or Order.

10. No deposit of public securities under the fifth of the present Conditions will be received in this Office, except from the party recorded as the purchaser in the sale book, or his authorised Agent. The receipt for deposit of public securities will be granted only in the name of such purchaser, and the securities so deposited will be returned when payment in full has been made by the said purchaser or his order.

11. The Officer superintending the sale on the part of the Board of Revenue is empowered to reject, at his discretion, the bid of any individual, unless such individual shall, on demand, tender at the time a deposit either in Government of India Notes, Bank of Bengal receipts, or Government securities, a sum equal to the amount for which a Promissory Note would otherwise be taken under the fifth of these Conditions.

12. With a view to prevent fictitious biddings designed to obstruct the sale, it is hereby notified that the Officer of Government superintending the sale shall be competent, at any time during the sale, to withdraw any unsold lot, and immediately to put it up again for sale at a maximum upset price diminishing the same gradually until a bid is obtained, and the first bonâ fide bidder for a lot after it has been offered for sale in the mode here described shall be held and declared to be the purchaser of the said lot, and the Officer of Government superintending the sale shall also be competent to dispose, in the same manner, of as many of the subsequent lots as he may think proper, provided always that no lot shall be sold below the minimum price of 800 Rupees specified in the second of these Conditions.

13. The purchaser of any lot shall have the option of naming and purchasing in immediate succession, at the same price and under the same conditions, any number of lots of the same Agency Opium not exceeding altogether twenty-five lots, provided always that there remain a sufficient number of lots of the Opium to complete the said twenty-five.

14. In the event of any dispute or difference touching or concerning any matter or question arising out of the sale of the Opium included in this Notification, or adjustment of the account thereof, the same shall and may be tried and decided in the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

15. The following papers will be exhibited for inspection on the day of sale, or may be seen previously to that date by application at the Office of the Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue:—No. 1, Certificate of the Opium advertised for sale. No. 2, Report of the examination of such Opium.

16. The public are hereby informed that in providing the investment of the Behar and Benares Opium for the year 1868-69, the same precautions have been taken as those which have been observed during past years, to have the drug procured and sent down in a pure state, to have only the prescribed quantity of leaves used in forming the cakes, and to have the due proportion of Opium put into each cake. An account of the weight of the drug when packed at Behar and Benares, and a statement of the average weight of the chests, indiscriminately taken for the purpose of comparison from the despatches on arrival at Calcutta, may be seen on application at the Office of the Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue.

17. Any further information respecting weight or quality of the Opium advertised for sale that may be desired by parties connected with the trade, will, as heretofore, be furnished to them on application at the Office of the Board of Revenue. But, in accordance with established usage, under no circumstances will the Board entertain or recognise any claim to compensation for loss from any alleged deficiency of weight, abstraction of Opium or adulteration of the drug, which may be preferred on reference to chests, after the sale and delivery of the Opium for shipment.

18. It is hereby further notified that, under the 6th Article of the Convention between Great Britain and France, dated the 7th March 1815, quoted below, the Agents of India in the French Government, or persons duly appointed by them, are entitled to demand, that out of the quantities of Behar and Benares Opium declared as above for sale at the twelve sales of the year 1870, there shall be delivered to them, at the average of the particular sale or sales to which the Opium so applied for may belong, a quantity not exceeding in the aggregate 300 chests, and the Agents of the French Government must make requisition specifying the quantity of Opium required by them at any particular sale, within thirty days from the advertisement of such intended sale, provided, however, that the Agents of the French Government may make such requisition for the whole quantity within thirty days from the publication of this notification. If the Agents of the French Government shall not make the requisition for Opium within the time above mentioned, the entire quantity of about 48,000 chests of Behar and Benares as above estimated, will be brought to sale in the usual manner, and if they shall make application for a quantity of Opium to be delivered to them out of the quantity advertised for sale at each or any of the twelve sales abovementioned, but shall not pay for it within the prescribed period of payment, the Government of Bengal reserves to itself the right of disposing of the Opium which the French Authorities may so fail to pay for, either by increasing the quantity reserved at the sale next ensuing the date of payment, or by selling it at a sale to be held expressly for the purpose.

4. Lime Juice to which duty-paid spirits shall be added, can at once be removed to the vendor's stores immediately after attachment of the label.

5. Lime Juice to which duty-free spirits are to be added must be deposited in a Licensed Warehouse, either by the owner making arrangements for such deposit with some one who has already a License for a Warehouse for storing wines and spirits, or else by his taking out a License for a Warehouse himself under the terms of Act VI. of 1863—The Consolidated Customs' Act.

6. Lime Juice to which duty-free spirits are to be added, shall be dealt with as regards fortifying, bottling, and labelling, as laid down in Rules 2 and 3, but must be kept in a Licensed Warehouse.

3. Such fees as are for the time being chargeable in each of the High Courts established by Letters Patent and their several offices by virtue of the power conferred upon them by Statute twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth of Victoria, Chapter one hundred and four, section fifteen, or under Nos. 6 and 9 of the first, and Nos. 7, 9, 10 and 12 of the second, schedule to this Act annexed;

Computation of fees payable in certain suits.

7. The amount of fee payable under this Act in the suits next hereinafter mentioned shall be computed as follows:—

For money.

(1.) In suits for money (including suits for damages or compensation)——according to the amount claimed:

For other moveable property.

(2.) In suits for moveable property other than money——according to the market-value of the subject-matter of the suit at the date of filing the plaint, or (where the subject-matter has no market-value, as, for instance, in the case of accounts or of documents relating to title) according to the amount at which the subject-matter is estimated in the petition of plaint or appeal:

For maintenance and annuities.

(3.) In suits for maintenance and annuities——according to the value of the subject-matter of the suit, and such value shall be deemed to be ten times the amount claimed to be payable for one year:

For land.

(4.) In suits for land——according to the value of the subject-matter of the suit; and such value shall be deemed to be—

(a.) where the land forms an entire estate paying annual revenue to Government, or forms part of such an estate and is recorded in the Collector's register as separately assessed with such revenue, and such revenue is permanently settled, ten times the revenue so payable;

(b.) where the land forms part of an entire estate paying annual revenue to Government, or forms part of such estate and is recorded as aforesaid; and such revenue is settled but not permanently, five times the revenue so payable;

(c.) where the land pays no such revenue, fifteen times the net profits arising therefrom during the year next before the date of presenting the petition of plaint or appeal:

Proviso as to Bombay Presidency.

Provided that in the territories subject to the Governor of Bombay in Council, such value shall be deemed to be—

(a.) where the land is held on settlement for a period not exceeding thirty years and pays the full assessment to Government, a sum equal to five times the survey assessment;

(b.) where the land is held on a permanent settlement, or on a settlement, for any period exceeding thirty years, and pays the full assessment to Government, a sum equal to ten times the survey assessment; and

(c.) where the whole or any part of the annual survey assessment is remitted, a sum computed under clause (a.) or (b.) of this proviso, as the case may be, in addition to ten times the assessment or the portion of assessment, so remitted:

For houses, gardens, and portions of revenue-paying estates.

(5.) In suits for houses, for gardens and for land forming part of an estate paying revenue to Government, but not separately assessed as mentioned in paragraph four of this section,——according to the market-value of the subject-matter of the suit; and Between landlord and tenant.

(6.) In suits (other than suits for money) between landlord and tenant,——according to the amount of the rent of the land to which the suit refers payable for the year next before the date of filing the plaint.

Power to ascertain market-value or net profits.

8. In order to ascertain the market-value or the annual net profits of any such land, house or garden as is mentioned in section seven, paragraphs four and five, for the purpose of computing the fee leviable on the institution of a suit relating thereto, the Court may either of its own motion, or on the application of any party to the suit, issue a commission to any proper person directing him to make such local or other investigation as may be necessary, and to report thereon to the Court, and the decision of the Court as to such market-value or profits shall, for the purpose aforesaid, be final.

Procedure where market-value or net profits erroneously estimated.

9. If in the result of any such investigation the Court shall find that the market-value or net profits has or have been erroneously estimated, the Court shall either, as the case may be, refund the excess paid as such fee, or require the plaintiff to pay so much additional fee as would have been payable had the said market-value or net profits been correctly estimated; and in such case the suit shall be stayed until the additional fee shall have been paid.

Section 180 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall be construed as if the words "the market-value of any property in suit or" were inserted after the word "ascertaining," and as if the words "or annual net profits" were inserted after the word "damages."

Procedure in suits for mesne profits when profits decreed exceed profits claimed.

10. In suits for mesne profits or for immoveable property and mesne profits, if the profits decreed are in excess of the profits claimed, the decree shall not be executed until the difference between the fee actually paid and the fee which would have been payable had the suit comprised the whole of the profits so decreed shall have been paid to the proper officer.

Such difference shall be calculated by the Court according to the rules above-mentioned, and shall be costs in the suit.

Refund of fee paid on petition of appeal.

11. If an appeal or plaint, which has been rejected by the lower Court on any of the grounds mentioned in the Code of Civil Procedure, is ordered to be received, or if a suit is remanded in appeal, on any of the grounds mentioned in section 351 of the same Code, for a second decision by the lower Court, the appellate Court shall grant to the appellant a certificate, authorizing him to receive back from the Collector the full amount of fee paid on the petition of appeal:

Provided that, if, in the case of a remand in appeal, the order of remand shall not cover the whole of the subject-matter of the suit, the certificate so granted shall not authorize the appellant to receive back more than so much fee as would have been originally payable on the part or parts of such subject-matter in respect whereof the suit has been remanded.

Additional fee where respondent takes objection to unappealed part of decree.

12. When any appeal is presented to a Civil Court, not against the whole of a decision, but only against so much thereof as relates to a portion of the subject-matter of the suit, and, on the hearing of such appeal, the respondent takes, under section 348 of the Code of Civil Procedure, an objection to any part of the said decision other than the part appealed against, the Court shall not hear such objection until the respondent shall have paid the additional fee which would have been payable had the appeal comprised the part of the decision so objected to.

Such additional fee shall be calculated by the Court according to the rules above-mentioned, and shall be costs in the suit.

Decision of questions as to valuation.

13. All questions relating to valuation for the purpose of determining the amount of fee chargeable under this chapter on a petition of plaint or of appeal, shall be decided by the Court in which such petition is filed, and except as provided by section eight, shall be subject to any appeal to which the orders of such Court are open.

Act No. IX of 1869	The Indian Income-tax Act	In section 21, the words 'shall bear a stamp of one rupee and'
Bengal Act No. V of 1863	An Act to amend the law relating to the employment and remuneration of Peons for the service and execution of the process of the Civil and Revenue Courts.	Sections 7, 9 and 10.
Madras Regulation III of 1802.	A Regulation for receiving, trying and deciding suits on complaints declared cognizable in the Courts of Adawlut established in the several zillahs immediaiately subject to the Presidency of Fort St. George.	Section 21 from 'when' down to 'writing' (both inclusive).

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The rates of Stamp fees leviable in Courts and offices established beyond the local limits of the ordinary original Civil jurisdiction of the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay, and in proceedings on the appellate side of such High Courts, were, as fixed by Act XXVI of 1867, to a great extent tentative. The experience gained of their working during the two years in which they have been in force, seems to be conclusive as to their repressive effect on the general litigation of the country. It is, therefore, thought expedient to make a general reduction in the rates now chargeable on the institution of civil suits, and to revert to the principle of a maximum fee which obtained under the former law.

It is proposed also to reduce the valuation fixed by the existing law for the computation of the fee leviable on suits relating to land under temporary settlement or land exempt from the payment of revenue to the Government which is believed to be, at least relatively, excessive, as compared with the valuation of permanently-settled land; and to provide for the valuation of suits relating to mere parcels of land, which, though forming part of estates under settlement, bear no specific allotment of any portion of the assessment of Government revenue on such estates, at the estimated selling price of such land, as was the rule in those cases under Act X of 1862.

The want of some fixed valuation applicable to certain classes of suits—as for example, suits instituted between landlord and tenant to recover a right of occupancy or enforce ejectment, or suits for maintenance or for an annuity.—the subject-matter of which, though not absolutely indeterminable, is certainly not susceptible of ready determination, has given rise to much uncertainty and variety in the procedure adopted by the several Courts in such cases; and the amendment of the existing law in this respect is felt to be urgently called for.

In deference to the strong objections entertained by the local authorities in certain Provinces to the retention of the fee imposed on the presentation of certain petitions in the Criminal Courts, it is proposed to reduce the amount of such fee from one rupee to eight annas.

The uniform exaction of a fee of eight annas in the case of all petitions addressed to a Revenue Officer or a Magistrate, works harshly in its application to such communications when presented by persons having dealings or transactions with the Government in relation to such transactions. Equitable considerations require that petitions of this kind should be excepted from the operation of the general rule, and the Bill makes suitable provision for such cases.

The ad valorem fee now chargeable on summary suits instituted under Act XVI of 1838 and the Bombay Act (V of 1864) is represented as working unsatisfactorily, and the substitution of a fixed rate is recommended.

It is to be observed that an award in such cases is liable to be set aside by a judgment passed in regard to the same matter in a regular suit, hence it appears more equitable to treat these summary suits as miscellaneous applications and to subject them to a similar fixed institution-fee.

As the Bill provides for a considerable reduction of the fees heretofore chargeable on Civil suits of small amount, it seems unnecessary to maintain the present distinction between the Courts of Cantonment Joint-Magistrates and other Civil Courts in respect of the amount of fee leviable on the institution of such suits.

It is proposed also to exempt suits instituted in a Military Court of Requests from the payment of any fee. The constitution of such Courts is peculiar; they form no part of the regular machinery employed in the general administration of justice; the present measure therefore is inapplicable to them. Moreover, the suitor in such Courts is placed at this disadvantage as compared with suitors in the ordinary Civil Courts that, although he may gain his case, he is unable to recover the costs which he has incurred in prosecuting his claim: hence the incidence of the taxation imposed by the levy of an institution-fee in such cases is inequitable.

Suits for the restitution of wives, which are of common occurrence in the Panjáb, are held to be somewhat excessively taxed under the present law, which prescribes that in suits the money value of the subject-matter of which cannot be estimated, a fixed fee of Rs. 10 shall be levied; the Bill substitutes for that rate in such cases a special fee of Rs. 5.

The clause in Act XXVI of 1867, exempting Advocates of a High Court from the obligation of presenting to any Court a written authority empowering them to act in any case pending in such Court, is excluded from the Bill. Such a provision appears to be beyond the scope of an enactment for regulating the levy of Court fees. It is, moreover, open to the objection that it conflicts with Section 18 of the Civil Procedure Code, and consequently creates some doubt as to the intention of the Legislature.

As some measure of compensation for the loss of revenue which is expected to result from the general reduction of fees, it is proposed to discontinue the refund of any portion of the amount levied on the first institution of suits, and also to raise the fees heretofore chargeable on probates and letters of administration granted under the Indian Succession Act, and on certificates issued under Act XXVII of 1860, to the ad valorem rates leviable under the English law in like cases.

The abolition of refunds is justified by the consideration that for all practical purposes in the majority of cases, the plaintiff, whose suit has not gone beyond the stage at which under the present law he is entitled to recover a moiety of the institution-fee, has gained as much through the Court's agency as the suitor whose case has proceeded to a decision, and that therefore, on the principle on which all Court fees are adjusted, the former should contribute in equal proportion with the latter to the maintenance of the Courts from whose action both derive an equal benefit.

In lieu of the existing rates of process-fees, which vary according to the distance of the Court by which the processes are issued from the place where they are to be served or executed, it is proposed to levy, by means of stamps, an uniform rate in all cases. All suitors will thus be required to contribute in equal proportion to the maintenance of the establishment employed in the serving of processes, without reference to the length of time occupied in each service and the consequent amount of work rendered on behalf of each person at whose instance any process is served or executed.

Such a provision is in accordance with the modern system under which the charges in the Postal and Electric Telegraph Departments are regulated, and is also more equitable to the general community.

The incorporation of the High Court Fees Act (XV. of 1868 with, and the transfer of so much of the provisions of the Pársí Marriage and Divorce Act, 1865, the Native Converts' Marriage Dissolution Act, 1866, the Panjáb Tenancy Act, 1868, the Indian Divorce Act, and the Indian Income Tax Act, as relate to the levy of stamp fees in judicial proceedings to, the present Bill appear to be conducive to public convenience, as the whole of the existing law relative to fees leviable in all Courts of Justice will thus be contained in one enactment.

With the same object this Bill purports to effect a complete re-arrangement of the provisions of the existing law on this subject, a similar classification of instruments chargeable with Court fees to that which obtains in the General Stamp Act having been adopted, and the rules for determining the value of the subject-matter of certain suits being transferred from the Schedule where they are to be found in Act XXVI. of 1867, to the body of the proposed Act.

Lastly, that for the future there may be no confusion between stamp-revenue proper and the revenue derived from what have heretofore been termed 'judicial stamps,' the proceeds of the proposed enactment are to be designated Court fees, and the Bill is entitled accordingly.

When a notice has been already served under section sixteen of the said Act on a person chargeable with additional duty under the last preceding section, a supplementary notice shall be served upon him; and the provisions as to notices and receipts contained in the said Act shall, mutatis mutandis, apply respectively to such supplementary notices and to receipts granted for payments in pursuance thereof.

Bar of petitions in respect of additional duty.

7. No person shall be entitled, in respect only of the additional duty with which he is assessed under this Act, to apply by petition under section nineteen of the Indian Income Tax Act

This Act to be read with Act IX of 1868.

8. This Act shall be read with and taken as part of the Indian Income Tax Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE revision which has lately been made of the Estimates for the current year 1869-70, shows that the financial position of the Government of India is less favourable than was anticipated when the Budget Estimate was framed in March last; and it is clear that, unless remedial measures are at once adopted, the year will close with a serious deficit.

The reasons which have led the Government of India to this conclusion, have been given in detail in the Despatch to the Secretary of State, No. 240, dated the 20th September 1869, which is now before the public; and the Government has declared its determination to take immediate measures for placing the finances of the Empire on a thoroughly sound basis.

With the consent of the Governments of Madras and Bombay, an increase has been ordered in the duties levied on salt in those Presidencies; and it is now proposed to make an increase for the remainder of the year in the rate at which the Income Tax is levied under Act IX of 1869.

The present Bill proposes to increase the rate of Income Tax, for the second six months of the current financial year, from one to two per cent. The payment for the whole year will, therefore, be at the rate of one and a half instead of one per cent.

The alteration in the law can hardly come into full effect before the 1st December next. In the case of salaries, annuities, and pensions assessable under Part II of the Indian Income Tax Act, it is therefore proposed that the additional amount of duty shall be obtained by declaring that such salaries, annuities, or pensions becoming payable after the 30th November 1869, shall be subject, during the last four months of the current year, to a deduction of two and a half per cent. The total payment for the year will thus be raised to one and a half per cent.

Companies assessable under Part III of the Act will be called on to pay, on the 1st December 1869, an additional sum equal to one half of the duty already assessed or assessable.

In the case of all other incomes assessable under Part IV of the Act, the additional duty will be equal to one half the amount assessed or assessable under Schedule A of the Act. No further alterations in the existing system of taxation are contemplated by the Government during the present financial year.

The provisions of the present Bill will only have effect up to the end of the current financial year, when the financial position of the Government will necessarily be again brought under consideration.

The measures which have now been announced by the Government are designed solely to meet, as far as may be practicable, the deficit which we must anticipate for the present year.

Having thus stated the objects and reasons of this Bill,—which, although of a temporary character indicates, nevertheless, the determination of the Government to place the finances in a condition which shall preclude the probability of future deficits and the necessity for incurring debt to meet the ordinary charges of the year,—it is proper to notice the fact that much greater efforts must have been made, and more serious burdens must have been imposed on the public, but for the resolute determination of the Government to enforce economy in all departments of the administration.

In the Public Works Department, orders have already been issued, and are now before the public, the object of which is to reduce expenditure, during the remainder of the current year, to the extent of nearly £800,000.

In the Civil Departments, measures of economy are under consideration, and it is hoped that important reductions of expenditure will be found practicable, without any interference with the discharge of those great duties which we owe to the people of India.

In the Military Department, propositions for largely reducing the present expenditure have been submitted to Her Majesty's Government. It will be evident that questions affecting the organisation of the Army cannot be dealt with by the Government of India alone. It is confidently believed that it will be possible to effect a large reduction of Military expenditure without diminishing the actual numbers of the British Army in India, or in any way impairing our real military strength.

JOHN STRACHEY.

SIMLA,
The 2nd October 1869.

WHITLEY STOKES,
Secy. to the Council of the Govr.-Genl., for making Laws and Regulations.

Government of Bengal.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Act of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council received the assent of His Honor on the 21st August 1869, and having been assented to by His Excellency the Governor General on the 15th October 1869, is hereby promulgated for general information:—

ACT No. VIII OF 1869.

An Act to amend the Procedure in Suits between Landlords and Tenants.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the procedure in suits between Landlords and Tenants in the Provinces subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal; It is enacted as follows:—

Interpretation of "Collector."

I. In the construction of this Act the word "Collector" shall include a Deputy Collector in charge of a Sub-division or other officer exercising the powers of a Collector of a District or of a Deputy Collector in charge of a Sub-division, by whatever designation such officer may be called.

Ryots entitled to a pottah.

II. Every ryot is entitled to receive from the person to whom the rent of the land held or cultivated by him is payable, a pottah containing the following particulars:—

The quantity and boundaries of the land; and where fields have been numbered in a Government survey, the number of each field.

The amount of annual rent.

The instalments in which the same is to be paid.

And any special conditions of the lease.

If the rent is payable in kind, the proportion of produce to be delivered and the time and manner of delivery.

Ryots holding land at fixed rates to receive pottahs.

III. Ryots who, in any Province to which this Act may apply, hold lands at fixed rates of rent, which shall not have been changed from the time of the Permanent Settlement of such Province, are entitled to receive pottahs at those rates.

Presumption if rent of land be not changed for 20 years.

IV. Whenever, in any suit under this Act, it shall be proved that the rent at which land is held by a ryot in any such Province has not been changed for a period of twenty years before the commencement of the suit, it shall be presumed that the land has been held at that rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement, unless the contrary be shewn, or unless it be proved that such rent was fixed at some later period.

Ryots having right of occupancy, but not holding at fixed rates, to receive pottahs.

V. Ryots having rights of occupancy, but not holding at fixed rates as described in the two preceding Sections, are entitled to receive pottahs at fair and equitable rates. In case of dispute, the rate previously paid by the ryot shall be deemed to be fair and equitable, unless the contrary be shewn in a suit by either party under the provisions of this Act

Right of occupancy of ryot cultivating or holding land for 12 years.

VI. Every ryot who shall have cultivated or held land for a period of twelve years shall have a right of occupancy in the land so cultivated, or held by him, whether it be held under pottah or not, so long as he pays the rent payable on account of the same; but this rule does not apply to Khomar, Neejjote, or Seer land belonging to the proprietor of the estate or tenure and let by him on lease for a term, or year by year, nor (as respects the actual cultivator) to lands sub-let for a term, or year by year, by a ryot having a right of occupancy. The holding of the father or other person from whom a ryot inherits shall be deemed to be the holding of the ryot within the meaning of this Section.

Saving of terms of written contracts.

VII. Nothing in the last preceding Section shall be held to affect the terms of any written contract for the cultivation of land entered into between a land-holder and a ryot, when it contains any express stipulation contrary thereto.

Pottahs to which ryots not having rights of occupancy are entitled.

VIII. Ryots not having rights of occupancy are entitled to pottahs only at such rates as may be agreed on between them and the persons to whom the rent is payable.

If on trial of suit for delivery of pottah, parties do not agree as to the time for which the pottah is granted, Court to fix the time.

IX. If on the trial of a suit for the delivery of a pottah instituted by a ryot having a right of occupancy, the parties do not agree as to the term for which the pottah is to be granted, the Court shall fix such term as under the circumstances of the case may seem just and proper: provided that the term shall not in any case be longer than ten years, and, in estates not permanently settled, shall not extend beyond the period for which the proprietor of the estate has engaged with Government: provided also that if the defendant be a farmer or other person having only a temporary interest in the land, the term of the pottah shall not extend beyond the period of the continuance of such interest. For cultivators not having a right of occupancy, the term of pottah shall be exclusively in the discretion of the person entitled to the rent of the land.

Proviso.

Person granting pottah entitled to a counterpart engagement.

X. Every person who grants a pottah is entitled to receive from the person to whom the pottah is granted, a kubooliyet or counterpart engagement in conformity with the terms of the pottah. The tender to any ryot of a pottah, such as the ryot is entitled to receive, shall be held to entitle the person to whom the rent is payable to receive a kubooliyet from such ryot.

Damages for exactions in excess of rent or for receipt withheld.

Form of receipt.

XI. Every under-tenant or ryot, from whom any sum is exacted in excess of the rent specified in his pottah, or payable under the provisions of this Act, whether as abwab or under any other pretext, and every under-tenant, ryot, or cultivator, from whom a receipt is withheld for any sum of money paid by him as rent, shall be entitled to recover from the person receiving such rent, damages not exceeding double the amount so exacted or paid. Receipts for rent shall specify the year or years on account of which the rent is acknowledged to have been paid; and any refusal to make such specification shall be held to be a withholding of a receipt.

Landholder not to compel the attendance of tenant for adjustment of rent or for any other purpose.

XII. All power at any time heretofore vested in zemindars and other landholders, of compelling the attendance of their tenants for the adjustment of their rents, or for any other purpose, is withdrawn; and all such persons are prohibited from adopting any means of compulsion for enforcing payment of the rents due to them, other than by suit or distress or otherwise under the provisions of this Act.

Payment of rent to be enforced under this Act.

Damages for extorting payment of rent by duress.

XIII. If payment of rent, whether the same be legally due or not, is extorted from any under-tenant or ryot by illegal confinement or other duress, such under-tenant or ryot shall be entitled to recover such damages, not exceeding in any case the sum of two hundred Rupees, as may be deemed a reasonable compensation for the injury done him by such extortion. An award of compensation under this Section shall not bar or affect any penalty or punishment to which the person practising such extortion may be subject by law.

Enhancement of rent of ryot holding without, or after expiry, &c., of written engagements.

XIV. No under-tenant or ryot, who holds or cultivates land without a written engagement, or under a written engagement not specifying the period of such engagement, or whose engagement has expired or has become cancelled in consequence of the sale for arrears of rent or revenue of the tenure or estate in which the land held or cultivated by him is situate, and has not been renewed, shall be liable to pay any higher rent for such land than the rent payable for the previous year, unless a written notice shall have been served on such under-tenant or ryot, in districts or parts of districts where the Fuslee year prevails, in or before the month of Jeyt, and in districts or parts of districts where the Bengalee year prevails, in or before the month of Poos, specifying the rent to which he will be subject for the ensuing year, and the ground on which an enhancement of rent is claimed. Such notice shall be served by order of the Collector in whose jurisdiction the lands are situate, on the application (which may be on plain paper) of the person to whom the rent is payable, and shall, if practicable, be served personally upon the under-tenant or ryot. If for any reason the notice cannot be served personally upon the under-tenant or ryot, it shall be affixed at his usual place of residence; or, if he have no such place of residence in the District in which the land is situate, the mode of service of such notice shall be by affixing it at the Mal

Cutcherry of such land or other conspicuous place thereon, or at the village Chowree or Chowpal, or at some other conspicuous place in the village in which the land is situate.

Mode of contesting enhancement of rent.

XV. Any under-tenant or ryot, on whom such notice as aforesaid has been served, may contest his liability to pay the enhanced rent demanded of him either by complaint of excessive demand of rent as hereinafter provided, or in answer to any suit preferred against him for recovery of arrears of the enchanced rent.

Dependent talookdar, &c., holding land at fixed rent without change since Permanent Settlement, not liable to enhancement of rent.

XVI. No dependent talookdar, or other person possessing a permanent transferable interest in land intermediate between the proprietor of an estate and the ryot, who, in any province to which the provisions of this Act may apply, holds his talook or tenure (otherwise than under a terminable lease) at a fixed rent which has not been changed from the time of the Permanent Settlement, shall be liable to any enhancement of such rent, anything in Section LI, Regulation VIII of 1793, or in any other law, to the contrary notwithstanding.

Rent of talookdar, &c., not changed for twenty years, to be primâ facie evidence of occupancy at that rent since the Permanent Settlement.

XVII. Whenever, in any suit under this Act, it shall be proved that the rent at which a talook or other tenure is held in the said provinces has not been changed for a period of twenty years before the commencement of the suit, it shall be presumed that such talook or tenure has been held at that rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement, unless the contrary be shewn, or it be proved that such rent was fixed at some later period.

Grounds on which ryot having right of occupancy is liable to enhanced rent.

XVIII. No ryot having a right of occupancy shall be liable to an enhancement of the rent previously paid by him, except on some one of the following grounds, namely:—

That the rate paid by him is below that prevailing in adjacent places.

That the rate of rent paid by such ryot is below the prevailing rate payable by the same class of ryots for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the places adjacent.

That the value of the land, &c., has increased independently of the ryot.

That the value of the produce or the productive powers of the land have been increased otherwise than by the agency or at the expense of the ryot.

That the quantity of land held by the ryot is greater than he has paid rent for.

That the quantity of land held by the ryot has been proved by measurement to be greater than the quantity for which rent has been previously paid by him.

When ryot may claim abatement of rent.

XIX. Every ryot having a right of occupancy shall be entitled to claim an abatement of the rent previously paid by him, if the area of the land has been diminished by diluvion or otherwise, or if the value of the produce or the productive powers of the land have been decreased by any cause beyond the power of the ryot, or if the quantity of land held by the ryot has been proved by measurement to be less than the quantity for which rent has been previously paid by him.

Relinquishment of land by ryot after notice given.

XX. Any ryot, who desires to relinquish the land held or cultivated by him, shall be at liberty to do so, provided he gives notice of his intention, in writing, to the person entitled to the rent of the land, or his authorized agent, in districts or parts of districts where the Fuslee year prevails, in or before the month of Jeyt, and in districts or parts of districts where the Bengalee year prevails, in or before the month of Poos, of the year preceding that in which the relinquishment is to have effect. If he fail to give such notice, and the land is not let to any other person, he shall continue liable for the rent of the land. If the person entitled to the rent of the land, or his agent, refuse to receive any such notice, and to sign a receipt for the same, the ryot may make an application on plain paper to the Collector, in whose jurisdiction the lands are situate, who shall thereupon cause the notice to be served on such person or his agent in the manner provided in Section XIV.

What to be deemed an arrear of rent under this Act.

XXI. Any instalment of rent which is not paid on or before the day when the same is payable according to the pottah or engagement, or if there be no written specification of the time of payment, at or before the time when such instalment is payable according to established usage, shall be held to be an arrear of rent under this Act, and, unless otherwise provided by written agreement, shall be liable to interest at twelve per centum per annum.

Liability of ryot to be ejected for arrear due.

XXII. When an arrear of rent remains due from any ryot at the end of the Bengal year, or at the end of the month of Jeyt of the Fuslee or Willayutee year, as the case may be, such ryot shall be liable to be ejected from the land in respect of which the arrear is due: provided that no ryot having a right of occupancy, or holding under a pottah the term of which has not expired, shall be ejected otherwise than in execution of a decree or order under the provisions of this Act.

Liability of farmer to have his lease cancelled for arrear adjudged due.

XXIII. When an arrear of rent shall be adjudged to be due from any farmer or other lease-holder not having a permanent or transferable interest in the land, the lease of such lease-holder shall be liable to be cancelled, and the lease-holder to be ejected, provided that no such lease shall be cancelled nor the lease-holder ejected otherwise than in execution of a decree or order under the provisions of this Act.

Proviso.

Suits by or against Surburakars or Tehseeldars of estates held khas.

XXIV. All suits which under the provisions of this Act may be brought by or against zemindars or other persons in the receipt of the rent of land, may be brought by or against Surburakars or Tehseeldars of estates held under khas management, whether such estates are the property of Government or of individuals.

Proprietor's right to survey and measure his estate.

XXV. Every proprietor of an estate or tenure, or other person in receipt of the rents of an estate or tenure, has the right of making a general survey and measurement of the lands comprised in such estate or tenure, or any part thereof, unless restrained from doing so by express engagement with the occupants of the lands.

Registry of transfers of talookdars, &c.

XXVI. All dependent talookdars and other persons possessing a permanent transferable interest in land intermediate between the zemindar and the cultivator, are required to register, in the Sheristah of the zemindar or superior tenant to whom the rents of their talooks or tenures are payable, all transfers of such talooks or tenures, or portions of them, by sale, gift, or otherwise, as well as all successions thereto, and divisions among heirs in cases of inheritance. And every zemindar or superior tenant is required to admit to registry and otherwise give effect to all such transfers when made in good faith, and all such successions and divisions. Provided that no zemindar or superior tenant shall be required to admit to registry, or give effect to any division or distribution of the rent payable on account of any such tenure, nor shall any such division or distribution of rent be valid and binding without the consent in writing of the zemindar or superior tenant.

Limitation of certain suits.

XXVII. All suits instituted for the recovery of damages an account of the illegal exaction of rent, or of any unauthorized cess or impost, or on account of the refusal of receipts for rent paid, or on account of the extortion of rent by confinement or other duress, or on account of the excessive demand of rent, and all suits for abatement of rent, and all suits to eject any ryot or to cancel any lease on account of the non-payment of arrears of rent or of the breach of the conditions of any contract by which a ryot may be liable to be ejected, or a lease may be liable to be cancelled, and all suits to recover the occupancy of any land, farm, or tenure from which a ryot, farmer, or tenant has been illegally ejected by the person entitled to receive rent for the same, and all suits arising out of the exercise of the power of distraint for arrears of rent conferred on zemindars and others, by this or any other Act or out of any acts done under color of the exercise of the said power shall be commenced within the period of one year from the date of the accruing of the cause of action and not afterwards.

Limitation of suits for grant of pottahs, &c.

XXVIII. Suits for the delivery of pottahs or kubooliyets, and for the determination of the rates of rent at which such pottahs or kubooliyets are to be delivered, may be instituted at any time during the tenancy.

Limitation of suits for arrears of rent.

XXIX. Suits for the recovery of arrears of rent shall be instituted within three years from the last day of the Bengal year, or from the last day of the month of Jeyt of the Fuslee or Willayutee year, in which the arrear claimed shall have become due: Provided that if the suit be for the recovery of rent at a higher rate than was payable in the previous year, such rent having been enhanced after issue of notice under Section XIII of Act X of 1859, or under Section XIV of this Act; and the enhancement not having been confirmed by any competent Court, the suit shall be instituted within three months from the end of the Bengal year, or of the month of Jeyt of the Fuslee or Willayutee year, on account of which such enhanced rent is claimed.

Limitation of suits against agents for money, papers, or accounts.

XXX. Suits for the recovery of money in the hands of an agent, or for the delivery of accounts or papers by an agent, may be brought at any time during the agency or within one year after the determination of the agency of such agent: Provided that if the person having the right to sue shall, by means of fraud, have been kept from the knowledge of the receipt of any such money by the agent, or if any fraudulent account shall have been rendered by the agent, the suit may be brought within one year from the time when the fraud shall have been first known to such person; but no such suit shall in any case be brought at any time exceeding three years from the termination of the agency.

Suit for further balance to be instituted within six months of service of notice of deposit.

XXXI. Whenever a deposit on account of rent shall have been made under the provisions of this Act, or of Act VI of 1862, passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council, no suit shall be brought against the person making the deposit, or his representatives, on account of any rent which accrued due prior to the date of the deposit, unless such suit be instituted within six months from the date of the service of the notice in Section V of the said Act VI of 1862, or in Section XLVII of this Act mentioned.

Naibs or Gomastahs to be deemed in certain cases authorized agents under Act VIII of 1859.

XXXII. Every Naib or Gomastah thereto specially authorized by any writing under the hand of his employer shall, for the purposes of all suits for any of the causes of action mentioned in Section XXVII, XXVIII, XXIX, or XXX, of this Act, be deemed to be the recognised Agent of such employer within the meaning of Section XIII of the said Act VIII of 1859, though such employer may be within the jurisdiction of the Court in which such Naib or Gomastah may appear or make any application.

Cognizance of suits under this Act.

XXXIII. From and after the time when this Act shall commence and take effect in any place, the jurisdiction, save as regards any suits or proceedings then pending, of the Collectorate Courts in such place, under Act X of 1859 of the Governor-General in Council, and Act VI of 1862 of the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, to entertain suits, shall cease: and all suits brought for any cause of action arising under either of those Acts or this Act shall, from such time and in such place, be cognizable by the Civil Courts according to their several jurisdictions.

Proceedings to be regulated under Code of Civil Procedure.

XXXIV. Save as in this Act is otherwise provided, suits of every description brought for any cause of action arising under this Act, and all proceedings therein, shall be regulated by the Code of Civil Procedure passed by the Governor-General in Council, being Act No. VIII. of 1859, and by such further and other enactments of the Governor-General in Council in relation to Civil Procedure as now are or from time to time may be in force; and all the provisions of the said Act and of such other enactments shall apply to such suits.

Jurisdiction in certain suits.

XXXV. The cause of action in suits brought for the delivery of any pottah or kubooliyet, or for the cancelment of any lease, for the determination of rates of rent, for illegal exactions of rent, cess, or impost, for refusal of receipts for rent paid, for extortion of rent, for excessive demand of rent, for abatement of rent, for arrears of rent, and for refusing to register transfers, successions, or divisions under Section XXVI, shall be deemed to have arisen within the jurisdiction of the Court which would have had jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the recovery of the land or other immoveable property in relation to which the cause of action arose, and shall be brought in such Court and in no other Court.

Provision when cause of action arises in different jurisdictions.

XXXVI. If the land which by the provisions of the next preceding Section determines the place in which the cause of action in the suits in the said Section mentioned shall be deemed to have arisen, be situate within the jurisdiction of different Courts, the provisions of Sections XI and XII of the said Act VIII of 1859, shall apply to such suits, as if the same had been suits for the recovery of such land.

Proceedings in case of opposition made to the measurement of land.

XXXVII. If any person, intending to measure any land which he has a right to measure, is opposed in making such measurement by the occupant of the land; or if any under-tenant or ryot, having received notice of the intended measurement, of land held or cultivated by him, which is liable to such measurement, refuses to attend and point out such land, the person claiming the right to measure such land may apply to establish his right to measure such land, in the Court which would have had jurisdiction in case such suit had been brought for the recovery of such land, and such Court shall hear and determine the right to make such measurement, and, if the case shall so require, shall make an order enjoining or excusing the attendance of any such under-tenant or ryot. If any under-tenant or ryot, after the issue of an order enjoining his attendance, neglects to attend and to point out the land, it shall not be competent to him to contest the correctness of the measurement made, or any of the proceedings held, in his absence.

Measurement of land when it cannot be ascertained who are the persons liable to pay rent.

XXXVIII. If the proprietor of an estate or tenure, or other person entitled to receive the rents of an estate or tenure, is unable to measure the lands comprised in such estate or tenure, or any part thereof, by reason that he cannot ascertain who are the persons liable to pay rent in respect of the lands, or any part of the lands comprised therein, such proprietor or other person may apply to the Court which would have had jurisdiction in case a suit had been brought for the recovery of such lands, and such Court thereupon, and on the necessary costs being deposited therein by the applicant, shall order such lands to be measured, and shall cause a copy of such order to be transmitted to the Collector in whose jurisdiction the lands are situate, together with the sum so deposited for costs, and the Collector shall thereupon proceed to measure such lands, and shall ascertain and record the names of the persons in occupation of the same, or, on the special application of the proprietor or other person aforesaid, but not otherwise, shall proceed to ascertain, determine, and record the tenures and under-tenures, the rates of rent payable in respect of such lands, and the persons by whom respectively the rents are payable. If after due enquiry the Collector shall be unable to cause such lands to be measured, or to ascertain or record the names of the persons in occupation of the same, or if he shall (in any case in which such special application shall have been made as aforesaid) be unable to ascertain who are the persons having tenures or under-tenures in such lands, or any part thereof, then and in any such case such Collector may declare the same to have lapsed to the party on whose application such enquiry may have been made. If any person, within fifteen days after such Collector shall have recorded the name of such person as being in occupation of such land, or any part thereof, or shall have declared a tenure to have lapsed, shall appear and show good and sufficient cause for his previous non-appearance, and satisfy such Collector that there has been a failure of justice, such Collector may, upon such terms or conditions as may seem fit, alter or rescind such order according to the justice of the case.

Proceedings on completion of such measurement.

XXXIX. The Collector shall, as soon as conveniently may be after he shall have finally completed any such measurement and record, return a copy thereof to the Court by which such measurement had been ordered, and such Court shall receive and record the same; and every decision of the Collector made in pursuance of the provisions of Section XXXVIII shall be appealable as if the same had been an order of the Court into which such copy had been returned, made upon the day on which such copy was so returned; but save as aforesaid, every decision of such Collector made in pursuance of the provisions of Section XXXVIII shall be final.

Collector's powers.

XL. The provisions of the said Act VIII of 1859 and the Acts amending the same, or of any other Act or Acts for the time being in force in Civil Courts in Bengal, relating to the evidence of witnesses, to procuring the attendance of witnesses and the production of documents, and to the examination, remuneration, and punishment of witnesses, shall apply to all proceedings before any Collector under Section XXXVIII; and for the purposes aforesaid, the Collector shall have all the powers and authorities in and by such Acts or any of them conferred upon the Court.

XLI. All measurements made under this Act shall be made according to the standard pole of measurement of the Pergunnah in which the land is situated.

XLIII. In any suit hereafter to be brought for the recovery of an arrear of rent, the plaint shall specify the name of the village and estate, and of the pergunnah or other local division in which the land is situate, the yearly rent of the land, the amount (if any) received on account of the year for which the claim is made, the amount in arrear, and the time in respect of which it is alleged to be due. If the arrear is alleged to be due from any ryot, the plaint shall further specify the quantity of land; and where fields have been numbered in a Government Survey, the number (if it be possible to give it) of each field.

The Court may in certain cases award to the plaintiff additional damages not exceeding 25 per cent.

XLIV. In any suit hereafter to be brought for rent under the provisions of this Act, if it shall appear to the Court that the defendant has, without reasonable or probable cause, neglected or refused to pay the amount due by him, and that he has not, before the institution of the suit, tendered such amount to the plaintiff or his duly authorized agent, or in case of the refusal of the plaintiff or such agent to receive the amount tendered, has not deposited such amount in the Court before the institution of the suit in manner hereinafter mentioned, it shall be lawful for the Court to award to the plaintiff, in addition to the amount decreed for rent and costs, such damages not exceeding twenty-five per centum on the amount of rent decreed, as the Court may think fit. These damages, if awarded, as well as the amount of rent and costs decreed in the suit, shall carry interest at the rate of twelve per centum per annum from the date of decree until payment thereof.

The Court may award compensation not exceeding 25 per cent. on the amount sued for, to a defendant improperly sued.

XLV. In any suit hereafter to be brought for rent under the provisions of this Act, if it shall appear to the Court that the plaintiff has instituted the suit against the defendant without reasonable or probable cause, or that the defendant had before the institution of the suit duly deposited in the Court, in the manner hereinafter mentioned, the full amount which the Court shall find to have been due to the plaintiff at the date of such deposit, it shall be lawful for the Court to award to the defendant, by way of compensation, such sum, not exceeding twenty-five per centum on the whole amount claimed by the plaintiff, as the Court may think fit; and such sum, with interest at the rate of twelve per centum per annum until payment thereof, shall be recoverable from the plaintiff in like manner as sums ordered to be paid by decrees of such Court.

Under-tenant or ryot may, after tender, &c., pay into Court, without any action being brought against him, what he admits to be due to his zemindar, &c.

XLVI. If any under-tenant or ryot shall, at the Mal Cutcherry for the receipt of rents or other place where the rents of the land or other immoveable property held or cultivated by him are usually payable, tender payment of what he shall consider to be the full amount of rent due from him at the date of the tender to the zemindar or other person in receipt of the rent of such land; and if the amount so tendered shall not be accepted, and a receipt in full shall not be forthwith granted, it shall be lawful for the under-tenant or ryot, without any suit having been instituted against him, to deposit such amount in the Court having jurisdiction to entertain a suit for such rent, to the credit of the zemindar or other person aforesaid; and such deposit shall, so far as the under-tenant or ryot, and all persons claiming through or under him, are concerned, in all respects operate as, and have the full effect of, a payment then made by the under-tenant or ryot of the amount deposited to such zemindar or other person.

Payment into Court to have effect of payment to zemindar or other person entitled.

Proceedings on making a payment into Court and drawing out the money.

Such deposit shall be received in such Court on the application of the under-tenant or ryot, or his agent, made in writing, and on the under-tenant, or ryot, or his agent, making a declaration in the form, or, as nearly as circumstances will admit in the form set forth in the Schedule (A) hereto annexed, and the Court shall give a receipt for the same under its seal. If the declaration shall contain any averment which the person making the declaration shall know or believe to be false, or shall not know or believe to be true, such person shall be subject to punishment according to the law for the time being in force for the punishment of giving or fabricating false evidence. Upon receiving the money so deposited, the Court shall issue a notice to the person to whose credit it has been deposited, in the form set forth in the Schedule (B) hereto annexed; and such notice shall be served by the Court, without the payment of any fee, either upon the person to whom it is addressed, or upon his Naib, Gomashtah, or other agent; and in the absence of any such agent, it shall be served by sticking up a copy of the same in the said Court, and another copy upon the Mal Cutcherry for the receipt of rents, or other place where the rents are usually paid for the land in respect of which the money has been deposited. If the person to whom such notice is issued, or his duly authorized agent, shall appear and apply that the money in deposit be paid to him, it shall be immediately made over to him.

After action brought defendant may pay into Court, without costs, money tendered before action brought.

XLVIII. The defendant in any suit instituted under any of the provisions of this Act, may, if he have duly tendered the same to the plaintiff before the institution of the suit, pay into Court such sum of money as such defendant may consider to be due to the plaintiff without paying in any costs incurred by the plaintiff up to the time of such payment, and such sum shall be immediately paid out of Court to the plaintiff. If after such payment the plaintiff elects to proceed in the suit, and ultimately recovers no further sum than shall have been paid into Court, the plaintiff shall be charged with the whole costs of the suit incurred by the defendant; but if the plaintiff ultimately recovers a further sum than shall have been paid into Court, the defendant shall be charged with the whole costs of the suit.

Costs if plaintiff goes on and recovers no more.

If no previous tender has been made, defendant may pay into Court what he admits to be due, with costs on that sum.

XLIX. The defendant in any suit instituted under any of the provisions of this Act, may, without having made any tender before action brought, pay into Court such sum of money as he shall consider to be due to the plaintiff, together with the costs (to be fixed by the Court, if necessary, as of a suit originally instituted for the amount so paid into Court) incurred by the plaintiff up to the time of such payment, and such sum shall immediately be paid out of Court to the plaintiff. If after such payment the plaintiff elects to proceed in the suit and ultimately recovers no further sum than shall have been paid into Court, he shall be charged with all costs incurred by the defendant subsequently to such payment; but if the plaintiff ultimately recovers a further sum than shall have been paid into Court, the defendant shall be charged with costs as upon a suit originally instituted, for the whole amount for which the plaintiff ultimately obtains a decree, but shall have credit thereout for the amount of costs paid into Court by him in the first instance.

No warrant of arrest before judgment.

L. No warrant of arrest before judgment shall be issued in a suit for arrears of rent due in respect of a dependent talook or other transferable tenure, which may be liable to sale in execution of any decree which may be passed in the case.

Mesne profits may be claimed in suits for recovery of land.

LI. It shall be lawful for any person entitled to recover the possession of land under any of the provisions of this Act, to include in his plaint a claim for the mesne profits of the land.

Suits for ejectment or cancelment of lease.

LII. Any person desiring to eject a ryot or to cancel a lease on account of non-payment of arrears of rent, may sue for such ejectment or cancelment and for recovery of the arrear in the same action, or may adduce any unexecuted decree for arrears of rent as evidence of the existence of such arrear in a suit for such ejectment or cancelment. In all cases of such suits for the ejectment of a ryot or the cancelment of a lease, the decree shall specify the amount of the arrear, and if such amount, together with interest and costs of suit, be paid into Court within fifteen days from the date of the decree, execution shall be stayed.

Court to issue immediate execution in certain cases.

LIII. Whenever in any suit brought by any zemindar or other person in receipt of the rent of land, to eject any cultivator not having a right of occupancy, or to eject any farmer or other tenant holding only for a limited period after the determination of his lease or tenancy, or any agent after the determination of his agency, or to enforce any attachment or ejectment expressly authorised by any Regulation or Act, the Court shall pass a decree in favor of the plaintiff, no application in the form provided in Section 212 of the said Act VIII of 1859 shall be necessary, but the Court shall forthwith, upon the plaintiff depositing in Court the necessary expenses, make an order for delivery of possession in execution of the decree. Provided, however, that in cases to which Section LII of this Act is applicable, no such order shall be made until after the expiration of fifteen days from the date of the decree.

In such cases execution not to be stayed pending appeal.

LIV. It shall not be lawful for the Court to entertain any application for stay of execution of any such order pending any appeal, and no person who shall have been evicted under any such order shall be restored to possession so long as the decree under which such order was issued shall remain unreversed.

If person required by the decree refuse to grant pottah, Court may do so.

LV. When a decree is given for the delivery of a pottah, if the person required by the decree to grant such pottah refuse or delay to grant the same, the Court may grant a pottah in conformity with the terms of the decree under the signature and seal of such Court, and such pottah shall be of the same force and effect as if granted by the person aforesaid.

Refusal to execute kubooliyet as required by the decree.

LVI. When a decree is given for the delivery of a kubooliyet, if the person required by the decree to execute such kubooliyet shall refuse to execute the same, the decree shall be evidence of the amount of rent claimable from such person, and a copy of the decree under the signature and seal of the Court shall be of the same force and effect as a kubooliyet executed by the said person.

Process not to issue simultaneously against both person and property.

LVII. Process of execution in any suit instituted under this Act may be issued against either the person or the property of a judgment-debtor, but process shall not be issued simultaneously against both the person and property.

No execution to be issued after three years from date of judgment.

LVIII. No process of execution of any description whatsoever shall be issued on a judgment in any suit for any of the causes of action mentioned in Section XXVII, XXVIII, XXIX, or XXX, of this Act, after the lapse of three years from the date of such judgment, unless the judgment be for a sum exceeding five hundred Rupees, in which case the period within which execution may be had shall be regulated by the general rules in force in respect to the period allowed for the execution of decrees of the Court.

Procedure on sale of under tenure.

LIX. Whenever a decree may be passed for an arrear of rent due in respect of an under-tenure which by the title-deeds or the custom of the country is transferable by sale, and the judgment-creditor shall make application for the attachment and sale of such under-tenure, the Court shall, so soon as such under-tenure shall have been ordered to be sold, cause to be hung up in some conspicuous part of the building in which such Court sits, and of the buildings in which the Collector and Judge of the District within which the land comprised in such under-tenure is situate, and to be affixed on some conspicuous place on such land and on some conspicuous place in the town or village in or nearest to which such land is situate, a notice for the sale of such under-tenure on some fixed date not less than twenty days from the hanging up of such notice in such Court.

Contents of notice of sale of under-tenure.

LX. Every such notice shall specify in the words used in the plaint in the suit in which the decree was made, the name of the village, estate, and pergunnah, or other local division in which the land comprised in the said under-tenure is situated, the yearly rent payable under the said under-tenure, and the gross amount recoverable under the said decree.

Under-tenures not to be sold while other execution in force.

LXI. No order for the sale of any such under-tenure shall be made in execution of a decree for recovery of arrears of rent payable in respect thereof, when a warrant of execution has been previously issued against the person or moveable property of the judgment-debtor, so long as such warrant remains in force. If, after sale of any such under-tenure in execution of such decree, any portion of the amount decreed remains due, process may be applied for and issued against any other property, moveable or immoveable, belonging to the debtor.

How the sale may be stayed by person interested in under-tenure.

LXII. If the sum due under the decree, together with interest to date of payment, and all costs of process, be paid into Court at any time before the sale commences, whether by the defaulting holder of the under-tenure or any one on his behalf, or any one interested in the protection of the under-tenure, such sale shall not take place; and the provisions of Section 13 of Regulation VIII of 1819, for the recovery of sums paid by persons other than the defaulting holder of the under-tenure, to stay the sale of the under-tenure, shall be applicable to all similar payments made under this Section.

If third party claim to be the lawful possessor of such under-tenure, Court to stay the sale and to enquire into, and adjudicate upon, the claim, upon decree being paid or secured.

LXIII. If after attachment and before sale of any such under-tenure as aforesaid in execution of a decree for arrears of rent due in respect of such under-tenure, any third party may prefer a claim alleging that such third party and not the person against whom the decree has been obtained, is the proprietor of such under-tenure, and was in lawful possession of the same at the time when such decree was obtained, the Court shall not postpone such sale, unless and until such third party shall have deposited in Court the amount of the decree, or given sufficient security for the same. Provided always that no transfer of an under-tenure which, by the provisions of this Act or any other law for the time being in force, is required to be registered in the Sherishtah of the zemindar or superior tenant, shall be recognized unless it has been so registered, or unless sufficient cause for non-registration be shewn to the satisfaction of the Court.

Non-registered transfers not to be recognized.

Execution of decrees given in favor of sharers in undivided estates or tenures.

LXIV. If a decree is given in favor of a sharer in a joint undivided estate, dependent talook, or other similar tenure, for money due to him on account of his share of the rent of an under-tenure, situate in such undivided estate, talook, or tenure, no order for the sale of such under-tenure in execution of such decree, shall be made unless and until all moveable property, (if any), which such judgment-debtor may possess within the jurisdiction of the Court in which the suit was instituted, shall have been seized and sold in execution of such decree, and the sale of such property, if any, shall have proved insufficient to satisfy the judgment. In such case such under-tenure, if of the nature described in Section LIX, may be seized and sold in execution of such decree, according to the ordinary procedure of the Court and not in the manner provided in the said Section, and every such sale shall have such and the same effect as the sale of any immoveable property sold in execution of a decree not being for arrears of rent payable in respect thereof.

Execution of judgment.

LXV. In the execution of any decree for the payment of any money under this Act, not being money due as arrears of rent of a saleable under-tenure, if satisfaction of the judgment cannot be obtained by execution against the person or moveable property of the debtor within the district in which the suit was instituted, the judgment-creditor may apply for execution against any immoveable property belonging to such debtor.

Purchaser to acquire the under-tenure, with certain exceptions, free of incumbrances.

LXVI. The purchaser of an under-tenure under the provisions of Sections LIX and LX of this Act shall acquire it free of all incumbrances which may have accrued thereon by any act of any holder of the said under-tenure, his representatives or assignees, unless the right of making such incumbrances shall have been expressly vested in the holder by the written engagement under which the under-tenure was created, or by the subsequent written authority of the person who created it, his representatives or assignees: provided that nothing herein contained shall be held to entitle the purchaser to eject khoodkhast ryots or resident and hereditary cultivators, nor to cancel bonâ fide engagements made with ryots or cultivators of the classes aforesaid by any holder of the under tenure or his representatives, except it be proved in a regular suit to be brought by such purchaser for the adjustment of his rent, that a higher rent would have been demandable at the time such engagements were contracted by his predecessor. Nothing in this section shall be held to apply to the purchase of a tenure by the previous holder thereof through whose default the tenure was brought to sale.

Zemindar how to proceed if purchaser do not register.

LXVII. The purchaser of an under-tenure sold under this Act shall apply to the zemindar or other landholder within fifteen days from the day of sale to have his name registered in the zemindar or other landholder's books as the purchaser, and shall execute a kabooliyet on the same terms and conditions on which the under-tenure was held by the defaulter; and if such application be not made within fifteen days, it shall be lawful for the zemindar or other landholder to sue the said purchaser for the delivery of a kabooliyet.

Produce of the land to be held hypothecated for the rent.

Arrears of rent may be recovered by distraint under the following rules.

Cultivators who have given security to be exempt from distraint.

LXVIII. The produce of the land is held to be hypothecated for the rent payable in respect thereof; and when an arrear of rent, as defined in Section XXI of this Act, is due from any cultivator of land, the zemindar, lakhrajdar, farmer, dependent talookdar, under-farmer, or other person entitled to receive the rent of such land immediately from the actual cultivator thereof, instead of bringing suit for the arrear as hereinbefore provided, may recover the same by distraint and sale of the produce of the land on account of which the arrear is due, under the following rules. Provided always that, when a cultivator has given security for the payment of his rent, the produce of the land for the rent of which security has been given, shall not be liable to distraint.

Proviso.

Provided also that no sharer in a joint estate, dependent talook, or other tenure in which a division of lands has not been made amongst the sharers, shall exercise the power of distraint otherwise than through a manager authorised to collect the rents of the whole estate, talook or tenure, on behalf of all the sharers in the same.

No distraint in certain cases.

LXIX. Distraint shall not be made for any arrear which has been due for a longer period than one year; nor for the recovery of any sum in excess of the rent payable for the same land in the preceding year, unless a written engagement for the payment of such excess has been executed by the cultivator.

Power of distraint to be exercised by managers under the Court of Wards, &c.

LXX. The power of distraint vested by Section LXVIII in zemindars and other persons entitled to receive rent from cultivators of land, may be exercised by managers under the Court of Wards, Surburakars, and Tehseeldars of estates held under khas management, and other persons lawfully entrusted with the charge of landed property; and also by Naibs, Gomastahs, and other agents employed by any such persons as aforesaid in the collection of rent, if expressly authorised by power of attorney in that behalf; provided that, if any illegal act is committed by any such Naib, Gomashtah, or other agent under color of the exercise of the said power, the person employing such agent shall be liable, as well as the agent, for any damages accruing by reason of such act.

Proviso.

Standing crops and crops gathered, but not stored, liable to distraint.

LXXI. Standing crops and other ungathered products of the earth, and crops or other products when reaped or gathered, and deposited in any threshing-floor or place for treading out grain or the like, whether in the field or within a home-stead, may be distrained by persons invested with the powers of distraint under the provisions of this Act. But no such crops or products other than the produce of the land in respect of which an arrear of rent is due, or of land held under the same engagement, and no grain or other produce after it has been stored by the cultivator, and no other property whatsoever, shall be liable to distraint under this Act.

Defaulter to be served with a written demand, &c., before or at the time of distraint.

LXXII. Before or at the time when distraint is made under this Act, the distrainer shall cause the defaulter to be served with a written demand for the amount of the arrear, together with an account exhibiting the grounds on which the demand is made. The demand and account shall, if practicable, be served personally on the defaulter, or if he abscond or conceal himself so that they cannot be so served, shall be affixed at his usual place of residence.

Distress to be proportionate to the arrear if not paid or tendered.

LXXIII. Unless the amount of the demand is immediately paid or tendered, the distrainer may distrain property as aforesaid of value proportionate to the amount of the arrear with costs of the distress; and shall prepare a list or description of the said property, and deliver a copy of the same to the owner, or if he be absent affix it at his usual place of residence.

Standing crops, &c., when attached, to be reaped and stored by the cultivator, or, if he neglect to do so, by the distrainer.

LXXIV. Standing crops and other ungathered products may, notwithstanding the distraint, be reaped and gathered by the cultivator, and may be stored in such granaries or other places as are commonly used by him for the purpose. If the cultivator neglect to do so, the distrainer shall cause the said crops or products to be reaped or gathered, and in such case shall store the same either in such granaries or other places as aforesaid, or in some other convenient place in the neighbourhood. In either case the distrained property shall be placed in the charge of some person appointed by the distrainer for the purpose. Crops or products which from their nature do not admit of being stored, may be sold, before they are cut or gathered, under the rules hereinafter provided; but in such case the distraint shall be made at least twenty days before the time when the crops or products, or any part of the same, would be fit for cutting or gathering.

Distrainer may apply for aid to the Court upon occasion of resistance made or apprehended.

LXXV. If a distrainer shall be opposed, or shall apprehend resistance, and shall desire to obtain the assistance of a public officer, he may apply to the Court which under the provisions of this Act would have jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the rent for which such distrainer is about to distrain, and the Court may, if it thinks necessary, depute an officer to support the distrainer in making the distraint.

Persons empowered to distrain may give written authority to their servants to do so.

LXXVI. When any person, empowered to distrain property under Section LXVIII or Section LXX, shall employ a servant or other person to make the distress, he shall give to such servant or person a written authority (which may be on plain paper) for the same, and the distress shall be made in the name and on the responsibility of the person giving such authority.

Distress to be withdrawn if defaulter tender payment of arrear and expenses of attachment prior to the day of sale.

LXXVII. If at any time after property has been distrained, and prior to the day fixed for its being put up to sale as hereinafter provided, the owner of the property shall tender payment of the arrear demanded of him and of the expenses of the distress, the distrainer shall receive the same, and shall forthwith withdraw the distress.

Application for sale.

LXXVIII. Within five days from the time of the storing of any distrained crops or products, or if the crops or products do not from their nature admit of being stored, within five days from the time of making the distress, the distrainer shall apply for sale of the same to the Court which would have jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the rent for which the distress was made.

Form of application.

LXXIX. The application shall be in writing, and shall contain an inventory or description of the property distrained, the name of the defaulter and his place of residence, the amount due, and the date of the distress, and the place in which the distrained property is deposited. Together with the application, the distrainer shall lodge in Court the amount necessary for the service of a notice upon the defaulter as hereinafter provided.

Procedure by Civil Court on receipt of application.

LXXX. Immediately on receipt of any application under the provisions of the next preceding Section, the Court to which such application shall have been made, shall appoint an officer to conduct the sale of such property and shall cause to be served a notice [which shall be in the Form contained in the Schedule (C) to this Act, or to the like effect] on the person whose property has been distrained, requiring him either to pay the amount demanded, or to institute a suit to contest the demand before such Court within the period of fifteen days from the receipt of the notice; and shall at the same time cause to be affixed upon some conspicuous place in the Court-house, a proclamation fixing a day for the sale of the distrained property, which shall not be less than twenty days from the date of the application; and shall deliver a copy of the proclamation to the peon charged with the service of the notice, to be put up by him in the place where the distrained property is deposited. The proclamation shall contain a description of the property, the demand for which it is to be sold, and the place where the sale is to be held.

Sale to be suspended when suit instituted.

LXXXI. If a suit shall be instituted in pursuance of the aforesaid notice, the Court shall suspend proceedings in regard to the sale of the distrained property, and shall certify to the officer appointed to conduct the sale such suspension.

Suit to contest distrainer's demand before issue of notice of sale.

LXXXII. Any person whose property has been distrained in the manner in this Act provided, may institute a suit to contest the demand of the distrainer immediately after the distraint of his property, and before the issue of notice of sale; when such suit is instituted, the Court shall suspend proceedings in respect of the sale of such property.

Distress to be withdrawn on receipt of Court's certificate that the owner has executed a bond to pay amount of decree with interest and costs.

LXXXIII. The person whose property has been distrained, may, at the time of instituting any such suit as aforesaid, or at any subsequent period, execute a bond with sufficient security, binding himself and his sureties to pay whatever sum may be adjudged to be due from him with interest and costs of suit; and when such bond is executed, the Court shall give to the owner of the property a certificate to that effect, or, if so requested, shall serve the distrainer with notice of the same, and upon such certificate being presented to the distrainer by the owner of the property, or served on him by order of the Court, the property shall be released from distraint.

Value of claim in suits disputing distress.

LXXXIV. The estimated value of the claim made in any suit filed under the provisions of Sections LXXX, LXXXII, & XCVI, or any of them, shall be deemed to be the amount of arrears of rent for which the distraint shall have been made.

On expiration of period fixed in the proclamation of sale, if institution of suit to contest distrainer's demand have not been certified, sale may be proceeded with.

LXXXV. On the expiration of the period fixed in the proclamation of sale, if a suit to contest the demand of the distrainer be not in the meantime instituted in the Court and certified to the officer appointed to conduct the sale, such officer shall, unless the said demand, with such costs of the distress as shall be allowed by him, be discharged in full, proceed to sell the property, or such part of it as may be necessary, in the manner hereinafter prescribed.

Place and manner of sale of distrained property.

LXXXVI. The sale shall be held at the place where the distrained property is deposited, or at the nearest gunge, bazar, haut, or other place of public resort, if the officer appointed to conduct the sale should be of opinion that it is likely to sell there to better advantage. The property shall be sold by public auction in one or more lots as such officer holding the sale may think advisable, and if the demand with the costs of distress and sale be satisfied by the sale of a portion of the property, the distress shall be immediately withdrawn with respect to the remainder.

If fair price be not offered, sale may be postponed to another day, and shall be then completed at whatever price may be offered.

LXXXVII. If on the property being put up for sale a fair price, in the estimation of the officer holding the sale, be not offered for it, and the owner of the property or some person authorised to act on his behalf apply to have the sale postponed until the next day or the next market day, if a market be held at the place of sale, the sale shall be postponed until such day, and shall be then completed, whatever price may be offered for the property.

Payment of purchase-money.

LXXXVIII. The price of every lot shall be paid for in ready money at the time of sale, or as soon after as the officer holding the sale shall think necessary, and in default of such payment the property shall be put up again and sold. When the purchase-money has been paid in full, the officer holding the sale shall give the purchaser a certificate describing the property purchased by him and the price paid.

Proceeds of sale.

LXXXIX. From the proceeds of the sale of distrained property, the officer holding the sale shall make a deduction at the rate of one anna in the Rupee on account of the costs of the sale, and shall transmit the amount to the Court, in order that it may be credited to Government. He shall then pay to the distrainer the expenses incurred by the distrainer on account of the distress and of the issue of the notice and proclamation of sale prescribed in Section LXXX, to such amount as, after examination of the statement of expenses furnished by the distrainer, he shall think proper to allow. The remainder shall be applied to the discharge of the arrear for which the distraint was made, with interest thereupon up to the day of sale; and if there be any overplus, it shall be delivered to the person whose property shall have been sold

Officers holding sales prohibited from purchasing.

XC. Officers holding sales of property under this Act, and all persons employed by or subordinate to such officers, are prohibited from purchasing, either directly or indirectly, any property sold by such officers.

All irregularities to be reported to the Court.

XCI. Officers holding sales of distrained property are required to bring to the notice of the Court any material irregularities committed by distrainers under color of this Act: and if in any case, on proceeding to hold a sale of property, such officer shall find that the owner of the property has not received due notice of the distress and intended sale, he shall postpone the sale and report the case to the Court, and the Court shall direct the issue of another notice and proclamation of sale under Section LXXX, or pass such other order as may seem proper.

Recovery of expenses if officers proceed to place of sale and no sale take place.

XCII. When any such officer has proceeded to any place for the purpose of holding a sale, and no sale takes place either for the reason stated in the last preceding Section, or because the demand of the distrainer has been previously satisfied, no intimation of such satisfaction having been given by the distrainer to such officer, the charge of one anna in the Rupee on account of expenses shall be leviable, and shall be calculated on the estimated value of the distrained property. If the demand of the distrainer be not satisfied until the day fixed for the sale, the charge for expenses shall be paid by the owner of the property, and may be recovered by the sale of such portion thereof as may be necessary. In all other cases the Court shall make an order that such expenses shall be paid by the distrainer, and shall in such order fix the amount to be paid by him; such amount not to exceed the sum of ten Rupees: and the amount by such order directed to be paid may be recovered from such distrainer as if such order were a decree of such Court.

Proceedings of officers, &c., subject to revision and orders of Court.

XCIII. All proceedings under this Act of the officers appointed to hold sales of distrained property shall be subject to the revision and orders of the Court to which they respectively are attached, and the Court may require the submission of such reports and statements of business performed by such officers as may be thought necessary.

Second proclamation of sale.

XCIV. When a suit has been instituted to contest the demand of a distrainer, and the property has not been released on security, if the demand or any portion of it shall be adjudged to be due, the Court shall issue an order to the officer appointed to conduct the sale of such property and furnish a copy of such order to the distrainer, authorising the sale of the property; and on the application of the distrainer, which shall be made within five days from the receipt by him of such copy of such order, such officer shall publish a second proclamation in the manner prescribed in Section LXXX, fixing another day for the sale of the distrained property, which shall not be less than five nor more than ten days from the date of the proclamation; and unless the amount adjudged to be due with the costs of distress, including any costs of suit which may be ordered to be paid by the person instituting such suit, be paid intermediately, shall proceed to sell the property in the manner hereinbefore provided.

Procedure after institution of suit to contest distrainer's demand.

XCV. In all suits instituted to contest the demand of a distrainer, the distrainer shall be required to prove the arrear in the same manner as if he had himself instituted a suit for the amount. If the demand or any part thereof is found to be due, the Court shall make a decree for the amount in favor of the distrainer, together with such costs of suit as to such Court may seem proper, and the amount may be recovered by sale of the property as provided in the last preceding Section if the distress has not been withdrawn, and if any balance remain due after such sale, by execution of the decree against the person and any other property of the defaulter, or if the property has been released on security, by execution of the decree against the person and property of the defaulter and of his surety. If, on the other hand, the distraint is adjudged to be vexatious or groundless, the Court, besides directing the release of the distrained property, may award such damages in favor of the plaintiff as the circumstances of the case shall seem to require, and may decree the costs of the suit to be paid by the distrainer.

Any person whose property has been distrained for arrears of rent alleged to be due from another, may institute a suit against the distrainer.

XCVI. If any person shall claim as his own, property which has been distrained for arrears of rent alleged to be due from any other person, such person may institute a suit against the distrainer and such other person to try the right to the possession of the property in such Court, and in like manner and under the same conditions as to the time of instituting the suit and to the consequent postponement of sale, as a person whose property has been distrained for an arrear of rent alleged to be due from him may institute a suit to contest the demand. When any such suit is instituted, the property may be released upon security being given for the value of the same. If the claim is dismissed, the Court shall make an order for the sale of the property or the recovery of the value thereof, as the case may be, for the benefit of the distrainer, and for payment of such costs of suit to such distrainer, as to such Court shall seem fit. If the claim is upheld, the Court shall decree the release of the distrained property with costs, and such damages (if any) as the circumstances of the case may seem to require. Provided always that no claim to any produce of land liable to distraint under this Act, which at the time of the distress may have been found in the possession of a defaulting cultivator, whether such claim be in respect of a previous sale, mortgage, or otherwise, shall bar the prior claim of the person entitled to the rent of the land; nor shall any attachment in execution of a judgment or decree of any Court prevail against such prior claim.

Persons prevented from suing in time to save their property from sale, may sue for damages.

XCVII. If any person, whose property has been distrained for the recovery of a demand not justly due or of a demand due or alleged to be due from some other person, is prevented by any sufficient cause from bringing a suit to contest the demand or to try the right to the property, as the case may be, within the period allowed by Sections LXXXII and XCVI, and his property is in consequence brought to sale, he may nevertheless institute a suit under this Act to recover damages for the illegal distress and sale of his property.

Also persons aggrieved by any illegal act of distrainer.

XCVIII. If any person empowered to distrain property, or employed for the purpose under a written authority by a person so empowered, shall distrain or sell, or cause to be sold, any property for the recovery of an arrear of rent alleged to be due otherwise than according to the provisions of this Act, or if any distrained property shall be lost, damaged, or destroyed by reason of the distrainer not having taken proper precautions for the due keeping and preservation thereof, or if the distraint shall not be immediately withdrawn when it is required to be withdrawn by any provision of this Act, the owner of the property may institute a suit under this Act to recover damages for any injury which he may have thereby sustained.

Unlawful distraint.

XCIX. If any person not empowered to distrain property under Sections LXVIII and LXX of this Act, nor employed for the purpose under a written authority by a person so empowered, shall under color of this Act, distrain or sell or cause to be sold any property, the owner of the property may institute a suit under this Act to recover damages from such person for any injury which he may have sustained from the distraint or sale. The said person shall when the act complained of does not amount to criminal trespass, be liable to fine which may extend to three hundred Rupees, or to imprisonment, simple or rigorous, which may extend to two months, or to both, in addition to any damages which may be awarded against him in such suit.

Time for commencing suits for damages.

C. Provided always that any suit which may be instituted under any of the last three Sections shall be commenced within three months from the date of the occurrence of the cause of action.

Procedure on resistance to distraint, &c.

CI. If any person shall resist a distraint of property duly made under this Act, or shall forcibly or clandestinely remove any distrained property, the Court which would have jurisdiction in a suit for the rent for which such distraint was made, shall, upon complaint being made within fifteen days from the date of such resistance or removal, cause the person accused to be arrested; and if the offence be proved, and the offender be the owner of the property, shall order him to be imprisoned in the Civil Jail for six months, or until the whole arrear due to the distrainer, with all expenses and costs, shall be paid or levied by attachment and sale of the property of the offender under warrant of the Court. If the person convicted of the offence be any other than the owner of the property, he shall make good to the distrainer the value of the same, and shall further be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred Rupees, or, in default of payment thereof, to imprisonment for a period not exceeding two months.

No appeal from any decree of the District Judge for money below 100 Rupees, unless it involve the right to enhance rent or a title to land.

CII. Nothing in this Act contained shall be deemed to confer any power of appeal in any suit tried and decided by a District Judge, originally or in appeal, if the amount sued for, or the value of the property claimed, does not exceed one hundred Rupees, in which suit a question of right to enhance or vary the rent of a ryot or tenant, or any question relating to a title to land or to some interest in land as between parties having conflicting claims thereto, has not been determined by the judgment.

Review of judgment.

CIII. No application for a review of any judgment or order passed in any suit brought under the provisions of this Act shall be received by any Court after the expiration of thirty days from the date of such order or judgment, but nothing in this Section contained shall be deemed to apply to the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

Small Cause Court not to have jurisdiction.

CIV. Nothing in this Act contained shall be deemed to confer upon any Court sitting as a Court of Small Causes cognizance of any suit brought under the provisions of this Act, of which it would not have had cognizance if this Act had not been passed.

Power to issue process free of charge.

CVIII. Whenever any suit or other proceeding under the provisions of the Acts in the Schedule (D) mentioned, or of any of them, shall at the time when this Act comes into operation in any place have been instituted before any Collector or other Officer having under the provisions of the same Acts or of any of them jurisdiction in such suit or proceeding, such suit or proceeding and all appeals therein shall be heard and determined, and execution of any decree or order therein shall be had, and the practice and procedure therein shall be such and the same, as if this Act had not been passed.

The following Circular Order of the Government of India, in the Financial Department, is published for general information:—

CIRCULAR No. 3734.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT.

Accounts.

Simla, the 30th September 1869.

FRAUDS to a large amount were lately committed in a Treasury, by the Collectorate Head Clerk, under circumstances which render it expedient for the Governor General in Council to publish the facts as a caution to all Treasury Officers, and to remind District Officers that their personal responsibility for their District Treasuries is not discharged, because they are allowed to appoint a subordinate officer to the immediate charge of the Treasury under them. The frauds referred to were concealed, for a long time, by the submission of false accounts and false cash balance reports to the Accountant-General of the Province.

2. Public Service Transfer Receipts, under the signature of the Treasury Officer, were issued in favor of a fictitious person, without a rupee having been credited in the genuine accounts of the Treasury which formed the Office record. The Treasury Officer omitted to satisfy himself, before signing the receipts, that the equivalent had been paid in cash or had been charged to the proper account in the books of the Treasury.

3. His neglect might not have had such mischievous consequences, had he been careful to compare the Transfer Receipts which he signed for issue, with their counterfoils in the book of blank receipts; for the discrepancy between the complete counterfoils of the actual issues, and the incomplete credits for the amounts of the Transfer Receipts in the Office copy of the cash accounts, would have revealed the frauds, and the certainty of the detection in this way might have prevented them.

4. Instead of observing this ordinary precaution, the Treasury Officer signed Transfer Receipts for issue, without simultaneously attesting the entries of them in the counterfoils, while he attested false entries in the counterfoils, without requiring the production of the forms of Transfer Receipts which were alleged to have been spoilt.

5. Even then the frauds could not have continued for long, had correct accounts been rendered to the Accountant-General. The Office copy of the accounts was correct, and in it the Transfer Receipts were necessarily not credited; money not having been received for them; so that the cash balance of this genuine account agreed with the actual cash in the Treasury.

6. But the submission of this account would have disclosed the fraud to the Accountant-General, when on his comparing the payments by the Treasuries drawn upon with the accounts of the drawing Treasury, he would have missed the corresponding credits in the latter.

7. Accordingly, the Head Clerk falsified the account rendered to the Accountant-General, by crediting in it the amounts of the fraudulently issued Transfer Receipts, and shewing necessarily a cash balance larger by those amounts than the actual cash in the Treasury.

8. The Treasury Officer omitted to compare the account rendered to the Accountant-General with the copy recorded in his Office. Except under a strong suspicion of his Head Clerk such omission might have been natural; but at least he should have seen that the closing cash balance agreed with the record under his own signature of the cash balance, as it was verified by him on the first day of every month. Had he done this, the submission of a false account to the Accountant-General would not have been possible.

9. Apart from the monthly cash account, every District Officer is required, already in many parts of India, to submit to the Accountant-General a monthly statement of the actual cash in his Treasury. Had the District Officer, in the present instance, performed this most essential duty, the frauds could not have succeeded, for with a true cash balance statement a false account would have been impossible. The District Officer, however, delegated the monthly verification of the cash in the Treasury to the Treasury Officer, and the latter sent an untrue statement of the cash in his Treasury to the Accountant-General, notwithstanding the certificate* which he signed with each statement.

10. He did count, monthly, the actual cash in the Treasury, and the money in the Treasury did agree with the Office record of cash balance; but his first obligation was to see that the statement submitted was correct, and as he did not do this the certificate that he signed was untrue.

11. Manifestly the frauds in this instance did not arise from any defects of system. Not at one stage, but at several stages, the system interposed effectual checks had they only been applied with ordinary care. But at every one of the stages, there was such extreme carelessness that it is hardly possible to conceive a case of more gross and utterly inexcusable neglect on the part of an Officer in charge of a Treasury.

12. There was also a serious dereliction of duty and recklessness of personal consequences on the part of the Deputy Commissioner, who appears to have supposed that having made over the Treasury to a subordinate he was no longer in any way responsible for it.

13. It is from henceforth to be clearly understood—

First, that the appointment of a subordinate to the immediate charge of a Treasury, in no way relieves a District Officer from responsibility;

Secondly, that the duty of verifying and certifying to the actual monthly cash balance, and of signing the monthly cash accounts, must be performed by the District Officer in person, and must on no account be delegated to any subordinate officer, unless upon the ground of properly attested actual physical inability to perform the duty: Accountant-General will, in future, not accept these returns and accounts under any other signature.

14. In this case, the Government will recover from the officers (including the District Officer) through whose fault the loss occurred, the full amount of which it has been defrauded; and, as a further punishment, the officers who were in immediate charge of the Treasury, when the frauds were committed, will be deprived of promotion for two and three years, respectively.

Cattle Murrain in Bengal.

From COLONEL HENRY HOPKINSON, Agent to the Governor General, North-East Frontier, and Commissioner of Assam, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 252, dated Shillong, the 5th September 1868.)

I HAVE the honor to forward herewith copy of a letter from the Deputy Commissioner of Kamroop, to my address, enclosing a report by Dr. Purvis, Civil Surgeon of Gowhatty, on the cattle murrain which has been prevalent for some time back in the district of Kamroop, and I trust His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor will consider Dr. Purvis' report worthy of favorable acknowledgment.

From CAPTAIN J. SHERER, Deputy Commissioner of Kamroop, to the Personal Assistant to the Commissioner of Assam,—(No. 94, dated Gowhatty, the 2nd September 1868.)

WITH reference to your memorandum No. 381, dated 8th ultimo, I have now the pleasure to send you herewith a report, in original, only just received, from Dr. Purvis, the Civil Surgeon of Gowhatty, and which was promised in my letter No. 53, dated 8th July last, regarding the cattle murrain in this district.

From HENRY H. PURVIS, ESQ., M. D., Civil Assistant Surgeon of Gowhatty, to the Deputy Commissioner of Kamroop,—(No. 73, dated Gowhatty, the 30th August 1868.)

I HAVE the honor, in answer to your letter No. 184 of the 8th ultimo, to report on the cattle epidemic which has prevailed in this district, and even up to date has not entirely disappeared, as isolated cases are still continuing to occur.

In drawing up the report, I have received much assistance from the native doctors under my superintendence, and the owners of cattle in the neighbourhood, who have furnished me with what information they could collect from personal experience on the subject. Several diseases have prevailed during the year, such as "gootee," "chupkah," "bhoklak," &c., but the affection requiring chief notice, and which has committed such ravages, is known amongst the Assamese by the names "mour," "serale mour," "lohomy muska," &c., which signify a disease resembling a combination of cholera and dysentery. "Mour" appears to me to be very similar to, if not identical with, the "puschima" of Bengal. This disease prevailed with great severity throughout April, May, and June, and it is difficult to estimate the number of cattle that must have perished. Not only cattle, but also sheep, goats, pigs, &c., have been its victims; and even wild animals seem not to have escaped its influence, as buffaloes, tigers, deer, &c., have been found dead, evidently from similar diseases. The chief symptoms of this disease, mour, are the following:—At the commencement the animal appears languid, stands apart from its neighbours, the skin dry, coat stares, ears drop, refusal of food, although a little may be eaten the first day. There is an intense desire for liquids. About the second day a clear viscid discharge takes place from the nose, eyes, and mouth. The abdomen gets distended, and diarrhœa sets in; refusal of all food; no mastication, the only apparent desire being for water; great difficulty of breathing ensues; the discharges from the different parts change their character, and soon become offensive; the stools get very liquid and frequent, containing blood, mucous, &c., the animal, so soon from extreme weakness, obliged to lie down; these symptoms go on increasing in severity, death generally occurring between the second and fifth day, and in some instances in a much shorter period. The desire for liquids is a most prominent feature in the symptoms from the commencement. So long as their strength permits, they make every effort to reach water, and, if successful, the large quantity they drink causes the disease to run its course to a fatal issue much sooner. The banks of rivers and edges of tanks and jheels are common places to find animals either dead or dying.

The following are the chief post-mortem appearances presented in the cases I examined: Sign of severe purging before death; abdomen greatly distended; fœtid discharges from nose and mouth, with inflammation of the mucous membranes, and in some cases ulceration; inflammation of the conjunctiva. On opening the body, found general inflammation of the cellular tissue, as also of the lining membrane of the larynx and trachea, extending to the bronchial tubes. Enlargement and inflammation of the cervical glands. Lungs, as a rule, not much affected. Effusion into pericardium; right side of heart filled with clotted blood. Liver and kidneys congested; gall bladder greatly distended with bile; the different stomachs much distended with wind, and containing a little food, and numbers of parasites; the latter are, however, said to be of common occurrence in healthy animals; general inflammation throughout the intestinal tract, with commencement of ulceration in some parts; but I saw no cases of severe ulceration of the intestines. Bladder contained a small quantity of high-colored urine. The disease is very fatal, and the general opinion is that from 75 to 80 per cent. of the animals attacked die. That it is highly infectious, there can be no doubt. When the disease appears, the natives consider that the only chance of saving their herds is at once to completely cut off all communication between the diseased and healthy animals. Goats placed on sheds with affected cattle contract, and die of the disease.

A tea planter, residing some fifteen miles from Gowhatty, who has taken a great deal of trouble in furnishing me with what information he could collect, reports that near his garden there is a hill in the neighbourhood of which large herds of cattle graze. On one side of the hill the above disease raged with great violence, whilst on the other not a case was known to occur The nature of the land, and cultivation on both sides of the hill, is very similar, and the only reason he could assign for the cattle on one side being exempt was that they had no communication with those which were suffering from the disease on the other. It has been noticed in some cases of recovery that the animals are blind, or nearly so, and, in some instances, total disorganization of the structures of the eye has taken place.

Treatment in the above disease is generally of little avail. Although some animals which I treated did recover, they were so few that no satisfactory conclusions could be drawn as to the value of any particular method of treatment. It is difficult to assign any particular cause for the production of such a disease, but I am inclined to think that the active principle at work may be very similar to the poison of malaria. The affection appears during the rains and hot season to a certain extent annually, but generally several years intervene between each visitation in an epidemic form. The rain-fall in this district has been much less than usual during the present year, and this may probably have had something to do with the increased virulence of the disease.

Gootee or small-pox has also prevailed during the year, but to a much less extent than the disease just noticed. In small-pox death generally takes place before the eruption has time to develope itself. If the animal has strength to survive until the eruption appears, the natives look upon the case as comparatively safe.

" Chupkah" or " khorah" and "bhoklah" cases have occurred but to a very small extent.

In chupkah an eruption occurs chiefly affecting the feet, mouth, &c., ulcers form, and if not carefully looked after, maggots are developed in the sores. Fever and other constitutional symptoms are present.

Bhoklah is an inflammation of the throat and trachea, causing great difficulty in swallowing.

Now that my attention has been drawn to the diseases prevalent amongst cattle in this district, I will, in the event of other epidemics occurring, collect all the information I possibly can on the subject.

From Lieutenant-Colonel W. Agnew, Officiating Commissioner of Assam, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Judicial Department,—(No. 216, dated Gowhatty, the 5th July 1869)

In continuation of my letter No. 195, dated 18th of June last, I have the honor to submit, for the information of Government, copies of reports* since received from the Deputy Commissioners of Kamroop, Nowgong, and Seebsaugor, on the subject of the progress of the cattle disease in this province. Government will observe that it is reported to be on the decline in the district of Seebsaugor, and that it has nearly disappeared in Nowgong; while in Kamroop it is almost entirely confined to the north bank of the Brahmapootra: it raged, however, with great violence at the same season last year on the south bank, and probably the disease then expanded itself there. With regard to the figures from mouzahdars, I am not disposed to place implicit reliance on them, but it admits of no doubt whatever that the mortality amongst the cattle has been excessive in Assam during the epidemic.

* Kamroop, No. 133, dated 26th June 1869.
Nowgong statements for fortnight ending 31st May and 15th June.
Seebsaugor, No. 384, dated 22nd June 1869, and enclosures.

From the Deputy Commissioner of Kamroop, to the Personal Assistant to the Commissioner of Assam,—(No. 133, dated Gowhatty, the 26th June 1869.)

With reference to your No. 869 of the 22nd instant, I have the honor to submit a further report on the cattle disease prevalent in the district for the fortnight ending 15th June. The report from the Sub-division has not yet been received, but it will be submitted as soon as it comes to hand.

2. The disease appears to be almost entirely confined to the north bank of the Brahmapootra, where, in the contiguous mouzahs of Pakowah, Khatah, and Dhormopore, no less than 1,706 cattle are said to have died since the commencement of the murrain in April and May last. Again, in mouzahs Oottur Burkhetree and Duckhin Burkhetree, also contiguous, 850 are reported as destroyed by the disease; while in mouzah Oottur Sheroobungshur and Shindooreeghopa, which also adjoin, 750 have died.

3. In mouzahs Pandooree, Ramdeeah, and Patee Durrung, the number of cattle died since the commencement of the disease has been 500, 200, and 400, respectively.

4. In each of the mouzahs noted in the margin, a few deaths amongst the cattle from disease are said to have occurred, and I gather from the numerous reports of the mouzahdars that the total number which have been carried off by the murrain amounts to 4,580 head.

Mouzahs.

Pantan, Kharija Bokoe, Notoordehow, Pandooree, Oopurburbhag, Pakowah, Khatah, Ramdeeah, Bokoe, Oottur Sheroobungshur, Shindooreeghopa, Poorbocacharee Mehal, Patee Durrung, Ranee Jhargong, Betuah, Poorbobeonbhag, Oottur Burkhetree, Duckhin Burkhetree, and Dhormopore.

5. From what I can learn, the disease seems to be similar to that reported to have prevailed in the district last year. The animals when seized with the disease appear to shiver as from cold, purging sets in, the belly becomes distended, and the animals succumb in a few hours.

6. A further report will be submitted at the close of the month, or as soon as further information is received from the mouzahdars.

NOWGONG;
DEPUTY COMMR.'S OFFICE,
The 24th June 1869.

(Sd.) T. B. MICHELL,
Offg. Deputy Commissioner.

From CAPTAIN A. E. CAMPBELL, Deputy Commissioner, Seebsaugor, to the Personal Assistant to the Commissioner of Assam,—(No. 384, dated Seebsaugor, the 22nd June 1869.)

IN continuation of my No. 346, dated 4th instant, I have now the honor to submit a further report, received from the Assistant Commissioner in charge of Golaghat, on the progress of the cattle disease, together with a list of deaths reported by the mouzahdars beyond the Sub-division, and whose mouzahs lie in the vicinity of Jorehaut.

2. The figures in the Statements shew an enormous mortality amongst the cattle, but the Assistant Commissioner does not consider the total to be at all exaggerated. I have also heard from the District Superintendent of Police, who has just returned from the Sub-division; that the mortality has been very great.

It is worthy of remark that hitherto the disease has not come beyond the Janjee, but in the annexed Statement there are reports of ten animals having died in Bokota and Bhorpatro Dhole mouzahs near this.

I trust, as mentioned by the Assistant Commissioner, the disease is now dying out, but am afraid there will be a considerable decrease in cultivation on account of the want of plough bullocks.

From CAPTAIN L. BLATHWAYT, Assistant Commissioner of Golaghat to the Deputy Commissioner of Seebsaugor,—(No. 123, dated Golaghat, the 18th June 1869.)

I HAVE the honor to enclose a tabular Statement No. 3, shewing the mortality among the cattle of this Sub-division up to date, so far as I have been able to ascertain. The number is, I regret to say, very large, namely ten thousand odd, and I have no reason to suppose that this is at all in excess of the real number, but it is more likely under it.

2. I sent a list of questions to all mouzahdars concerning the first appearance, symptoms, duration, &c., of the disease; their answers are, as I expected, very much at variance, and I have therefore rejected that which did not appear to be borne out by the general testimony. The following may, however, be taken as tolerably certain, viz :—

1*st*.—That the disease at its first commencement was nearly always fatal to cattle belonging to natives, but that among those belonging to planters a greater proportion recovered. This I attribute to their superior food and treatment.

2*nd*.—When first attacked, the cattle refuse food but drink eagerly, and are troubled with cough; the eyes then become red, watery, and sores appear on the tongue; then generally a thick purulent discharge flows from the nostrils, and diarrhœa or dysentery sets in, and the animal dies in from two to ten days.

3*rd*.—Those who die in the shorter period do so before getting the diarrhœa.

4*th*.—When very sick, many refuse water as well as food.

5*th*.—Eruptions on the body are rare, and it is but seldom the cattle get lame.

6*th*.—Tigers, wild buffaloes, deer, pigs, goats, ducks, fowls, and pigeons, have been found dead apparently from this disease, and three instances have been reported to me of ponies dying from it.

3. It seems to be a very general opinion that the disease was first introduced into this Sub-division by some Bengalee buffaloes that were brought up early in the year.

4. It first appeared in Borgohain Chapporee in March, and two days later broke out with extraordinary violence in the mouzahs of Dargaon, Missamora, and Rajabahar, making almost a clean sweep of the cattle; the whole face of the country having been thickly studded with their carcasses, and which took a very considerable time to bury, though I believe that has now been very nearly accomplished, an intelligent amlah having been deputed to the spot to see that such is the case.

From Rajabahar it spread to Goorjoogonia, where it appeared on the 12th April, breaking out on the same date in the mouzah of Namdyang.

In Nikhoree Chapporee, between the Geyla Bheel and the Brahmapootra, there have been only two cases, though in the neighbouring mouzah of Borgohain Chapporee the disease has been most fatal. Between these two mouzahs there is a thick belt of jungle, which appears to have been an effectual barrier.

In Bogdwar, between the Mooree Dunseerie and the Brahmapootra, there have been no cases at all.

From Goorjoogonia the disease radiated to Amgooree on the 26th April, and early in May to Kakadunga, Kachareehaut, Dukkinhengra, Ahomgaon, Golaghat, and Jamoogooree. From all I can learn I finally believe that the disease has spread entirely by infection, and had I possessed some such summary powers as those conferred by Act I. of 1869, I have little doubt that I might have lessened the severity of the infliction. It appears to have gone from Hamdyang to Morungeepar, where it broke out on the 15th May.

From Kachareehaut, or its neighbourhood, it travelled to Atgaon on the 26th, and Ghiladree on the 27th May, and to Mokrong on the 29th May.

The last mouzah in which it has broken out is Rungamuttee, where it was introduced from Missamora.

5. I think that at last we may consider the worst of the disease to have passed, but, as I mentioned in my last report, the ryots will find great difficulty in ploughing their land, and in those mouzahs where it has been most fatal, a large portion of the rice lands will, I fear, not be cultivated at all this year.

The 15*th June* 1869.

(Sd.) L. BLATHWAYT,
Assistant Commissioner.

From LIEUTENANT-COLONEL W. AGNEW, Officiating Commissioner of Assam, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Judicial Department,—(No. 219, dated Gowhatty, the 6th July 1869.)

IN continuation of my letter No. 216 of yesterday's date, I have the honor to submit further reports* of the progress of the cattle disease in this division. The comparatively favorable report from Durrung, is, I regret to say, counterbalanced by the report of the Deputy Commissioner of Luckimpore of the disease having reached Debroogurh. I trust, however, the energetic measures of the Deputy Commissioner will, with the aid of the Military Authorities, stamp out the plague which appears chiefly confined to the cantonments.

* Letter from Deputy Commissioner, Luckimpore, No 335, dated 20th June.
Extract, paragraphs 6 and 11, from Extra Assistant Commissioner Luckimpore's letter No. 42, dated 30th June.
From Deputy Commissioner, Luckimpore, No. 346, dated 30th June.
Extract, paragraph 3, from letter No. 46, dated 25th June, from Extra Assistant Commissioner, Luckimpore.
From Deputy Commissioner, Durrung, No. 399, dated 28th June, and enclosures.

From CAPTAIN JOHN GREGORY, Deputy Commissioner of Luckimpore, Assam, to the Commissioner of Assam,—(No. 335, dated Debroogurh, the 25th June 1869.)

OWING to a misapprehension of the terms of your Office letter No. 701 of the 19th ultimo, no separate fortnightly reports of the progress of the cattle disease have been submitted, but the report has been incorporated with fortnightly return of the state of the crop.

2. I enclose now separate copies of the reports of the Extra Assistant Commissioner of North Luckimpore on this subject, for the fortnights ending 31st May and 15th June last, and have to state that up to the 15th June the disease had not made its appearance in Suddyah or Muttuck, and steps have been taken to prevent the extension of the disease to this bank of the Berhampooter by stationing police constables at all the ghâts.

3. I have requested Mr. Campbell to make the most searching enquiries into where and how the disease first made its appearance in the sub-division, and also to favor me by closely observing the symptoms of the disease and the time within which it is fatal, and by sending me the result of his observations ; and on receipt of this report, I will forward it on to you..

Extract of a letter from John Campbell, Esq., Extra Assistant Commissioner of North Luckimpore, to the Deputy Commissioner of Zillah Luckimpore, No. 42, dated the 10th June 1869.

The cattle disease is still killing many cattle, and nearly every mouzahdar reports a probable failure of the summer crop in consequence, and as a consequence a probable scarcity.

I would remark that it may be necessary to remit some of the land revenue, as many of the ryots are totally unable to cultivate through the loss of their cattle.

From Captain John Gregory, Deputy Commissioner of Luckimpore, to the Commissioner of Assam,—(No. 346, dated Debrooghur, the 30th June 1869.)

I have the honor to submit, below, my report on the cattle disease in this district for the fortnight ending this day.

2. From North Luckimpore I learn from Mr. Campbell's bi-monthly report that the disease is abating, but he sends no detail owing to the Fiscal Officer's detailed bi monthly reports not having reached him at the time he wrote his letter.

3. I regret to have to report that the epidemic has at length made its appearance here, and is now raging with great virulence.

4. It broke out in the regimental lines and is supposed to have been communicated to the cattle there by cows brought up from Golaghat.

5. In a district like this, in which the majority of the people belong to the Hindoo religion, it is impossible to take the only step which would be efficacious in staying the plague, namely, an unsparing use of the axe on cattle suspected to be tainted with the disease, for the country being entirely unenclosed, complete isolation of diseased from healthy cattle could only be obtained by the use of the axe.

6. I am afraid therefore that we must, perforce, let the epidemic run its course, guarding against a worse evil than rinderpest befalling us by removing the putrid carcasses from the neighbourhood of human habitations.

7. By far the greater number of cattle in the vicinity of the station belong to the sepoys of the 42nd Regiment, and I have requested Colonel Thomson to adopt the course prescribed in case of cholera breaking out amongst troops in Cantonments, and to send the whole of the cattle out of the lines to a Chaporie six or seven miles away.

8. In the meantime, I am employing the prisoners to remove carcasses from the Civil Station, and have made mar boats to carry them down to the Debroomookh and throw them into the Berhampooter.

P. S.—A statement showing the number of cattle that have died of the plague is herewith annexed.

Return showing the number of cattle that have died of the plague from the 15th instant up to date.

From the Deputy Commissioner, Zillah Durrung, to the Personal Assistant to the Commissioner of Assam,—(No. 399, dated Tezpore, the 28th June 1869.)

WITH reference to your letter No. 873 of the 22nd instant, I have the honor to report, for the information of the Commissioner, that the cattle disease is abating in this district.

(Sd.) THOS. LAMB,
Deputy Commissioner.

From LIEUTENANT-COLONEL W. AGNEW, Officiating Commissioner of Assam, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Judicial Department,—(No. 55T., dated Shillong, the 16th September 1869.)

WITH reference to paragraph 2 of your letter No. 129T. of the 18th ultimo, pointing out an error in the Seebsaugor return of mortality by cattle disease for the fortnight ending 15th July last, I have the honor to submit copies of Deputy Commissioner's letter No. 599 of the 7th instant, and its enclosure, a corrected statement showing the progress of the disease from its commencement to the end of August.

From CAPTAIN A. E. CAMPBELL, Deputy Commissioner of Seebsaugor, to the Personal Assistant to the Commissioner of Assam,—(No. 599, dated Seebsaugor, the 7th September 1869.)

I HAVE the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your No. 1122, dated 27th ultimo, calling my attention to discrepancies in the statements submitted regarding cattle disease.

I now beg to submit one statement carefully prepared, embodying all the reports received from mouzahdars of those mouzahs where the disease has appeared. A considerable difference will be apparent between this statement and those submitted.

I am afraid the former returns were not prepared with sufficient care and the mouzahdars' reports may have become mixed up; it would be therefore difficult to check the statement already submitted. I therefore think the progress of the disease will be better shown in the statement now submitted, as the figures shew at a glance where the disease has decreased, and in what mouzahs it has broken out for the first time.

ZILLAH SEEBSAUGOR;
Deputy Commissioner's Office,
The 7th September 1869.

(Sd.) A. E. CAMPBELL,
Deputy Commissioner.

From RIVERS THOMPSON, ESQ., Officiating Commissioner of the Presidency Division, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Judicial Department,—(No. 144, dated Calcutta, the 14th May 1869.)

REFERRING to your letter No. 116, dated 12th January 1869, I have the honor to submit, in original, the accompanying papers* received from the Magistrate of 24-Pergunnahs, including a copy of Veterinary Surgeon Farrell's report of his operations in connection with the cattle disease which prevailed in the villages of the Diamond Harbour Sub-division during some months of last year.

2. From the letter of the Deputy Magistrate, who was in charge of this Sub-division for the greater part of the time that the disease prevailed, it would appear, in opposition to Doctor

* Magistrate of 24-Pergunnahs' No: 183, dated 7th May, with a letter from the Deputy Magistrate of Diamond Harbour, dated 3rd May. Magistrate of 24-Pergunnahs' letter No. 162, dated 20th April, with enclosures, containing a copy of Dr. Farrell's report and an original plan.

Farrell's opinion, that the epizootic originated with the importation of some diseased cattle into one of the villages of the Diamond Harbour Sub-division, from the fair held at Oolaberia in January 1868. The cases, however, were either not very numerous at so early a date, or the violent character of the disease had not been ascertained, for it was not till June 1868 that the local authorities first brought to notice that small-pox had broken out among cattle to an alarming extent in the jurisdiction of the Sooltanpore Police station, embracing in its ravages some thirty villages. The facts were reported to Government in the letter from this Office, No. 188, dated 28th July last, requesting, if it were possible, that a Veterinary Surgeon might be deputed to visit the locality and render such aid and advice as he could give. In the meantime instructions were sent to the local officers to adopt every means in their power to isolate the diseased cattle and to prevent the complaint spreading.

3. A later report from Diamond Harbour, received here on the 31st July, brought to our knowledge the result of the Deputy Magistrate's personal inquiries at Sooltanpore, which showed that within that Police jurisdiction 464 head of cattle had died under the disease up to the middle of that month. It was further shown that the disease had assumed a most virulent type, was not amenable to any treatment which the natives themselves could supply, and that even the experiment of removing the cattle to a distance from the affected places had failed to arrest the calamity. The most serious fears were entertained, that so large a mortality in the cattle of the place would materially affect the cultivation of the land.

4. The orders of the Lieutenant-Governor dated 1st August 1868, intimating that an application had been submitted to the Government of India for the deputation of a Veterinary Surgeon were followed by the services of Doctor Farrell being placed at the disposal of the Commissioner of the division, for employment in the affected locality; and on the 5th of August that gentleman was in communication with the Magistrate of the district, and reported his arrival at Diamond Harbour with a sufficient supply of medicines and other necessaries on the 8th of the same month.

5. From that date up to the close of the year, when the disease had almost died out, weekly reports have been regularly submitted to this Office, showing the progress of Doctor Farrell's operations, and of the number of deaths among the cattle. The full report which Doctor Farrell has now sent details his proceedings from the time that he assumed charge of the special duties imposed upon him till his services were formally dispensed with, on the 6th January last. From that time repeated applications have been made to Doctor Farrell for the submission of the report which the Government required, and it was only on the 25th March last that it was received, undated, in the Magistrate's Office.

Mr. Farrell's return of deaths from August last, 4,937

The Deputy Magistrate's from the commencement of the year, 26,151.

6. Upon one point, the total number of deaths from this epidemic, I am quite at a loss to reconcile the statements of the Deputy Magistrate and the returns submitted by Doctor Farrell as marginally noted; and the explanations which I have since obtained from the local authorities do not satisfy me that the Magistrate and his subordinate are at all correct in fixing the total number of deaths at 26,151 heads. It may be quite true that the disease had prevailed throughout the Diamond Harbour Sub-division from the beginning of the year 1868, and that it was only on its assuming a virulent form, about June last, that the matter was brought under official cognizance. Doctor Farrell's figures commenced from the month of August, and are based upon the number which actually came under his treatment. The actual number of deaths may be somewhat in excess, but I do not think, even admitting the existence of the disease from the commencement of the year, that Baboo Hem Chunder's returns, from inquiries among the zemindars and the employment of an agent visiting from village to village, are based upon any accurate data. I scarcely believe there were so many head of cattle in the Sub-division; and certainly if the facts were as now reported, and some 20,000 head of cattle died before June from the murrain, the executive officers of the district were very remiss in not bringing the fact prominently to notice, with a view to the adoption of remedial measures earlier. I discredit, however, the accuracy of the statement altogether.

7. The proposition with which Doctor Farrell supplements his report, as regards the establishment by Government of a Veterinary School in Calcutta, appears somewhat premature. Endeavours are being made, by the circulation of pamphlets in the vernacular, to interest the native community in the districts in the subject of the general treatment, breeding, and care of cattle, and till some appreciation is shown by the natives themselves of the endeavours already made by Government in that direction, I do not suppose such a proposal as that referred to need be seriously entertained.

Extract from General Report of Baboo Hem Chunder Kur, Deputy Magistrate of Diamond Harbour, for 1868.

IN the early part of the past year small-pox, which had commenced raging from 1867 in some of the villages comprising the Sooltanpore Thannah, gradually disappeared, and since then all has gone on well. But while the health of men and women did not suffer, that of the cattle suffered tremendously, and my inquiries lead me to believe that more or less 26,151 head of cattle fell victims to the plague. I beg to subjoin a list of the villages afflicted, and the number of cattle that died in each village. I also beg to subjoin a plan showing the situation of these villages.

It appears that in the month of January 1868, the disease, commonly called the gootee or bussunto, made its appearance in the village of Bansberia, Pergunnah Shabapore, police station Sooltanpore, where, shortly before the appearance of the disease, people had brought a few bullocks from the Ooluberia Hâut, situated on the other side of the river, where every week a very large number of cattle, mostly from Midnapore and Orissa, is sold, and it is believed that these animals brought the disease with them. From this village the murrain travelled in a south-westerly direction, and attacked some of the cattle in the village of Luchipore. It then took the southerly direction and went to the village Bosar, and thence travelled to the west side, making its appearance at Belpookhoria. It subsequently attacked the villages of Culpee, Ramessorpore, Kharee, Poorandarpore, Howree, and its neighbouring places, and then broke out on all sides. The murrain was at its height in the month of July and August last, at the latter end of which month it began to abate, and continued abating till it almost disappeared at the latter end of October, or the commencement of November last. The villagers believed the disease to be contagious; yet with this knowledge they had no means of separating the healthy from the sick cattle. They had no place, and they were at the time all anxiety for their paddy fields. The energy displayed by the ryots at this critical time was something wonderful.

Those who could afford, and those who could not afford, borrowed money and purchased cattle and ploughed their fields, and when the first batch died, they got a second batch, and in some places even a third batch was procured for the completion of the sowings.

With all this endeavour on the part of the tenantry, a good one-fourth portion of the paddy lands had remained untilled for want of cattle.

I have already mentioned that the murrain was most severe in July and August last, and this circumstance is attributable to the bad grass which had rotted after the continued rains of June last, and which was devoured by the hungry bullocks that had no opportunity of grazing for nearly 20 or 25 days in consequence of the flood. In the jurisdiction of thannah Baukipore, where the low boonani fields form nearly a twelve-anna portion of the rice lands, the people, finding all their crops gone, and the fields submerged in water, commenced selling off their cattle at rather low prices, and the ryots of Sooltanpore, Hotigunge, and other places, not similarly situated, began to buy them, and therewith ploughed their fields. The value of these cattle ranged from 5 to 15 Rupees a head.

The majority of the animals that died in the plague were oxen, called by the people damragoroo, and these form the majority of the horned cattle here. The symptoms of the disease were not the same in all places. In and about Kharee, an ox attacked by the murrain would pass watery stool, cough violently, and salivate, and then die after six or eight days. Towards Culpee and the adjacent hamlets, the symptoms were quite different. Here the cattle would at first cough, and a sort of shivering would come upon them; they would then water from the mouth, eyes, and nose. Pustules would then make their appearance upon the body, and the sick cattle would pass watery stool, which had the appearance of being mixed with blood and pus. The cattle would then feel disinclined to get up and gradually sink within five to ten days from the date of attack. In all the afflicted villages the sick cattle would refuse food from beginning to end. Those which would commence eating kolmee sak and soft grass mixed with ghee, which the people were invariably in the habit of placing before them, and those which had large pustules on them, often recovered, but those unfortunately were few.

In this part of the country the oldest man does not recollect the occurrence of a like scourge; but I have been informed that there were now and then gootees amongst cattle, which had to a certain extent proved destructive.

From A. SMITH, ESQ., Magistrate of 24-Pergunnahs, to the Commissioner of the Presidency Division,—(No. 162, dated Alipore, the 20th April 1869.)

REFERRING to your No. 230, dated the 3rd instant, I beg to transmit herewith a copy of Veterinary Surgeon Farrell's report of his operations in the Diamond Harbour Sub-division, and of a review of the same by Baboo Hem Chunder Kurr, who was in charge of the Diamond Harbour Sub-division while the operations were in progress.

2. It will be seen that the total loss of cattle from the plague was about 26,151 head.

3. Baboo Hem Chunder Kurr is of opinion that the epizootic originated with the importation of some cattle from the Oolooberia fair. I have not heard that disease has prevailed on the other side of the river, but the fact seems established that it broke out on this side in a village to which importation was made. Dr. Farrell assigns a later period, and a different village to the origin of the out-break. In this, as well as with reference to the early course of the epizootic, I think that Baboo Hem Chunder Kurr, who was in charge of the Sub-division, and obtained his information at the time, must be accepted as more reliable than Dr. Farrell, whose account is necessarily based on the information he collected from villagers, few of whom probably knew much beyond what occurred in their own immediate neighbourhood.

4. The disease does not appear to have been very amenable to treatment, though even in the cases where medicine was given, a fair proportion of cures is shown. Greater benefit appears to have resulted from the measures taken for isolating the diseased cattle, and preventing the spread of the contagion.

5. The testimony borne by the sub-divisional officer to the zeal and assiduity with which Dr. Farrell discharged the duties entrusted to him, and the ready attention he paid to the representations of the people, is very gratifying.

6. As explained in a previous letter, the delay in the submission of this report is due to the delay with which, notwithstanding repeated reminders, it was obtained from Dr. Farrell. The report is not dated, but it was received in this Office on the 25th March.

7. It was then sent to Baboo Hem Chunder Kurr for his review, which reached me on the 14th instant

8. Dr. Farrell's report contains his own explanation of the delay. I fear I must pronounce it altogether insufficient and unsatisfactory.

9. I submit with these papers a further letter, dated 20th March, from Dr. Farrell, in which he suggests the institution at the Presidency of a Veterinary School for the instructions of Salootries, Farriers, and all others who may chose to learn the veterinary art, as applied to horses and cattle. The suggestion is deserving of consideration, not only with reference to the provision of a class of skilled practitioners for practice among agricultural cattle, but also as a means of training a better subordinate agency for the cure and treatment of Government cattle.

From HIRAM FARRELL, ESQ., Veterinary Surgeon, Her Majesty's Bengal Army, on special duty, to BABOO HEM CHUNDER KURR, Deputy Magistrate, Sub-divisional Head-Quarters, Diamond Harbour.

AGREEABLY to Presidency Division orders dated 5th August 1868, placing my services at the disposal of the Government of Bengal, I waited on the Commissioner, 24-Pergunnahs Division, and received instructions to proceed to Diamond Harbour, the Sub-divisional head-quarters, to investigate the cattle disease that was said to be raging in that district. Having provided myself with medicines and other necessaries, I reported my arrival to the Deputy Magistrate on the 8th August 1868. I there learnt that the disease was at its height in the Sooltanpore District, some fourteen miles off.

2. From the boisterous state of the weather no boat could be got to venture out, and as the roads were impassable from heavy inundation, I was delayed some ten days before I could proceed to Sooltanpore. In the mean time I visited the villages in the vicinity of Diamond Harbour, where the disease had begun to make its appearance. On the 18th I reached the Sooltanpore District, and having made Culpee my head-quarters, I proceeded to visit the neighbouring villages.

3. In the course of my enquiries I learned that the disease commonly called "gootee" first appeared in the village of Deolalpore, in the Sooltanpore District, and from thence extended over the surrounding country a few days afterwards, it was discovered in the Bankipore District, it was first noticed in the month of May, and was most fatal during the months of August, September, and October; about the end of November all trace of the disease had disappeared. I append a map in which the course of the disease is marked in red.

4. In the course of seven days I visited most of the villages to which the disease had spread, and having personally witnessed the nature and extent of its ravages, and given instructions for the sanitary arrangements that could be immediately carried out, I proceeded to make the necessary preparation for aiding the cattle-owners in curing the diseased animals, preventing the spread of the disease, and putting an entire stop, if possible, to its further spread.

5. The natives were terror-stricken at the great loss and ravages of the disease, and not properly understanding the cause of my appearance in the district, they were not then inclined to attend to instruction; but being very intimate with their character, their customs, and superstitions, especially in cases of the kind, and having a very good knowledge of the language, I used quiet persuasion in allaying their fears and working on their feelings, so that at a very early stage of my proceedings they attended to me willingly. I there secured the services of one jemadar and four salootries, men who had already some knowledge of treating cattle. I instructed these men in the nature, symptoms, and treatment of the disease, and posted them at different points throughout the district with medicines, &c., and careful instructions for attendance on, and treatment of, the animals within the portion of district allotted to each.

6. I likewise had circulars printed in Bengalee, containing full particulars for treatment and sanitary arrangements, these were distributed throughout the district with the most happy, beneficial, and, I may say, wonderful effect, not only on the diseased animals, but on the minds of the natives, who were convinced that their good alone was sought, and that it was possible by attention and care to check the epizootic; the result was very satisfactory, for success attended the operations, and in the course of two weeks the mortality was reduced from over 800 a week to less than 300.

7. From the most careful inquiries throughout the district, and from conversation with all classes of the community, it is evident that the disease is not new in the part of the country south of Calcutta, and that it is of periodical occurrence, appearing here and there every year, but generally the cases were in some years so few, previous to the present epizootic, as not to attract public attention; in fact, it dates back for a series of years, far beyond the memory of the oldest people: some fifteen or twenty years ago it appears to have caused great mortality. I could, however, find no records on the subject.

8. Some curious facts are worthy of notice in connection with this cattle epizootic. It continued its course to the Diamond Harbour creek, when it appears that the stream of water checked its progress, and it ran along the right bank of the creek without crossing it throughout the continuation of the epizootic, and again the disease was of a more virulent type, and more fatal in all the villages on the banks of the creek than those some distance from them. The symptoms were much more aggravated, and there were very few recoveries; the animal affected dying off within 48 hours of being attacked. This was especially the case in the village of Raipore, where a week after the disease appeared all the cattle in the village were exterminated.

9. I conclude from the fact of the disease being constantly present in all months and seasons in the district, sometimes destroying many, and at other times few, that it is of spontaneous origin; no trace of its importation from other countries can be discovered. The specific poison appears to find a habitation in the soil, caused, doubtless, by the want of proper drainage, the stagnant pools, unusual falls of rain, and, as was the case the last season, inundations over the whole country. The decomposition of vegetable and animal matter make a combination of agencies sufficient to develope disease, and once developed, it is propagated by immutable laws that govern all contagious diseases. The animals do not inherit the disease, nor do they carry it about in their flesh and blood, but, as I have stated, certain conditions of the soil and atmosphere are favorable to its development, especially where cattle are congregated in any large numbers

10. There are also other causes which help to engender disease: there is great neglect in the management and care of cattle. They are ill-fed as a rule, allowed to graze on pastures that are rank and have been under water. They are crowded together in miserable dirty huts, without ventilation or cleanliness; in many cases families and cattle are under one shed, the latter quite uncared for after the day's work, generally in the cultivation of paddy, which necessitates their working in water and mud far above their knees; they have little food but what they can pick up when the paddy is cut, the course straw is given to the animals in small quantities; they are scarcely ever attended to, dried, or cleaned: these causes dispose the cattle to disease. Again, no attention whatever is paid to the breeding of cattle; they are nearly all small, weak, and overworked: numbers are brought from the Midnapore district annually. I think the above facts will prove that there are ordinarily sufficient exciting and predisposing causes to produce disease in the district at all times and seasons: the only wonder is that epizootics are not more common.

11. Another point that deserves attention is the exposure of all dead bodies of animals; they are thrown near villages, into the nearest ditch or khall. In most of the villages I found bodies in every stage of decomposition not fifty yards from the huts; and when the frightful mortality that has taken place this year is considered alike injurious to the health of the inhabitants and of their cattle, and to the cultivation of their fields, from deficient plough and draft bullocks, who can doubt the advisability of establishing such sanitary arrangements as may in future have some check on the spread of disease or prevent similar epizootic altogether.

12. Free use was made of lime and other disinfectants to purify the various places, and I made every endeavour with the aid of the Police, which was freely given, to put a stop to the practice of leaving the dead bodies of animals exposed: from some caste-prejudice, which on inquiry was found to be untenable, there was at first great difficulty in inducing the villagers to attend to my advice and instructions in the matter, but by perseverance and persuasion the prejudice was happily overcome.

13. I found that the chamars and other low caste people were in the habit of removing the skins of the diseased animals for sale in the Calcutta market, where they obtained good prices, and must have made great profit, for numbers of skins were thus removed, spreading the disease far and wide, and causing much mischief and loss, for the disease is prevalent in many parts of Calcutta, Entally and the suburbs. To put a stop to the practice of removing the skins, I sought your assistance to have the skins scored and rendered useless for sale, and I could not have a better opportunity than the present for noticing the active and willing aid given to me in every instance of appeal. I received the most cordial counsel and succour on all occasions.

14. Having thus given a summary of my proceedings from the latter end of August to the beginning of January, I will briefly narrate the nature, symptom, and appearance of the disease, with the particulars of the measures taken for its prevention, &c., &c.

Nature of the disease.

It is known in the district by the name of "gootee" and "bushunto," literally small-pox. It is, in my opinion, the rinderpest or murrain of the Russian Steppes, a low malignant fever of typhoid type, capable of being propagated by inoculation, and similar to the variola of human beings: it is highly infectious and contagious, the virus can be transmitted in several ways: the excrement which drops from a diseased animal is highly charged with the poison, food taken in the mouth or breathed upon, if eaten by a sound animal, will produce the disease; discharges from the nose, eyes, and mouth on pasture will give it; flies and dogs by feasting on diseased carcasses will disseminate it: in fact, the very air in the neighbourhood of cattle-sheds with infected animals is poisoned.

15. The popular opinion throughout the district, and which the inhabitants implicitly believe, is that once an animal is attacked by gootee and recovers, he becomes free from the disease, and never takes it again; but my experience does not confirm this belief, for, in the case of a few experiments in inoculation which produced the disease, two animals recovered and again became diseased from contact with others affected: the second attack is, however, much milder than the first. I am also convinced, from observation and inquiry, that the majority of the recovered animals at the period reported on had the disease at some previous period.

Symptoms.

I will divide into four stages—

First	Incubative.
Second	Premonitory.
Third	Febrile.
Fourth	Dysenteria.

The first, or Incubative, lasts from four to ten days, and is marked by a high degree of temperature of body and pulse. The second, or Premonitory, is noticed by great dulness; the animal stands aloof, with its head drooping, coat staring. Cows lose their milk gradually, the urine becomes scanty and bowels costive, pulse increases, visible mucous membranes become affected, rumination is suspended, but the animal will eat of food offered to it; this stage continues from forty-eight hours to four days, and is succeeded by the third or Febrile stage,—body warm, pulse fluttering and weak, refuses all food, has great thirst, will run to any pool of water; running at the nose and eyes, slobbering at the mouth, great debility, urine scanty and high colored, and often voided: diarrhœa sets in, the scouring of the fœtid green fæces; the breath and exhalations from skin fœtid; rumination is suddenly and completely suspended; there are spasmodic twitchings of the muscles of the neck, flank, and hind-quarters, and the skin becomes rough by the elevation of the hair.

16. The stage lasts from forty-eight hours to five days; during its latter part, the body undergoes alternate changes of cold and heat, the pulses thin and wiry, breathing heavy and laboured; the expiration become double and are emitted with a peculiar grunt; there is difficulty of deglutition; cough sometimes is present; vesicles appear in the mouth, and the skin inside of thighs and axillas crack, from which a watery discharge exudes; body is also covered with small vesicles, resembling pimples; the roots of the hair evidently being the seat, and the animal is often affected by tympanites and slight colicky pains.

17. The fourth stage, Dysenteria, is marked by a change in the constitutional symptoms; alvine evacuations being less, but with streaks of blood and slime, very fœtid; tenesmus, urine high colored, scanty and offensive; pulse very weak, barely perceptible; body and extremities become cold; fever disappears, leaving great prostration; the discharges from the nose and eyes are much purulent; the visicles in the mouth are filled with pus, and most of them burst; those on the body become ulcerated, dry, and covered with scales: the glands and throat swell, and there is a difficulty of breathing; the muscles have slight spasms, and the animal from the beginning of the stage falls down and lies with its head and neck stretched out.

18. The symptoms increase to the eighth or ninth day, when the crisis is observed: as death approaches the mucous membranes become of a livid hue; there is extreme fœtor of all discharges, the evacuations come away involuntarily, the muscular twitchings cease, and the animal dies without a move. When the case takes a favorable turn, the pulse is lower, the temperature of the body and extremities is equable, the appetite returns, and in fifteen to twenty days the animal recovers its health. I have invariably found that the greater the amount of eruption, the more favorable was the case.

Cases reported and attended to	6,735
„ cured	1,088
„ died	4,927

Post-mortem Appearances.

Decomposition rapidly ensues after death, and the mucous membranes of the mouth, larynx, pharynx, esophagus, trachea, become inflamed, with patches of ulceration and echymosis, with considerable effusion of serum in the thoracic and peritoneal cavities; the lining membrane of the first three stomachs "slightly congested;" the membranes of the fourth stomach and small intestine, more especially the illium, ulcerated, and in some gangrenous; the large intestines healthy; the contents, fluid, of an offensive odour; lungs in most cases slightly congested; heart placid, but healthy; spleen and liver in some cases enlarged and congested; kidneys healthy; the organs of generation inflamed with ulcerated patches and echymosis. The brain in most cases healthy, sometimes the membranes and substance injected, and ventricles filled with a yellow colored serum; spinal chord healthy, and in some cases injected with deposit of serum about the lumber region; blood, black and watery; does not coagulate readily or produce a huffy coat; inhalation of the blood will produce fever and diarrhœa in man, with violent nervous headache.

Treatment.

There is no drug that is really a specific for the disease, nor can it be counteracted by any known antidote; the disease is essentially one in which prevention is far better than any attempt at cure. Careful attention to sanitary arrangements, to the comfort and care of the animals, with good hygienic management, will be found of much more value in dealing with an out-break of cattle plague than trusting to medicinal agents.

19. I will now proceed to give a detail of the treatment adopted by me, premising that the drugs, &c., used are simple, safe, and economical, easily procurable throughout the country, and generally known to the ryots. In the first stages when constipation is present—

Common salt	1 pound
Ginger	4 drachms
Rice water...	4 pounds

repeated every twelve hours, until scouring is produced; then, as the disease is weakening, and the vital powers sink rapidly, stimulants must be used. I found rum the best remedy in ounce doses, and native spirit in two ounce doses, to be very useful, when the febrile action is lowered.

Antimony	2 drachms
Nitre	2 ounces
Black salt	4 drachms

or

Camphor	4 drachms
Bhung	2 ounces
Cherata	1 ounce

given twice or three times a day to control excessive diarrhœa, dysentery, and straining, to the above was added, in some cases, catechu 4 drachms, in others opium 1 drachm; when tympanitis was present, blisters were applied to the sides of the abdomen, and given internally

Assafœtida...	2 drachms
Bhung	4 „
Ginger	4 „

when convalescence took place

Sulphate of Iron (kussees)	2 drachms
Bhung or cherata	2 ounces given for three or four days and found of the greatest benefit: the bhung and cherata were also used in the form of a decoction; the doses above mentioned are for the drugs when used as such. The decoction is thus made—

Bhung or cherata	1 pound
Water	16 pounds

boil for half an hour, and strain for use when cold.

20. An animal when taken ill was separated from the healthy animals, and, when possible, removed to another shed. This in most cases was impossible, when it became necessary to place the animal in one side of the shed, with a fire in the centre, kept burning night and day; all the dropings, &c., were put on the fire, and sulphur sprinkled over it, three times a day, to promote fumigation. The animals were also made to inhale the fumes of sulphur twice a day, which was found to be of the greatest benefit. The occasional use of fires and fumigations in the cattle sheds throughout the district, with doses of medicine now and then to the animal, of two drachms of black salt, or four drachms of common soda, known by the inhabitants as "kharee neemmuck," is to be recommended as a prophylactic measure.

Food.

The disease being of a very weakening nature, the sick animals were drenched several times a day with rice or suttoo water; or, in their absence, with water acidulated with vinegar, or gruel made of bran or linseed. When convalescent, nourishing and easily digested food was given, such as green grass, or mashes made with the siftings of rice; and, in addition to the food, attention was paid to the cleanliness of animals and sheds: the wood-work of the latter washed with warm water, the old earth of floors removed, and new earth sprinkled with lime put down to replace the old, and in several cases the sheds were entirely destroyed by fire with the permission of the owners. Some villages were placed in quarantine, and all connection between them and healthly places prohibited,—a measure that would be of the greatest benefit at the first outbreak of cattle plague. This matter is certainly worthy of the grave attention of the authorities of the Bengal Government; and perhaps it would be worth while to have periodical professional visits made to the chief towns and their neighbourhood, for the purpose of ascertaining the condition of the cattle kept by the ryots for agricultural and other uses. The result of such visits would very possibly far more than repay any expense that would attend them, in the improved condition of the animals, on which good agriculture so much depends, in the quality and quantity of milk for food, and in removing from the minds of the poor inhabitants the dread and its consequences (alike injurious to the poor people, their landlords, and to the Government), which overcome them on the loss of cattle, and injury to crops, &c., which surely follows in the train of such disease when it comes on suddenly and generally.

21. I cannot close my report without apologizing for the delay which has apparently taken place in submitting it, owing to the loss of many of my notes and the difficulty of bringing to remembrance the many particulars connected with my visit to the villages in the district.

I await orders for my future movements.

CIRCULAR.

The disease busunto or gootee is very contagious, and communicated by several ways; by the hands, the clothes, the saliva that drops from the mouth. If it drops on food or in water, an animal partaking of either will surely get the disease. The same with the discharge from the nose and eyes, the urine and dung. It is therefore very necessary that every precaution should be taken to keep healthy animals away from those affected with busunto. There must be no communication between the village strangers, and visitors to villages must not be allowed on any account to go near the healthy animals. Several cases of busunto are known to have arisen from the cause above.

When the disease makes its appearance in a shed, remove all the healthy animals to another shed, some distance off. If this cannot be effected, put the diseased cattle on one side and the healthy cattle on the other, and keep one or two fires burning day and night between them; sprinkle a little sulphur twice a day. The object is to get as much smoke as possible which with the sulphur will purify the shed; all the dung litter and sweepings of the sheds must be burnt inside, and on no account be thrown outside, as it will produce disease. It must be borne in mind "prevention is better than cure," and the only thing that will stop the further spread of the disease, which is raging to a fearful extent in the district, is to attend to the few instructions which the poorest man can carry out. One great thing is separation of diseased from healthy, keeping the fires lit, and cleanliness of both animal and shed attended to.

Immediately an animal takes the disease, give half seer common salt, some seer of rice water; notice must immediately be given to the village chowkeedars who will get medicine, and attend at once for it. These for their purpose will be placed at the villages of Hajeepore, Sooltanpore, Tangra, Bechia hât, and there, therefore, medicines, sulphur and lime, and attendance are supplied gratis to all who want it throughout the district.

The disease being of a weakening nature, the animal must be nourished throughout, and the best thing is boiled rice water, given three or four times a day, and no water from the tanks or khalls.

As a preventive measure, fires with sulphur ought to be kept burning in all sheds, whether the member be healthy or diseased. When an animal dies, it ought to be buried at least three feet deep; sprinkle some lime over it, and have the earth well beaten down on it, and on no account ought it to be thrown near a village or khall. When the disease has disappeared from a shed before any healthy animals are admitted, it must be thoroughly cleared, and fresh dry earth put on the floor, all the wood work washed well with hot water and ashes, and all the straw and litter, &c., burnt, and the places well fumigated with smoke and sulphur, and air infected with lime.

On no account are the dead cattle to be skinned, as the skin with other parts, such as horns and hoofs, will transmit the seeds of disease.

It is hoped that all zemindars and chassas will attend to these rules and help me in stopping the further spread of this terrible disease, which can only be done by attending strictly to the above rules.

(Sd.) Hiram Farrell, Veterinary Surgeon,
On Special Duty.

From H. Farrell, Esq., Veterinary Surgeon, Her Majesty's Bengal Army, to Alexander Smith, Esq., Magistrate and Collector, 24-Pergunnahs,—(dated Calcutta, the 20th March 1869.)

In continuation of my report, submitted in February last, to the address of the Deputy Magistrate, Diamond Harbour, I do myself the honor to invite the consideration of the authorities to the advisability of establishing a Veterinary School in Calcutta for the instruction of native salootries, farriers, and all others who may choose to learn the veterinary art, as applied to horses and cattle; very few persons will be found at present who really understand the proper treatment and management of horses and cattle, either in health or disease. I have been long impressed with this fact, from intercourse with the salootries of native irregular cavalry regiments, and also with European farriers in batteries. &c., entrusted with the care of horses. These men obtain a sort of superficial knowledge of disease from practice, but are almost totally ignorant of the anatomy and physiology of the animal they are treating: would it not therefore be a great benefit to instruct such Government servants by a course of lectures, dissection, and clinical demonstration? Such a school or schools would be of immense benefit to every mounted branch of the service, especially the irregular branch, who are almost entirely dependant on their native salootries; and doubtless civilians and others in and out of Government employ would take advantage of any establishment of the kind that would be the means of imparting to them knowledge that is so much wanted in India. I had the advantage of acting as demonstrator at the Edinburgh Veterinary College for a session before entering the service, by which I gained a fair knowledge of most matters connected with veterinary science, especially tuition: and am prepared to go further with the subject of the proposed school in respect of the course of study and other particulars connected therewith, if considered necessary, and to show that the expense of its instruction would be little more at first than the cost of a suitable building, while the commensurate advantages would in time far exceed any expense or trouble that can possibly be incurred. In time, indeed, the establishment would be self-supporting.

I send this communication direct to prevent delay, as it may be deemed necessary to review it in connection with my communication regarding the cattle disease which prevailed to the south of Calcutta in the latter part of 1868.

From Baboo Hem Chunder Kur, Deputy Magistrate, to A. Smith, Esq., Magistrate and Collector, 24-Pergunnahs,—(No. 1, dated Alipore, the 14th April 1869.)

With reference to your note on Dr. Farrell's report on the cattle disease that lately raged in the Diamond Harbour Sub-division, I have the honor to submit the following remarks.

2. In the first part of his report, Dr. Farrell gives a summary of his proceedings and of the history of the disease; in the second, he describes the symptoms of the disease; in the third, its treatment; and in the fourth, the food most appropriate for cattle during illness, and the sanitary measures to be adopted during the prevalence of the murrain.

3. As regards the history of the disease, Dr. Farrell is mistaken in saying that it first broke out at Dulalpore in May. On referring to my annual general report No. 43, of date the 1st February last, you will perceive that the disease was brought over from the other side of the river so early as January 1868. Some ryots of Bansberia, Pergunnah Shabapore, purchased a few head of cattle at the Oolaberia hât, where a large number of cows and bullocks from Midnapore and Orissa are weekly sold, and these, it is believed, brought the seeds of the disease with them; for it was immediately after their arrival that the disease broke out at Bansberia. From Bansberia the murrain travelled in a south-westerly direction and attacked a number of cattle in the village of Luckipore. It then took a southerly direction and appeared in the village of Bosar. Thence it extended on the one side attacking successively Belpukhurree, Culpee, Ramessurpore, &c., to the west, and on the other to Khari, Poorrndropoor and the neighbouring villages to the east. Its subsequent cause I cannot correctly trace, as it spread very rapidly and became general nearly all over the sub-division.

4. Dr. Farrell thinks (paragraph 8) that the course of the disease was checked by the Diamond Harbour creek. This may have been the case, but I find that the disease prevailed on both sides of the creek with almost equal virulence, and proved as fatal on the sides of rivers and creeks as in villages far removed from water-courses. It is also certain that it crossed several channels of water in its course.

5. I have no doubt that the causes noticed by Dr. Farrell (paragraph 9) had a great deal to do in bringing on the murrain in the southern parts of the 24-Pergunnahs, for none can deny, and it is a truism, that defective sanitary arrangements, privation and neglect, lead to disease; but it must be borne in mind that the disease under notice is common all over Bengal, and is not unknown in the North-Western Provinces, and that its ravages are neither enhanced by rank vegetation and damp soil, nor mitigated by high dry land and clean pastures. In Burdwan, Bancoorah, Hazareebaugh, and Beerbhoom,—places noted for their high, dry, and well drained soil, the disease is often as severe as it has ever been on the damp, low, alluvion of the 24-Pergunnahs. It may be also remarked that generally it breaks out with the greatest virulence in the months of February, March, and April, and altogether disappears in the rainy season. It is true that at Diamond Harbour its severity was at its height in July, August, and September, but even there it first broke out in January. It may also be noticed that the floods which submerged a great part of the Diamond Harbour Sub-division in June last, and deprived the cattle of their natural food for three or four weeks, and then offered them a rank unhealthy vegetation for fodder, contributed much to render the murrain much more fatal than it usually is in this part of the country.

6. As regards the purely professional part of Dr. Farrell's report, I can offer no remark. But I have much pleasure in bearing my testimony to the zeal and assiduity with which he attended to the onerous duty which was entrusted to him, and the ready attention he paid to the representation of the people.

7. His treatment, I must own, did not prove very efficacious, and the death-rate, according to his own showing, exceeded 60 per cent. But the disease, (gotee) like cholera, is one for which I believe no effectual remedy has yet been discovered.

8. Of the number of cattle carried away by the disease, I have already submitted a statement along with my last annual general report. A copy of it I hereto annex for ready reference. It shows a total of 26,151 heads of cattle, which, at an average of Rupees 10 per head, would represent a loss of Rupees 2,61,510; nor was this all, the mortality among the cattle having been at its height during the season of paddy cultivation, the ryots were obliged, from want of cattle labor, to leave about one-fourth of their fields uncultivated, and the loss to them from this source amounted at the lowest calculation to over two lacs of Rupees. Some of the ryots replaced their lost cattle two or three times successively, but unfortunately the disease which was then raging swept away the newly-purchased batches and the cultivators were ultimately obliged to leave their lands fallow.

From A. SMITH, Esq., Magistrate of 24-Pergunnahs, to the Commissioner of the Presidency Division,—(No. 183, dated Alipore, the 7th May 1869.)

WITH reference to your No. 292, dated the 27th April, the epidemic broke out in January, though it was not reported as especially virulent till June.

2. The weekly reports were got from the Police, and are only for a part of the time, besides which they are not, I fear, very trustworthy.

3. Baboo Hem Chunder Kur informs me that his estimate, as given in his letter under notice, was based upon enquiries made from the chief zemindars, and ascertained by an agent deputed from village to village for the purpose.

4. Dr. Farrell's figures refer to deaths from the cases reported and treated.

5. No official action was taken until the report from Sooltanpore in July. I had heard previously that deaths were very numerous among the cattle, but they were attributed to starvation, no food being available owing to the extreme height of the inundation, and so not capable of any remedy.

6. The Deputy Magistrate's annual report is herewith forwarded for perusal and return.

From BABOO HEM CHUNDER KUR, Deputy Magistrate, 24-Pergunnahs, to A. SMITH, ESQ., Magistrate of 24-Pergunnahs,—(dated Alipore, the 3rd May 1869.)

WITH reference to the letter No. 292 of the 27th ultimo, from the Commissioner of the Presidency Division to your address, I have the honor to state that the figures showing the number of deaths caused by the murrain in the Diamond Harbour Sub-division during the past year must of necessity be in excess of the figures given in my weekly returns and in Mr. Farrell's final report.

It has already been brought to your notice that the plague made its appearance and commenced its havoc in January 1868. The Veterinary Surgeon was deputed only in August last, and he remained on the field of his labor, I believe, till November or the early part of December following. His figures, therefore, can never tally with those given by me. It will be seen that both the weekly returns, which began to be submitted either at the end of July or the commencement of August, and Dr. Farrell's statement, do not embrace the whole year during which the plague was raging.

I joined the sub-division in about the middle of January 1868, and some two or three months afterwards (I write from memory) I heard of the outbreak of small-pox amongst the cattle. I then commenced instituting inquiries, and these inquiries were being made when your No. 39 of the 7th July last was received. On the following day I was on the scene of the plague, and on the 9th submitted my first report in the matter. I then stated that the murrain had broken out in Chytro or March, but subsequently I learnt that it had appeared in January last.

In the beginning of the present year I deputed a man well acquainted with the country to all the villages affected, in order to ascertain the number of cattle that had been carried off by the pestilence. I got my figures by this means.

From the HON'BLE A. EDEN, Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Judicial Department, to the Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department,—(No. 808, dated Fort William, the 21st June 1869.)

IN July last the Officiating Commissioner of the Presidency Division reported the great prevalence of cattle disease in the Diamond Harbour Sub-division and recommended that a Veterinary Surgeon might be deputed to the place. An application was accordingly made to the Military Department, and the services of Mr. H. Farrell were placed at the disposal of this Government.

2. The enclosed copy of a communication* from the Officiating Commissioner of the Presidency Division gives particulars of the outbreak, and contains Mr. Farrell's report of his proceedings.

* No. 144, dated 14th ultimo, and enclosures.

3. Since the epidemic, on which Mr. Farrell's Report is based, two outbreaks of cattle disease have occurred in the 24-Pergunnahs, and Mr. Farrell is now employed in doing what he can to check this disease in the Soonderbuns. Besides this, several outbreaks have occurred in other districts, and the loss which is entailed upon the agricultural industry of the Lower Provinces is becoming yearly more alarming. The matter is, moreover, one of such importance to the country, that, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, Government is bound to incur any reasonable expense in endeavouring to check it.

4. His Honor therefore proposes to apply permanently for the services of Mr. Farrell, and would then permit him to engage twenty salootries or native farriers (some of whom are, he says, men of considerable experience and promise) and train them thoroughly in the treatment of all these cattle murrains, and in a knowledge of the preventive measures necessary for stamping the disease out.

5. These men Mr. Farrell should take with him to any district to which he is sent by Government, and give them a thorough practical training. They will then form the nucleus of a Subordinate Veterinary Establishment, which might be employed by Government in all parts of the country in advising the villagers in outbreaks of cattle disease; and by degrees a general knowledge of the course of treatment and prevention which should be followed in such cases would get diffused abroad, and zemindars and others might perhaps be induced to send men to Mr. Farrell to go through a course of instruction. Hereafter possibly a self-supporting, or nearly self-supporting Veterinary School might be formed,—an institution that is really very much wanted in India.

6. The scheme, the outline of which is here sketched, can be elaborated in consultation with district officers, if it meets with the approval of the Government of India. Meanwhile, the Divisional Commissioners have been consulted as to whether the Police can, without special legislation, enforce a few simple rules in regard to the segregation of diseased animals, the scoring of the hides of cattle that have died of the disease, so as to render them useless for sale, and the burial of the carcasses.

From the HON'BLE A. EDEN, Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Judicial and Political Departments, to the Secretary to the Agricultural and Horticultural Society,—(No. 1427, dated Fort William, the 4th August 1869.)

IN continuation of the endorsement No. 368, dated the 6th May, I am directed to forward, for the information of the Agricultural and Horticultural Society, a copy of the correspondence noted on the margin, regarding the operations of Veterinary Surgeon Mr. Farrell in connection with the cattle disease prevalent in the district of Jessore. I am to enquire whether the Society have any specific suggestions to make on the subject.

Letter from Officiating Commissioner of the Presidency Division, No. 211, dated the 22nd ultimo, with enclosures.
Letter to Officiating Commissioner of the Presidency Division, No. 1424 of this date.

From A. H. BLECHYNDEN, ESQ., Secretary to the Agricultural and Horticultural Society, to the HON'BLE A. EDEN, Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Judicial and Political Departments,—(dated Calcutta, the 20th September 1869.)

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 1427, dated 4th ultimo, and to reply thereto.

2. The Council of this Society learnt with satisfaction that the subject of special legislation in regard to the cattle disease is engaging the attention of the Government.

3. The specific remedies which appear to be called for have already been so ably brought to notice both by Dr. Palmer and Dr. Macleod of Jessore, and have been so carefully noted in detail, particularly by the latter authority, that the Society have but little to say on the subject.

4. The most important preventives, however, appear to be—

1st.—The segregation of all diseased cattle.

2nd.—The removal, if possible, of all healthy cattle to a locality at some distance from the spot at which the disease first manifests itself.

3rd.—The cremation, if practicable, or, in its absence, the deep burial, of the entire carcass, including the hide.

4th.—The prohibition of skinning all carcasses save those of animals slaughtered for food.

5th.—The prohibition of all traffic in hides in the affected districts.

6th.—The proclamation of all infected districts, and the stoppage of all cattle traffic to and from these districts; such proclamation to be made after report from competent local authority.

5. The Council are aware of the difficulty of enforcing the strict observance of the above recommendations; but looking to the fact that nothing short of legislation, and instant burial of diseased carcasses was of any avail in England (where the people are so much more alive to their own interests in such matters in times of plague and murrain), there can be but little doubt, it is submitted, that nothing short of legislation on the subject will enforce, under more unfavorable circumstances, the observance in this country of the precautions suggested.

6. It appears to the Council that all the circumstances connected with the present epizootic require very stringent measures to check the disease, which, according to present information, has shewn itself over so large a tract of country as from the south-west frontier to the districts of Assam.

7. The magistracy may do something by making known the remedies suggested by Dr. Macleod and put in practice by Mr. Veterinary Surgeon Hiram Farrell, and by impressing on the police the necessity of immediately reporting all cases of infection in their several beats, as well as by endeavouring to effect the segregation of diseased cattle; but it is impossible to do much without the aid of the landholders, as well as the people themselves.

8. The Magistrate of Jessore, in his letter No. 989 of the 10th July 1869, gives a lamentable picture of the apathy of the cattle owners in his district in regard to the disease which is devastating their herds. The self-interest of owners of cattle in England was at one time as much the cause of the spread of the disease as the apathy of the cattle owners is here; for before infected districts were proclaimed, many cattle owners, who found that the disease had shewn itself in the herds, quietly slaughtered the affected, kept their own counsel, and sold off the remainder on the principle of the first loss being the least. It was not till infected districts had been proclaimed, a cordon put round them, and all communication between them and other districts had been strictly prohibited, that this cause of the spread of disease was put down. It is not too much to say that similar causes for the spread of the disease exist in this country.

9. There are periodical markets and small fairs, independently of the large annual cattle fairs which are held at intervals, varying from a week to a month or two; such markets and fairs are held in Ooloobaria and Dum-Dum: at the latter place we believe that the market is a weekly one. It is within the knowledge of the Council that cattle constantly pass from the one place to the other, and as both places are infected districts, there is not only no chance of stopping the disease in either place, but rather there is the certainty, by constant inter-communication, of perpetuating it. Other places, of course, communicate with these two, and similar inter-communication takes place between other districts over the whole country. These two markets are quoted merely because the facts in connection with them are within the knowledge of the Council. They present it as submitting a good ground for action being taken in the line indicated by the sixth suggestion, as given before under paragraph 4.

10. Whilst strongly urging the necessity of resort to special legislation, the Council would suggest that it would be desirable to make a strong appeal to the landholders throughout the country, calling on them to aid in the eradication of a disease the effects of which must so strongly affect their own interests. Such an appeal, if properly made, will, the Council think, bear some fruit, if not by inducing them to perform a public duty, at any rate by making clear to them the great personal interests they have at stake.

11. It is true that many landholders are absentees, but all have what they consider competent local managers, and an order from the landholder to his Naib would go a great way towards procuring assistance.

12. The headman in each village might be made responsible to the district officer for the immediate report of all cases of the outbreak of the disease.

The village chowkeydar is usually aware of every thing that goes on in his beat, and he should be likewise made responsible to the headman for the report of all cases of the disease shewing itself in his beat.

13. Whilst the headman is thus vested with a responsibility, it is but fair that he should be clothed with some authority in return; and it is suggested that he should have power to insist on the segregation of diseased cattle, the cremation of their corpses, the prevention of skinning hides, and the stoppage of the traffic in hides to or from his village. He should have power to call in the aid of the village chowkeydar, and, if both are unequal to the task, to summon the regular police to their assistance; a written requisition to this effect being always preferred to the Inspector.

14. By a recent order in Council in England, the owner of infected cattle is bound to give notice to the police of any outbreak of disease among his own herd, and himself to take immediate measures for the segregation of the infected animals. Some such order as this should be adopted with a penalty attaching to owners of cattle neglecting to comply with the terms of the order.

15. Some such plan as this, in which the people themselves are interested in the cause, would go far to aid legislation. The actual mode of working out this suggestion, the Council would leave, as regards details, to the experience of district officers.

16. There is one more remedy which the Council would mention, and that is, the recourse to what is called in England stamping out the disease: in other words, the immediate destruction of all infected animals. This is a violent remedy, but it was found absolutely necessary in England, and it may be found necessary here. It was found necessary in America, for the disease spread with alarming rapidity from Texas to New York, a far greater track to traverse than from the Russian Steppes to Great Britain. In the state of Illonois, wholesale slaughter of infected cattle and strict prohibition of the importation of foreign cattle alone stopped the plague. The same was the case in Kansas, Missouri, Ohio, New Jersey, Pensylvania, and New York.

17. Seeing the rapidity with which the cattle disease spreads itself, this remedy appears to the Council as one which ought not to be neglected whenever the outbreak of the disease is of a virulent type in any particular district.

18. With reference to the subject of special legislation, I am directed to submit a rough draft of the form which, in the opinion of the Council, the legislation should take. It is an adaptation with trifling alterations of 11 and 12 Vict., c. 105, sections 1 to 3, and of 11 and 12 Vict., c. 107, sections 1 to 4, 7, 8, 10, 11, 14, 15, and 19.

19. The Council would also wish to urge the necessity of imparting instructions to natives in veterinary knowledge, so as to enable them to battle with this disease. The recommendations of Mr. Veterinary Surgeon Farrell to the Magistrate of the 24-Pergunnahs, in his letter of 20th March, sufficiently indicate the course such instruction should take. Even if Mr. Farrell's suggestions be carried out on a limited scale, good cannot but result.

I. WHEREAS it is expedient, in order to prevent the introduction of contagious or infectious disorders among cattle, sheep, or other animals, that power should be given to the local Government to take such measures as may appear necessary for preventing or regulating the importation of such animals from districts in which such infectious or contagious disorders prevail, it is hereby enacted that it shall be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, to prohibit the importation of cattle into particular districts or places that may be named in such notification.

II. And be it further enacted that it shall be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, to make such regulations for subjecting cattle, sheep, or other animals to quarantine, or for causing the same to be destroyed, or for destroying any hay, fodder, straw or other article by which it may appear that contagion may be propagated, and generally to make such regulation as may be necessary to prevent the introduction or spread of any contagious or infectious disorder.

III. And be it enacted that if any cattle, sheep, or other animals shall be imported, or attempted to be imported, or introduced from an infected district, such cattle, sheep, or other animals shall be dealt with in accordance to the rules published under the foregoing section for their disposal by treatment.

IV. Further, whereas in contagious or infectious disorders, known and described as puccheema and gotee, now prevailing among cattle in the districts of Bengal, and it is necessary to check such disorders and prevent them from spreading, it is also hereby enacted that in case any cattle so infected with or laboring under their disorders, or any disorders of the like nature be exposed or offered for sale, or be brought or attempted to be brought for the purpose of being so exposed or offered for sale in any market fair, or other open and public place where other animals are commonly exposed for sale, it shall be lawful for the Inspector or any other officer of Police, headman, or chowkeedar of the village or place in which such market is held, or for any other person authorized by the district officer or any Justice of the Peace having jurisdiction in the place, or for any person authorized or appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, to seize the same and to report the seizure to the district officer or the District Superintendent of Police, or to any person having jurisdiction in the place. And it shall be lawful for such district officer or District Superintendent of Police, or person having jurisdiction in the place, either to restore the same or cause the same together with any pens, fencing, troughs, litter, straw, or other articles which he may judge likely to be infected thereby, to be forthwith destroyed or otherwise disposed of, or as may be directed in manner hereinafter provided.

V. Any person bringing or attempting to bring any cattle, sheep, or other animals into any such market or fair as aforesaid, knowing such cattle, sheep, or other animals to be infected or laboring under either of the disorders aforesaid, shall upon conviction thereof forfeit and pay for each and every such offence a sum not exceeding rupees (100) one hundred.

VI. And be it enacted that if any person turn out, keep, or depasture any cattle, sheep, or other animals laboring under the said disorder upon any forest, wood, marsh, or waste land, open field or roadside or other undivided or unenclosed land, such person shall, on conviction, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding rupees (100) one hundred.

VII. And for the more effectually preventing the spreading of contagious diseases, be it enacted that it shall be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal from time to time to make and issue such orders as to him may seem necessary for the purpose of prohibiting and regulating the removal to or from such places or districts as may be designated in such orders of cattle, sheep, or other animals, or of meat, skins, hides, horns, hoofs, or other parts of any animals; of hay, straw, fodder, or other articles likely to propagate infection, and also for the purpose of purifying any yard, stable, out-house or other places, or any waggons, carts, carriages or other vehicles, and also for the purpose of directing how animals that are dying in a diseased state, or any animals, parts of animals or other things seized under the provisions of this Act, are to be disposed of, and also for the purpose of causing notices to be given of the appearance of any disorder among cattle, sheep, or other animals, and to make any orders or regulations for the purpose of giving effect to the provisions of this Act, and to vary, alter, and revoke any such orders or regulations, and all persons offending against the same shall, for each or every offence, forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding rupees (100) one hundred.

VIII. And be it enacted that in case any person wilfully obstruct or impede any person acting under authority of this Act, every person so offending, and all others aiding and abetting or assisting therein, shall and may be seized and detained by such person so acting under authority of this Act as aforesaid, or any person or persons he may call to his assistance until such offender or offenders can be conveniently taken before some Magistrate or Justice of the Peace having jurisdiction in the district or place wherein such offence shall be committed, and when convicted before such Magistrate or Justice of the Peace as aforesaid, (who is hereby authorized and required upon complaint to him upon oath to take cognizance thereof, and to act summarily in the premises,) shall, in the discretion of such Magistrate or Justice of the Peace, forfeit any sum not exceeding rupees 50, and in default of payment thereof shall and may be imprisoned for any term not exceeding two calendar months, unless the amount of the penalty shall have been sooner discharged.

IX. And be it enacted that every penalty or forfeiture imposed by this Act may be recovered by summary proceeding before a Magistrate or Justice of the Peace, and upon the exhibition of any information in writing before any Justice of the Peace or Magistrate, such Magistrate or Justice of the Peace shall issue a summons requiring the party complained against to appear before a Magistrate or Justice of the Peace having jurisdiction at a time and place to be named in such summons, and every such summons shall be served on the party offending, either in person, or by leaving the same with some inmate at his last or usual place of abode, and upon the appearance of the party complained against, or, in his absence, after proof of service of such summons, it shall be lawful for any Justice of the Peace or Magistrate having jurisdiction to proceed to the hearing of the complaint, and upon proof of the offence, either by the confession of the party complained against, or upon the oath of one creditable witness or more, it shall be lawful for such Magistrate or Justice of the Peace to convict the offender, and upon such conviction to adjudge the offender to pay such penalty as may seem fit, and not greater than the penalty or forfeiture specified in this Act, as well as such costs attending the conviction as to such Magistrate or Justice of the Peace shall seem fit.

X. And be it enacted that if forthwith on any such adjudication as aforesaid, the amount of the penalty or forfeiture, and of such costs as aforesaid, be not paid, the amount of such penalty and costs shall be levied by distress, and such Magistrate or Justice of the Peace, or any other Justice of the Peace or Magistrate having jurisdiction as aforesaid, shall issue his warrant of distress accordingly.

XI. And be it enacted that it shall be lawful for any such Magistrate or Justice of the Peace to order any offender so convicted as aforesaid to be detained and kept in safe custody until return can be conveniently made to the warrant of distress, to be issued for levying such penalty or forfeiture or costs, unless the offender give sufficient security by way of recognizance or otherwise to the satisfaction of the Magistrate or Justice of the Peace for his appearance before him on the day appointed for such return, such day being not more than eight days from the time of taking such security, but if before issuing such warrant of distress it appear to the Magistrate or Justice of the Peace, by the admission of the offender or otherwise, that no sufficient distress can be had within the jurisdiction of such Magistrate or Justice of the Peace whereon to levy such penalty, forfeiture, and costs, he may, if he think fit, refrain from issuing such warrant of distress, and in such case, or if such warrant shall have been issued, and upon the return thereof such insufficiency as aforesaid shall be made to appear to such Magistrate or Justice of the Peace, then such Magistrate or Justice of the Peace shall, by warrant, cause such offender to be committed to gaol, there to remain without bail for any term not exceeding two months, unless penalty or forfeiture and costs be sooner paid and satisfied.

XII. And be it enacted that when in this Act any sum of money, whether in the nature of penalty or otherwise, be directed to be levied by distress, such sum of money shall be levied by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the party liable to pay the same, and the overplus arising from the sale of such goods and chattels, after satisfying such sum of money and the expenses of distress and sale, shall be returned on demand to the party whose goods shall have been distrained.

XIII. And be it enacted that no person shall be liable to the payment of any penalty or forfeiture imposed by virtue of this Act for any offence made cognizable before a Justice of the Peace or Magistrate, unless the complaint respecting such offence shall have been made before such Magistrate or Justice of the Peace within one month next after the commission of such offence.

XIV. And be it enacted that it shall be lawful for any Magistrate or Justice of the Peace to summon any person to appear before him as a witness on any matter in which such Magistrate or Justice of the Peace shall have jurisdiction under the provisions of this Act, at a time and place mentioned in the summons, and to administer to him an oath to testify the truth in such matter, and if any person so summoned shall without reasonable excuse refuse or neglect to appear at the time and place appointed for the purpose, having been paid or tendered a reasonable sum for his expenses, or if any person appearing shall refuse to be examined on oath or to give evidence before such Magistrate or Justice of the Peace, every such person shall forfeit a sum not exceeding rupees 50 for each offence.

XV. From the HON'BLE A. EDEN, Secretary to the Government of Bengal Judicial Department, to the Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department,—(No. 2119, dated Fort William, the 9th October 1869.)

IN my letter No. 808, dated 21st June last, a scheme was laid before the Government of India, having for its object the creation of a trained body of native farriers whom the Government might from time to time employ in treating and checking the cattle disease, which has now so long been prevalent in Bengal. It was further intimated that a reference had been made to the Commissioners of divisions, with a view to elicit their opinions on the feasibility of giving effect, without legislation, to a few simple rules for the segregation of diseased cattle, the destruction of contaminated hides, and the disposal of affected carcasses. The result of the reference has been to lead the Lieutenant-Governor to a decided conclusion that, without special legislation, no measures adequate to the gravity of the occasion can be carried into effect. If legislation has been found to be necessary in England, where enlightened self-interest may be fairly supposed to have considerable influence, it must be the more essential in India, where the natural apathy of the people is rendered fatally disastrous by their ignorance or disregard of the most ordinary sanitary laws, and their utter recklessness as to how individual action may affect the general mass. This conclusion would seem already to have forced itself upon at least one Government in India, and the Madras Act II. of 1866 gives the force of law to those regulations which the local Government deemed most suited to the circumstances of that presidency. That a similar measure is called for in Bengal, may be shown by referring to the fearful ravages which cattle disease, under one form or other, has been making during the present year and last.

2. In the 24-Pergunnahs the number of deaths in the Diamond Harbour sub-division alone was, at the time of Mr. Farrell's first inspection, 800 per week. The total number of cases actually attended to by Mr. Farrell and his assistants between August 1868 and January 1869 was 6,735, while the total number of deaths, as estimated by the Magistrate's native subordinates, was over 26,000. These last figures may be, and no doubt are, exaggerated, but they convey an idea of the extent to which the ravages of the epidemic have impressed the native mind. In February and April fresh outbreaks took place in various parts of the same district, and though no accurate statistics are procurable, there is this one fact reported, that 1,000 head of cattle died within a circuit of ten miles on the occasion of the latest outbreak.

3. In the Palamow sub-division of Chota Nagpore the disease appeared in the form of small-pox, and took an epidemic form early in February, carrying off, up to the middle of June, from 10 to 15,000 head of cattle at the lowest estimates. In the Sonthal Pergunnahs, it broke out at Nullah about the middle of March; but the peculiar system of administration there in force enabled the local officers to enforce segregation and insist on sanitary precautions, and the disease died out in the course of April, after causing a loss of only 714 head. In the district of Shahabad the murrain showed itself in March and April, and 563 deaths were reported from two of the pergunnahs lying in the south of the district before the beginning of May. This was said to be a yearly occurrence in those parts. In Mymensingh 285 head of cattle died from July up to the 9th of August, in seven small villages within the jurisdiction of one police station. Traces of the disease were found also in Balasore.

4. But it is in Assam that the ravages of the disease have this year been most fatal. The first report of its prevalence came from the district of Luckimpore, about the middle of April. So great at that time had been the mortality, that the local officers anticipated a deficiency in the amount of the summer crop. Early in May the attention of the Deputy Commissioner of Seebsaugor was attracted by the number of carcasses lying about the roads, when it was found that the plague had already carried off many hundreds. From the date on which the disease first appeared in this district up to 31st August 1869, 69,967 cattle were reported to have died, the disease has since sensibly abated. On the 18th June the Commissioner reported that it had appeared in Kamroop during May, but not in a violent form. The total number carried off in this district was afterwards said to amount to 4,580 head up to the 15th June. In Durrung the mouzadars reported that between February and May 26,741 cattle had died. In Nowgong also the pest had broken out; and in the fortnight ending 31st May 7,320 deaths were reported. In June, however, it suddenly abated, and only 1,332 deaths were returned for the first fortnight of that month. Since that time the epidemic has chiefly confined its ravages to the neighbourhood of Dibrooghur.

5. The returns of mortality in all the above instances, being based on the reports of the mouzadars, are not entirely trustworthy, but no doubt can remain of the extreme virulence and far reaching progress which have characterised the cattle epidemic of 1869.

6. All that Government could do in the absence of legislation has been done. Mr. Farrell has been at work in the 24-Pergunnahs, and with the small staff at his disposal is believed to have done much good. He has now been dispatched to Assam. The local officers have been repeatedly instructed to insist, so far as they can, upon the segregation of diseased cattle, the destruction of their hides, and the proper disposal of the carcasses. Simple instructions for the treatment of the disease drawn up by Mr. Farrell have been widely circulated in the vernacular. Dr. McLeod's valuable report has also been frequently brought to notice. Special instruction suited to each case has been sought for from Mr. Farrell from time to time. But if the evil is to be adequately met, special powers and adequate funds must be placed in the hands of Government.

7. The Lieutenant-Governor observes that under the Madras Act any expenditure not recovered from the owners of the cattle is met from the Pound Fund under Act III. of 1857. He thinks that Government would be fully justified in spending the surplus income of that Fund in Bengal in setting on foot an adequate machinery for dealing with the disease, which, if unchecked, will fast denude the country of its agricultural live stock, and have a most detrimental effect upon the condition of the people generally. The Madras Government has been asked to favor the Lieutenant-Governor with an account of the mode in which the local Act in that Presidency has hitherto worked, and especially as regards the provision of a class of pound-keepers sufficiently skilled to deal with the disease. The Lieutenant-Governor will now call upon Commissioners to report how far the Madras Act is applicable to Bengal. A communication has also been received from the Agricultural and Horticultural Society, (a copy of which is forwarded herewith,) urging the necessity of legislation and submitting a draft Act calculated in their opinion to meet the objects in view. This will also be forwarded to Commissioners for consideration and early report. Meantime I am to ask for an expression of opinion on the part of the Government of India, in regard to the necessity for legislation and the propriety of providing funds in the manner above indicated. A bill to give effect to such measures might be introduced in the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor for making laws and regulations.

8. I am at the same time to draw the attention of the Governor General in Council to the scheme propounded in my letter No. 800 of the 21st June, already referred to. No success can attend preventive measures unless a class competent to detect and deal with cases of disease be created, and the Lieutenant-Governor can see no more economical way of securing this than by some such plan as that already submitted to the Government of India. The men roughly trained in the manner proposed would be available for distribution to the districts, and might either act as pound-keepers or might teach the pound-keepers how to act in the event of cattle disease breaking out. Mr. Farrell has already had application made to him to give instruction in the matter to two young zemindars, and there is reason to hope that many would avail themselves of the opportunity and send their servants to receive instruction.

9. I am to request that, with the permission of His Excellency the Governor General in Council, steps may be taken to procure from the Secretary of State for India, for the use of this Government, on as early a date as practicable, all Acts, orders of council and legislative reports on the cattle disease in England.

From A. MACKENZIE, Esq., Officiating Junior Secretary to the Government of Bengal, to the Secretary to the Government of Fort St. George,—(No. 2123, dated Fort William, the 9th October 1869.)

I AM directed to request that you will, with the permission of His Excellency the Governor in Council, favor the Lieutenant-Governor with any information that may have been laid before your Government, showing how Act II. of 1866, for the prevention of the spread of disease among cattle in the Madras Presidency, has worked in practice; and especially as to the mode in which a class of men sufficiently trained to act as hospital pound-keepers has been provided.

2. It is contemplated to introduce a similar measure in Bengal, and the Lieutenant-Governor is desirous of learning whether the experience of the Madras Government can suggest any modifications in the law there in force.

Patna Crop Report.

From R. P. JENKINS, ESQ., Commissioner of the Patna Division, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Revenue Department,—(No. 140R., dated Patna, the 15th October 1869.)

I HAVE the honor to submit my report on the condition and prospects of the several districts of this division for the month ending 30th September last.

2. Chumparun.—The Collector reports that there have been good showers of rain during the month; that the soil throughout the district is moist, and the season favorable for the rice crop, and that should there be a few heavy showers of rain during the present month, the "out-turn of the rice crop will be most favorable." I may add, that I have this day received a private letter from the Collector, in which he mentions that there had been "a week's good rain, and that there is no longer any apprehension for next year. "Indigo," he observes, "may also be considered safe for next year."

3. Gya.—The accounts from this district are very good. Rain has fallen abundantly in most parts, and the crops promise well. On the 8th instant there was a very severe storm, "which, the "Collector writes," bore somewhat the appearance of a Cyclone," but it does not appear to have done any damage.

4. Patna.—The Collector reports as follows: "The rice crop may now be considered safe, owing to the seasonable rain during the month under report. Another heavy downfall a little later would be advantageous, but still, even if it should not rain again, there is no reason for apprehension, so far as the aghani is concerned. The sowing of the rubbee has hardly commenced.

"Prices have steadily fallen in Patna and along the Ganges. Further inland there has been little reduction, owing to the comparative absence of imported grain."

5. Sarun.—Prospects are now everywhere good in this district. The Collector estimates the macyi crop, which has been entirely reaped, to be "fully a 16-anna one;" and "the other crops" are said to be "looking well." During the last three weeks of the month rain fell all over the district, and the Collector "confidently expects that if seasonable rain falls during the next fortnight (i. e., between 1st and 14th October,) the out-turn of rice will be at least from 12 to 14 annas."

6. Shahabad—There has been a plentiful fall of rain in this district, and the aghani rice crop may now be said to be safe. "The poorer classes," the Collector remarks, "are in every way improving." In a portion of the Bhabooah Sub-division the prospects of the rice crop are less favorable than elsewhere; but taking the Sub-division as a whole. "the general prospects" are described by the Deputy Collector as "considerably encouraging."

At the lowest estimate the Collector thinks that "a 10-anna aghani crop" will be secured throughout the district.

7 Tirhoot.—The bhadoi crop is reported to have been an exceptionally good one everywhere, "and rain has fallen very seasonably all over the district. The Collector writes: "If we have a continuance (of rain) till the middle of this month, the rice crops generally may "be, I think, considered safe to be a good one. Bhawara seems to have been less fortunate, and "more rain is there urgently required.

"In Tajpore the rice crops are at present very promising, though in higher lands still "depending on a further fall of rain. The tobacco crop there is most promising. At Paro and "the neighbourhood there have at length been favorable falls of rain."

8. The district reports arrived in the following order:—

Sarun	2nd October.
Shahabad
Gya	4th ditto.
Tirhoot	5th ditto.
Chumparun	9th ditto.
Patna	10th ditto.

9. I may mention that Gya, Sarun, and Shahabad, are the only districts in which purely relief works are still going on, and that I hope very shortly to close all such works; and I need only add that the rain that was so generally required during the first fortnight of the present month has fallen in each district, and that there have been high floods very recently, which have also benefitted the rice crops in many places.

Power to ascertain market-value or net profits.

8. In order to ascertain the market-value or the annual net profits of any such land, house or garden as is mentioned in section seven, paragraphs four and five, for the purpose of computing the fee leviable on the institution of a suit relating thereto, the Court may either of its own motion, or on the application of any party to the suit, issue a commission to any proper person directing him to make such local or other investigation as may be necessary, and to report thereon to the Court, and the decision of the Court as to such market-value or profits shall, for the purpose aforesaid, be final.

Procedure where market-value or net profits erroneously estimated.

9. If in the result of any such investigation the Court shall find that the market-value or net profits has or have been erroneously estimated, the Court shall either, as the case may be, refund the excess paid as such fee, or require the plaintiff to pay so much additional fee as would have been payable had the said market-value or net profits been correctly estimated; and in such case the suit shall be stayed until the additional fee shall have been paid.

10. In suits for mesne profits or for immoveable property and mesne profits, if the profits decreed are in excess of the profits claimed, the decree shall not be executed until the difference between the fee actually paid and the fee which would have been payable had the suit comprised the whole of the profits so decreed shall have been paid to the proper officer.

Such difference shall be calculated by the Court according to the rules above-mentioned, and shall be costs in the suit.

Refund of fee paid on petition of appeal.

Provided that, if, in the case of a remand in appeal, the order of remand shall not cover the whole of the subject-matter of the suit, the certificate so granted shall not authorize the appellant to receive back more than so much fee as would have been originally payable on the part or parts of such subject-matter in respect whereof the suit has been remanded.

Additional fee where respondent takes objection to unappealed part of decree.

12. When any appeal is presented to a Civil Court, not against the whole of a decision, but only against so much thereof as relates to a portion of the subject-matter of the suit, and, on the hearing of such appeal, the respondent takes, under section 348 of the Code of Civil Procedure, an objection to any part of the said decision other than the part appealed against, the Court shall not hear such objection until the respondent shall have paid the additional fee which would have been payable had the appeal comprised the part of the decision so objected to.

Such additional fee shall be calculated by the Court according to the rules above-mentioned, and shall be costs in the suit.

Decision of questions as to valuation.

13. All questions relating to valuation for the purpose of determining the amount of fee chargeable under this chapter on a petition of plaint or of appeal, shall be decided by the Court in which such petition is filed, and except as provided by section eight, shall be subject to any appeal to which the orders of such Court are open.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The rates of Stamp fees leviable in Courts and offices established beyond the local limits of the ordinary original Civil jurisdiction of the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay, and in proceedings on the appellate side of such High Courts, were, as fixed by Act XXVI of 1867, to a great extent tentative. The experience gained of their working during the two years in which they have been in force, seems to be conclusive as to their repressive effect on the general litigation of the country. It is, therefore, thought expedient to make a general reduction in the rates now chargeable on the institution of civil suits, and to revert to the principle of a maximum fee which obtained under the former law.

It is proposed also to reduce the valuation fixed by the existing law for the computation of the fee leviable on suits relating to land under temporary settlement or land exempt from the payment of revenue to the Government which is believed to be, at least relatively, excessive, as compared with the valuation of permanently-settled land; and to provide for the valuation of suits relating to mere parcels of land, which, though forming part of estates under settlement, bear no specific allotment of any portion of the assessment of Government revenue on such estates, at the estimated selling price of such land, as was the rule in those cases under Act X of 1862.

The want of some fixed valuation applicable to certain classes of suits—as for example, suits instituted between landlord and tenant to recover a right of occupancy or enforce ejectment, or suits for maintenance or for an annuity,—the subject-matter of which, though not absolutely indeterminable, is certainly not susceptible of ready determination, has given rise to much uncertainty and variety in the procedure adopted by the several Courts in such cases; and the amendment of the existing law in this respect is felt to be urgently called for.

In deference to the strong objections entertained by the local authorities in certain Provinces to the retention of the fee imposed on the presentation of certain petitions in the Criminal Courts, it is proposed to reduce the amount of such fee from one rupee to eight annas.

The uniform exaction of a fee of eight annas in the case of all petitions addressed to a Revenue Officer or a Magistrate, works harshly in its application to such communications when presented by persons having dealings or transactions with the Government in relation to such transactions. Equitable considerations require that petitions of this kind should be excepted from the operation of the general rule, and the Bill makes suitable provision for such cases.

The ad valorem fee now chargeable on summary suits instituted under Act XVI of 1838 and the Bombay Act (V of 1864) is represented as working unsatisfactorily, and the substitution of a fixed rate is recommended.

It is to be observed that an award in such cases is liable to be set aside by a judgment passed in regard to the same matter in a regular suit, hence it appears more equitable to treat these summary suits as miscellaneous applications and to subject them to a similar fixed institution-fee.

As the Bill provides for a considerable reduction of the fees heretofore chargeable on Civil suits of small amount, it seems unnecessary to maintain the present distinction between the Courts of Cantonment Joint-Magistrates and other Civil Courts in respect of the amount of fee leviable on the institution of such suits.

It is proposed also to exempt suits instituted in a Military Court of Requests from the payment of any fee. The constitution of such Courts is peculiar; they form no part of the regular machinery employed in the general administration of justice; the present measure therefore is inapplicable to them. Moreover, the suitor in such Courts is placed at this disadvantage as compared with suitors in the ordinary Civil Courts that, although he may gain his case, he is unable to recover the costs which he has incurred in prosecuting his claim: hence the incidence of the taxation imposed by the levy of an institution-fee in such cases is inequitable.

Suits for the restitution of wives, which are of common occurrence in the Panjáb, are held to be somewhat excessively taxed under the present law, which prescribes that in suits the money value of the subject-matter of which cannot be estimated, a fixed fee of Rs. 10 shall be levied; the Bill substitutes for that rate in such cases a special fee of Rs. 5.

The clause in Act XXVI of 1867, exempting Advocates of a High Court from the obligation of presenting to any Court a written authority empowering them to act in any case pending in such Court, is excluded from the Bill. Such a provision appears to be beyond the scope of an enactment for regulating the levy of Court fees. It is, moreover, open to the objection that it conflicts with Section 18 of the Civil Procedure Code, and consequently creates some doubt as to the intention of the Legislature.

As some measure of compensation for the loss of revenue which is expected to result from the general reduction of fees, it is proposed to discontinue the refund of any portion of the amount levied on the first institution of suits, and also to raise the fees heretofore chargeable on probates and letters of administration granted under the Indian Succession Act, and on certificates issued under Act XXVII of 1860, to the ad valorem rates leviable under the English law in like cases.

The abolition of refunds is justified by the consideration that for all practical purposes in the majority of cases, the plaintiff, whose suit has not gone beyond the stage at which under the present law he is entitled to recover a moiety of the institution-fee, has gained as much through the Court's agency as the suitor whose case has proceeded to a decision, and that therefore, on the principle on which all Court fees are adjusted, the former should contribute in equal proportion with the latter to the maintenance of the Courts from whose action both derive an equal benefit.

In lieu of the existing rates of process-fees, which vary according to the distance of the Court by which the processes are issued from the place where they are to be served or executed, it is proposed to levy, by means of stamps, an uniform rate in all cases. All suitors will thus be required to contribute in equal proportion to the maintenance of the establishment employed in the serving of processes, without reference to the length of time occupied in each service and the consequent amount of work rendered on behalf of each person at whose instance any process is served or executed.

Such a provision is in accordance with the modern system under which the charges in the Postal and Electric Telegraph Departments are regulated, and is also more equitable to the general community.

The incorporation of the High Court Fees Act (XV. of 1868) with, and the transfer of so much of the provisions of the Pársí Marriage and Divorce Act, 1865, the Native Converts' Marriage Dissolution Act, 1866, the Panjáb Tenancy Act, 1868, the Indian Divorce Act, and the Indian Income Tax Act, as relate to the levy of stamp fees in judicial proceedings to the present Bill, appear to be conducive to public convenience, as the whole of the existing law relative to fees leviable in all Courts of Justice will thus be contained in one enactment.

With the same object this Bill purports to effect a complete re-arrangement of the provisions of the existing law on this subject, a similar classification of instruments chargeable with Court fees to that which obtains in the General Stamp Act having been adopted, and the rules for determining the value of the subject-matter of certain suits being transferred from the Schedule where they are to be found in Act XXVI. of 1867, to the body of the proposed Act.

Lastly, that for the future there may be no confusion between stamp-revenue proper and the revenue derived from what have heretofore been termed 'judicial stamps,' the proceeds of the proposed enactment are to be designated Court fees, and the Bill is entitled accordingly.

When a notice has been already served under section sixteen of the said Act on a person chargeable with additional duty under the last preceding section, a supplementary notice shall be served upon him; and the provisions as to notices and receipts contained in the said Act shall, mutatis mutandis, apply respectively to such supplementary notices and to receipts granted for payments in pursuance thereof.

Bar of petitions in respect of additional duty.

7. No person shall be entitled, in respect only of the additional duty with which he is assessed under this Act, to apply by petition under section nineteen of the Indian Income Tax Act.

This Act to be read with Act IX of 1868.

8. This Act shall be read with and taken as part of the Indian Income Tax Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE revision which has lately been made of the Estimates for the current year 1869-70, shows that the financial position of the Government of India is less favourable than was anticipated when the Budget Estimate was framed in March last; and it is clear that, unless remedial measures are at once adopted, the year will close with a serious deficit.

The reasons which have led the Government of India to this conclusion, have been given in detail in the Despatch to the Secretary of State, No. 240, dated the 20th September 1869, which is now before the public; and the Government has declared its determination to take immediate measures for placing the finances of the Empire on a thoroughly sound basis.

With the consent of the Governments of Madras and Bombay, an increase has been ordered in the duties levied on salt in those Presidencies; and it is now proposed to make an increase for the remainder of the year in the rate at which the Income Tax is levied under Act IX of 1869.

The present Bill proposes to increase the rate of Income Tax, for the second six months of the current financial year, from one to two per cent. The payment for the whole year will, therefore, be at the rate of one and a half instead of one per cent.

The alteration in the law can hardly come into full effect before the 1st December next. In the case of salaries, annuities, and pensions assessable under Part II of the Indian Income Tax Act, it is therefore proposed that the additional amount of duty shall be obtained by declaring that such salaries, annuities, or pensions becoming payable after the 30th November 1869, shall be subject, during the last four months of the current year, to a deduction of two and a half per cent. The total payment for the year will thus be raised to one and a half per cent.

Companies assessable under Part III of the Act will be called on to pay, on the 1st December 1869, an additional sum equal to one half of the duty already assessed or assessable.

In the case of all other incomes assessable under Part IV of the Act, the additional duty will be equal to one half the amount assessed or assessable under Schedule A of the Act. No further alterations in the existing system of taxation are contemplated by the Government during the present financial year.

The provisions of the present Bill will only have effect up to the end of the current financial year, when the financial position of the Government will necessarily be again brought under consideration.

The measures which have now been announced by the Government are designed solely to meet, as far as may be practicable, the deficit which we must anticipate for the present year.

Having thus stated the objects and reasons of this Bill,—which, although of a temporary character indicates, nevertheless, the determination of the Government to place the finances in a condition which shall preclude the probability of future deficits and the necessity for incurring debt to meet the ordinary charges of the year,—it is proper to notice the fact that much greater efforts must have been made, and more serious burdens must have been imposed on the public, but for the resolute determination of the Government to enforce economy in all departments of the administration.

In the Public Works Department, orders have already been issued, and are now before the public, the object of which is to reduce expenditure, during the remainder of the current year, to the extent of nearly £800,000.

In the Civil Departments, measures of economy are under consideration, and it is hoped that important reductions of expenditure will be found practicable, without any interference with the discharge of those great duties which we owe to the people of India.

In the Military Department, propositions for largely reducing the present expenditure have been submitted to Her Majesty's Government. It will be evident that questions affecting the organisation of the Army cannot be dealt with by the Government of India alone. It is confidently believed that it will be possible to effect a large reduction of Military expenditure without diminishing the actual numbers of the British Army in India, or in any way impairing our real military strength.

SIMLA,
The 2nd October 1869.

WHITLEY STOKES,
Secy. to the Council of the Govr.-Genl. for making Laws and Regulations.

Government of Bengal.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Act of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council received the assent of His Honor on the 21st August 1869, and having been assented to by His Excellency the Governor General on the 15th October 1869, is hereby promulgated for general information:—

ACT NO. VIII OF 1869.

An Act to amend the Procedure in Suits between Landlords and Tenants.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the procedure in suits between Landlords and Tenants in the Provinces subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal; It is enacted as follows:—

Interpretation of "Collector."

I. In the construction of this Act the word "Collector" shall include a Deputy Collector in charge of a Sub-division or other officer exercising the powers of a Collector of a District or of a Deputy Collector in charge of a Sub-division, by whatever designation such officer may be called.

Ryots entitled to a pottah.

II. Every ryot is entitled to receive from the person to whom the rent of the land held or cultivated by him is payable, a pottah containing the following particulars:—

The quantity and boundaries of the land; and where fields have been numbered in a Government survey, the number of each field.

The amount of annual rent.

The instalments in which the same is to be paid.

And any special conditions of the lease.

If the rent is payable in kind, the proportion of produce to be delivered and the time and manner of delivery.

Ryots holding land at fixed rates to receive pottahs.

III. Ryots who, in any Province to which this Act may apply, hold lands at fixed rates of rent, which shall not have been changed from the time of the Permanent Settlement of such Province, are entitled to receive pottahs at those rates.

Presumption if rent of land be not changed for 20 years.

IV. Whenever, in any suit under this Act, it shall be proved that the rent at which land is held by a ryot in any such Province has not been changed for a period of twenty years before the commencement of the suit, it shall be presumed that the land has been held at that rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement, unless the contrary be shewn, or unless it be proved that such rent was fixed at some later period.

Ryots having right of occupancy, but not holding at fixed rates, to receive pottahs.

V. Ryots having rights of occupancy, but not holding at fixed rates as described in the two preceding Sections, are entitled to receive pottahs at fair and equitable rates. In case of dispute, the rate previously paid by the ryot shall be deemed to be fair and equitable, unless the contrary be shewn in a suit by either party under the provisions of this Act

Right of occupancy of ryot cultivating or holding land for 12 years.

VI. Every ryot who shall have cultivated or held land for a period of twelve years shall have a right of occupancy in the land so cultivated or held by him, whether it be held under pottah or not, so long as he pays the rent payable on account of the same; but this rule does not apply to Khomar, Neejjote, or Seer land belonging to the proprietor of the estate or tenure and let by him on lease for a term, or year by year, nor (as respects the actual cultivator) to lands sub-let for a term, or year by year, by a ryot having a right of occupancy. The holding of the father or other person from whom a ryot inherits shall be deemed to be the holding of the ryot within the meaning of this Section.

Saving of terms of written contracts.

VII. Nothing in the last preceding Section shall be held to affect the terms of any written contract for the cultivation of land entered into between a land-holder and a ryot, when it contains any express stipulation contrary thereto.

Pottahs to which ryots not having rights of occupancy are entitled.

VIII. Ryots not having rights of occupancy are entitled to pottahs only at such rates as may be agreed on between them and the persons to whom the rent is payable.

If on trial of suit for delivery of pottah, parties do not agree as to the time for which the pottah is granted, Court to fix the time.

Proviso.

IX. If on the trial of a suit for the delivery of a pottah instituted by a ryot having a right of occupancy, the parties do not agree as to the term for which the pottah is to be granted, the Court shall fix such term as under the circumstances of the case may seem just and proper: provided that the term shall not in any case be longer than ten years, and, in estates not permanently settled, shall not extend beyond the period for which the proprietor of the estate has engaged with Government: provided also that if the defendant be a farmer or other person having only a temporary interest in the land, the term of the pottah shall not extend beyond the period of the continuance of such interest. For cultivators not having a right of occupancy, the term of pottah shall be exclusively in the discretion of the person entitled to the rent of the land.

Person granting pottah entitled to a counterpart engagement.

X. Every person who grants a pottah is entitled to receive from the person to whom the pottah is granted, a kubooliyet or counterpart engagement in conformity with the terms of the pottah. The tender to any ryot of a pottah, such as the ryot is entitled to receive, shall be held to entitle the person to whom the rent is payable to receive a kubooliyet from such ryot.

Damages for exactions in excess of rent or for receipt withheld.

Form of receipt.

XI. Every under-tenant or ryot, from whom any sum is exacted in excess of the rent specified in his pottah, or payable under the provisions of this Act, whether as abwab or under any other pretext, and every under-tenant, ryot, or cultivator, from whom a receipt is withheld for any sum of money paid by him as rent, shall be entitled to recover from the person receiving such rent, damages not exceeding double the amount so exacted or paid. Receipts for rent shall specify the year or years on account of which the rent is acknowledged to have been paid; and any refusal to make such specification shall be held to be a withholding of a receipt.

Landholder not to compel the attendance of tenant for adjustment of rent or for any other purpose.

Payment of rent to be enforced under this Act.

XII. All power at any time heretofore vested in zemindars and other landholders, of compelling the attendance of their tenants for the adjustment of their rents, or for any other purpose, is withdrawn; and all such persons are prohibited from adopting any means of compulsion for enforcing payment of the rents due to them, other than by suit or distress or otherwise under the provisions of this Act.

Damages for extorting payment of rent by duress.

XIII. If payment of rent, whether the same be legally due or not, is extorted from any under-tenant or ryot by illegal confinement or other duress, such under-tenant or ryot shall be entitled to recover such damages, not exceeding in any case the sum of two hundred Rupees, as may be deemed a reasonable compensation for the injury done him by such extortion. An award of compensation under this Section shall not bar or affect any penalty or punishment to which the person practising such extortion may be subject by law.

Enhancement of rent of ryot holding without, or after expiry, &c., of written engagements.

XIV. No under-tenant or ryot, who holds or cultivates land without a written engagement, or under a written engagement not specifying the period of such engagement, or whose engagement has expired or has become cancelled in consequence of the sale for arrears of rent or revenue of the tenure or estate in which the land held or cultivated by him is situate, and has not been renewed, shall be liable to pay any higher rent for such land than the rent payable for the previous year, unless a written notice shall have been served on such under-tenant or ryot, in districts or parts of districts where the Fuslee year prevails, in or before the month of Jeyt, and in districts or parts of districts where the Bengalee year prevails, in or before the month of Poos, specifying the rent to which he will be subject for the ensuing year, and the ground on which an enhancement of rent is claimed. Such notice shall be served by order of the Collector in whose jurisdiction the lands are situate, on the application (which may be on plain paper) of the person to whom the rent is payable, and shall, if practicable, be served personally upon the under-tenant or ryot. If for any reason the notice cannot be served personally upon the under-tenant or ryot, it shall be affixed at his usual place of residence; or, if he have no such place of residence in the District in which the land is situate, the mode of service of such notice shall be by affixing it at the Mal

XVI. No dependent talookdar, or other person possessing a permanent transferable interest in land intermediate between the proprietor of an estate and the ryot, who, in any province to which the provisions of this Act may apply, holds his talook or tenure (otherwise than under a terminable lease) at a fixed rent which has not been changed from the time of the Permanent Settlement, shall be liable to any enhancement of such rent, anything in Section LI, Regulation VIII of 1793, or in any other law, to the contrary notwithstanding.

Any ryot, who desires to relinquish the land held or cultivated by him, shall be at liberty to do so, provided he gives notice of his intention, in writing, to the person entitled to the rent of the land, or his authorized agent, in districts or parts of districts where the Fuslee year prevails, in or before the month of Jeyt, and in districts or parts of districts where the Bengalee year prevails, in or before the month of Poos, of the year preceding that in which the relinquishment is to have effect. If he fail to give such notice, and the land is not let to any other person, he shall continue liable for the rent of the land. If the person entitled to the rent of the land, or his agent, refuse to receive any such notice, and to sign a receipt for the same, the ryot may make an application on plain paper to the Collector, in whose jurisdiction the lands are situate, who shall thereupon cause the notice to be served on such person or his agent in the manner provided in Section XIV.

If the declaration shall contain any averment which the person making the declaration shall know or believe to be false, or shall not know or believe to be true, such person shall be subject to punishment according to the law for the time being in force for the punishment of giving or fabricating false evidence. Upon receiving the money so deposited, the Court shall issue a notice to the person to whose credit it has been deposited, in the form set forth in the Schedule (B) hereto annexed; and such notice shall be served by the Court, without the payment of any fee, either upon the person to whom it is addressed, or upon his Naib, Gomashtah, or other agent; and in the absence of any such agent, it shall be served by sticking up a copy of the same in the said Court, and another copy upon the Mal Cutcherry for the receipt of rents, or other place where the rents are usually paid for the land in respect of which the money has been deposited. If after such payment the plaintiff elects to proceed in the suit, and ultimately recovers no further sum than shall have been paid into Court, the plaintiff shall be charged with the whole costs of the suit incurred by the defendant; but if the plaintiff ultimately recovers a further sum than shall have been paid into Court, the defendant shall be charged with the whole costs of the suit.

If after such payment the plaintiff elects to proceed in the suit and ultimately recovers no further sum than shall have been paid into Court, he shall be charged with all costs incurred by the defendant subsequently to such payment; but if the plaintiff ultimately recovers a further sum than shall have been paid into Court, the defendant shall be charged with costs as upon a suit originally instituted, for the whole amount for which the plaintiff ultimately obtains a decree, but shall have credit thereout for the amount of costs paid into Court by him in the first instance.

Provided, however, that in cases to which Section LII of this Act is applicable, no such order shall be made until after the expiration of fifteen days from the date of the decree.

Execution of decrees given in favor of sharers in undivided estates or tenures.

LXIV. If a decree is given in favor of a sharer in a joint undivided estate, dependent talook, or other similar tenure, for money due to him on account of his share of the rent of an under-tenure, situate in such undivided estate, talook, or tenure, no order for the sale of such under-tenure in execution of such decree, shall be made unless and until all moveable property, (if any), which such judgment-debtor may possess within the jurisdiction of the Court in which the suit was instituted, shall have been seized and sold in execution of such decree, and the sale of such property, if any, shall have proved insufficient to satisfy the judgment. In such case such under-tenure, if of the nature described in Section LIX, may be seized and sold in execution of such decree, according to the ordinary procedure of the Court and not in the manner provided in the said Section, and every such sale shall have such and the same effect as the sale of any immoveable property sold in execution of a decree not being for arrears of rent payable in respect thereof.

Execution of judgment.

LXV. In the execution of any decree for the payment of any money under this Act, not being money due as arrears of rent of a saleable under-tenure, if satisfaction of the judgment cannot be obtained by execution against the person or moveable property of the debtor within the district in which the suit was instituted, the judgment-creditor may apply for execution against any immoveable property belonging to such debtor.

Purchaser to acquire the under-tenure, with certain exceptions, free of incumbrances.

LXVI. The purchaser of an under-tenure under the provisions of Sections LIX and LX of this Act shall acquire it free of all incumbrances which may have accrued thereon by any act of any holder of the said under-tenure, his representatives or assignees, unless the right of making such incumbrances shall have been expressly vested in the holder by the written engagement under which the under-tenure was created, or by the subsequent written authority of the person who created it, his representatives or assignees: provided that nothing herein contained shall be held to entitle the purchaser to eject khoodkhast ryots or resident and hereditary cultivators, nor to cancel bonâ fide engagements made with ryots or cultivators of the classes aforesaid by any holder of the under tenure or his representatives, except it be proved in a regular suit to be brought by such purchaser for the adjustment of his rent, that a higher rent would have been demandable at the time such engagements were contracted by his predecessor. Nothing in this section shall be held to apply to the purchase of a tenure by the previous holder thereof through whose default the tenure was brought to sale.

Zemindar how to proceed if purchaser do not register.

LXVII. The purchaser of an under-tenure sold under this Act shall apply to the zemindar or other landholder within fifteen days from the day of sale to have his name registered in the zemindar or other landholder's books as the purchaser, and shall execute a kubooliyet on the same terms and conditions on which the under-tenure was held by the defaulter; and if such application be not made within fifteen days, it shall be lawful for the zemindar or other landholder to sue the said purchaser for the delivery of a kubooliyet.

Produce of the land to be held hypothecated for the rent.

Arrears of rent may be recovered by distraint under the following rules.

Cultivators who have given security to be exempt from distraint.

LXVIII. The produce of the land is held to be hypothecated for the rent payable in respect thereof; and when an arrear of rent, as defined in Section XXI of this Act, is due from any cultivator of land, the zemindar, lakhrajdar, farmer, dependent talookdar, under-farmer, or other person entitled to receive the rent of such land immediately from the actual cultivator thereof, instead of bringing suit for the arrear as hereinbefore provided, may recover the same by distraint and sale of the produce of the land on account of which the arrear is due, under the following rules. Provided always that, when a cultivator has given security for the payment of his rent, the produce of the land for the rent of which security has been given, shall not be liable to distraint.

Proviso.

Provided also that no sharer in a joint estate, dependent talook, or other tenure in which a division of lands has not been made amongst the sharers, shall exercise the power of distraint otherwise than through a manager authorised to collect the rents of the whole estate, talook or tenure, on behalf of all the sharers in the same.

No distraint in certain cases.

LXIX. Distraint shall not be made for any arrear which has been due for a longer period than one year; nor for the recovery of any sum in excess of the rent payable for the same land in the preceding year, unless a written engagement for the payment of such excess has been executed by the cultivator.

Power of distraint to be exercised by managers under the Court of Wards, &c.

LXX. The power of distraint vested by Section LXVIII in zemindars and other persons entitled to receive rent from cultivators of land, may be exercised by managers under the Court of Wards, Surburakars, and Tehseeldars of estates held under khas management, and other persons lawfully entrusted with the charge of landed property; and also by Naibs, Gomastahs, and other agents employed by any such persons as aforesaid in the collection of rent, if expressly authorised by power of attorney in that behalf;

LXXI. Standing crops and other ungathered products of the earth, and crops or other products when reaped or gathered, and deposited in any threshing-floor or place for treading out grain or the like, whether in the field or within a home-stead, may be distrained by persons invested with the powers of distraint under the provisions of this Act. But no such crops or products other than the produce of the land in respect of which an arrear of rent is due, or of land held under the same engagement, and no grain or other produce after it has been stored by the cultivator, and no other property whatsoever, shall be liable to distraint under this Act.

Defaulter to be served with a written demand, &c., before or at the time of distraint.

LXXII. Before or at the time when distraint is made under this Act, the distrainer shall cause the defaulter to be served with a written demand for the amount of the arrear, together with an account exhibiting the grounds on which the demand is made. The demand and account shall, if practicable, be served personally on the defaulter, or if he abscond or conceal himself so that they cannot be so served, shall be affixed at his usual place of residence.

Distress to be proportionate to the arrear if not paid or tendered.

LXXIII. Unless the amount of the demand is immediately paid or tendered, the distrainer may distrain property as aforesaid of value proportionate to the amount of the arrear with costs of the distress; and shall prepare a list or description of the said property, and deliver a copy of the same to the owner, or if he be absent affix it at his usual place of residence.

Standing crops, &c, when attached, to be reaped and stored by the cultivator, or, if he neglect to do so, by the distrainer.

LXXIV. Standing crops and other ungathered products may, notwithstanding the distraint, be reaped and gathered by the cultivator, and may be stored in such granaries or other places as are commonly used by him for the purpose. If the cultivator neglect to do so, the distrainer shall cause the said crops or products to be reaped or gathered, and in such case shall store the same either in such granaries or other places as aforesaid, or in some other convenient place in the neighbourhood. In either case the distrained property shall be placed in the charge of some person appointed by the distrainer for the purpose. Crops or products which from their nature do not admit of being stored, may be sold, before they are cut or gathered, under the rules hereinafter provided; but in such case the distraint shall be made at least twenty days before the time when the crops or products, or any part of the same, would be fit for cutting or gathering.

Distrainer may apply for aid to the Court upon occasion of resistance made or apprehended.

LXXV. If a distrainer shall be opposed, or shall apprehend resistance, and shall desire to obtain the assistance of a public officer, he may apply to the Court which under the provisions of this Act would have jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the rent for which such distrainer is about to distrain, and the Court may, if it thinks necessary, depute an officer to support the distrainer in making the distraint.

Persons empowered to distrain may give written authority to their servants to do so.

LXXVI. When any person, empowered to distrain property under Section LXVIII or Section LXX, shall employ a servant or other person to make the distress, he shall give to such servant or person a written authority (which may be on plain paper) for the same, and the distress shall be made in the name and on the responsibility of the person giving such authority.

Distress to be withdrawn if defaulter tender payment of arrear and expenses of attachment prior to the day of sale.

LXXVII. If at any time after property has been distrained, and prior to the day fixed for its being put up to sale as hereinafter provided, the owner of the property shall tender payment of the arrear demanded of him and of the expenses of the distress, the distrainer shall receive the same, and shall forthwith withdraw the distress.

LXXX. Immediately on receipt of any application under the provisions of the next preceding Section, the Court to which such application shall have been made, shall appoint an officer to conduct the sale of such property and shall cause to be served a notice [which shall be in the Form contained in the Schedule (C) to this Act, or to the like effect] on the person whose property has been distrained, requiring him either to pay the amount demanded, or to institute a suit to contest the demand before such Court within the period of fifteen days from the receipt of the notice; and shall at the same time cause to be affixed upon some conspicuous place in the Court-house, a proclamation fixing a day for the sale of the distrained property, which shall not be less than twenty days from the date of the application; and shall deliver a copy of the proclamation to the peon charged with the service of the notice, to be put up by him in the place where the distrained property is deposited The proclamation shall contain a description of the property, the demand for which it is to be sold, and the place where the sale is to be held.

Sale to be suspended when suit instituted.

LXXXI. If a suit shall be instituted in pursuance of the aforesaid notice, the Court shall suspend proceedings in regard to the sale of the distrained property, and shall certify to the officer appointed to conduct the sale such suspension.

Suit to contest distrainer's demand before issue of notice of sale.

LXXXII. Any person whose property has been distrained in the manner in this Act provided, may institute a suit to contest the demand of the distrainer immediately after the distraint of his property, and before the issue of notice of sale; when such suit is instituted, the Court shall suspend proceedings in respect of the sale of such property.

Distress to be withdrawn on receipt of Court's certificate that the owner has executed a bond to pay amount of decree with interest and costs.

LXXXIII. The person whose property has been distrained, may, at the time of instituting any such suit as aforesaid, or at any subsequent period, execute a bond with sufficient security, binding himself and his sureties to pay whatever sum may be adjudged to be due from him with interest and costs of suit; and when such bond is executed, the Court shall give to the owner of the property a certificate to that effect, or, if so requested, shall serve the distrainer with notice of the same, and upon such certificate being presented to the distrainer by the owner of the property, or served on him by order of the Court, the property shall be released from distraint.

Value of claim in suits disputing distress.

LXXXIV. The estimated value of the claim made in any suit filed under the provisions of Sections LXXX, LXXXII, & XCVI, or any of them, shall be deemed to be the amount of arrears of rent for which the distraint shall have been made.

On expiration of period fixed in the proclamation of sale, if institution of suit to contest distrainer's demand have not been certified, sale may be proceeded with.

LXXXV. On the expiration of the period fixed in the proclamation of sale, if a suit to contest the demand of the distrainer be not in the meantime instituted in the Court and certified to the officer appointed to conduct the sale, such officer shall, unless the said demand, with such costs of the distress as shall be allowed by him, be discharged in full, proceed to sell the property, or such part of it as may be necessary, in the manner hereinafter prescribed.

Place and manner of sale of distrained property.

LXXXVI. The sale shall be held at the place where the distrained property is deposited, or at the nearest gunge, bazar, haut, or other place of public resort, if the officer appointed to conduct the sale should be of opinion that it is likely to sell there to better advantage. The property shall be sold by public auction in one or more lots as such officer holding the sale may think advisable, and if the demand with the costs of distress and sale be satisfied by the sale of a portion of the property, the distress shall be immediately withdrawn with respect to the remainder.

If fair price be not offered, sale may be postponed to another day, and shall be then completed at whatever price may be offered.

LXXXVII. If on the property being put up for sale a fair price, in the estimation of the officer holding the sale, be not offered for it, and the owner of the property or some person authorised to act on his behalf apply to have the sale postponed until the next day or the next market day, if a market be held at the place of sale, the sale shall be postponed until such day, and shall be then completed, whatever price may be offered for the property.

Payment of purchase-money.

LXXXVIII. The price of every lot shall be paid for in ready money at the time of sale, or as soon after as the officer holding the sale shall think necessary, and in default of such payment the property shall be put up again and sold. When the purchase-money has been paid in full, the officer holding the sale shall give the purchaser a certificate describing the property purchased by him and the price paid.

Proceeds of sale.

LXXXIX. From the proceeds of the sale of distrained property, the officer holding the sale shall make a deduction at the rate of one anna in the Rupee on account of the costs of the sale, and shall transmit the amount to the Court, in order that it may be credited to Government. He shall then pay to the distrainer the expenses incurred by the distrainer on account of the distress and of the issue of the notice and proclamation of sale prescribed in Section LXXX, to such amount as, after examination of the statement of expenses furnished by the distrainer, he shall think proper to allow. The remainder shall be applied to the discharge of the arrear for which the distraint was made, with interest thereupon up to the day of sale; and if there be any overplus, it shall be delivered to the person whose property shall have been sold

Officers holding sales prohibited from purchasing.

XC. Officers holding sales of property under this Act, and all persons employed by or subordinate to such officers, are prohibited from purchasing, either directly or indirectly, any property sold by such officers.

All irregularities to be reported to the Court.

XCI. Officers holding sales of distrained property are required to bring to the notice of the Court any material irregularities committed by distrainers under color of this Act: and if in any case, on proceeding to hold a sale of property, such officer shall find that the owner of the property has not received due notice of the distress and intended sale, he shall postpone the sale and report the case to the Court, and the Court shall direct the issue of another notice and proclamation of sale under Section LXXX, or pass such other order as may seem proper.

Recovery of expenses if officers proceed to place of sale and no sale take place.

XCII. When any such officer has proceeded to any place for the purpose of holding a sale, and no sale takes place either for the reason stated in the last preceding Section, or because the demand of the distrainer has been previously satisfied, no intimation of such satisfaction having been given by the distrainer to such officer, the charge of one anna in the Rupee on account of expenses shall be leviable, and shall be calculated on the estimated value of the distrained property. If the demand of the distrainer be not satisfied until the day fixed for the sale, the charge for expenses shall be paid by the owner of the property, and may be recovered by the sale of such portion thereof as may be necessary. In all other cases the Court shall make an order that such expenses shall be paid by the distrainer, and shall in such order fix the amount to be paid by him; such amount not to exceed the sum of ten Rupees: and the amount by such order directed to be paid may be recovered from such distrainer as if such order were a decree of such Court.

Proceedings of officers, &c., subject to revision and orders of Court.

XCIII. All proceedings under this Act of the officers appointed to hold sales of distrained property shall be subject to the revision and orders of the Court to which they respectively are attached, and the Court may require the submission of such reports and statements of business performed by such officers as may be thought necessary.

Second proclamation of sale.

XCIV. When a suit has been instituted to contest the demand of a distrainer, and the property has not been released on security, if the demand or any portion of it shall be adjudged to be due, the Court shall issue an order to the officer appointed to conduct the sale of such property and furnish a copy of such order to the distrainer, authorising the sale of the property; and on the application of the distrainer, which shall be made within five days from the receipt by him of such copy of such order, such officer shall publish a second proclamation in the manner prescribed in Section LXXX, fixing another day for the sale of the distrained property, which shall not be less than five nor more than ten days from the date of the proclamation; and unless the amount adjudged to be due with the costs of distress, including any costs of suit which may be ordered to be paid by the person instituting such suit, be paid intermediately, shall proceed to sell the property in the manner hereinbefore provided.

Procedure after institution of suit to contest distrainer's demand.

XCV. In all suits instituted to contest the demand of a distrainer, the distrainer shall be required to prove the arrear in the same manner as if he had himself instituted a suit for the amount. If the demand or any part thereof is found to be due, the Court shall make a decree for the amount in favor of the distrainer, together with such costs of suit as to such Court may seem proper, and the amount may be recovered by sale of the property as provided in the last preceding Section if the distress has not been withdrawn, and if any balance remain due after such sale, by execution of the decree against the person and any other property of the defaulter, or if the property has been released on security, by execution of the decree against the person and property of the defaulter and of his surety. If, on the other hand, the distraint is adjudged to be vexatious or groundless, the Court, besides directing the release of the distrained property, may award such damages in favor of the plaintiff as the circumstances of the case shall seem to require, and may decree the costs of the suit to be paid by the distrainer.

Any person whose property has been distrained for arrears of rent alleged to be due from another, may institute a suit against the distrainer.

XCVI. If any person shall claim as his own, property which has been distrained for arrears of rent alleged to be due from any other person, such person may institute a suit against the distrainer and such other person to try the right to the possession of the property in such Court, and in like manner and under the same conditions as to the time of instituting the suit and to the consequent postponement of sale, as a person whose property has been distrained for an arrear of rent alleged to be due from him may institute a suit to contest the demand. When any such suit is instituted, the property may be released upon security being given for the value of the same. If the claim is dismissed, the Court shall make an order for the sale of the property or the recovery of the value thereof, as the case may be, for the benefit of the distrainer, and for payment of such costs of suit to such distrainer, as to such Court shall seem fit. If the claim is upheld, the Court shall decree the release of the distrained property with costs, and such damages (if any) as the circumstances of the case may seem to require. Provided always that no claim to any produce of land liable to distraint under this Act, which at the time of the distress may have been found in the possession of a defaulting cultivator, whether such claim be in respect of a previous sale, mortgage, or otherwise, shall bar the prior claim of the person entitled to the rent of the land ; nor shall any attachment in execution of a judgment or decree of any Court prevail against such prior claim.

Persons prevented from suing in time to save their property from sale, may sue for damages.

XCVII. If any person, whose property has been distrained for the recovery of a demand not justly due or of a demand due or alleged to be due from some other person, is prevented by any sufficient cause from bringing a suit to contest the demand or to try the right to the property, as the case may be, within the period allowed by Sections LXXXII and XCVI, and his property is in consequence brought to sale, he may nevertheless institute a suit under this Act to recover damages for the illegal distress and sale of his property.

Also persons aggrieved by any illegal act of distrainer.

XCVIII. If any person empowered to distrain property, or employed for the purpose under a written authority by a person so empowered, shall distrain or sell, or cause to be sold, any property for the recovery of an arrear of rent alleged to be due otherwise than according to the provisions of this Act, or if any distrained property shall be lost, damaged, or destroyed by reason of the distrainer not having taken proper precautions for the due keeping and preservation thereof, or if the distraint shall not be immediately withdrawn when it is required to be withdrawn by any provision of this Act, the owner of the property may institute a suit under this Act to recover damages for any injury which he may have thereby sustained.

Unlawful distraint.

XCIX. If any person not empowered to distrain property under Sections LXVIII and LXX of this Act, nor employed for the purpose under a written authority by a person so empowered, shall under color of this Act, distrain or sell or cause to be sold any property, the owner of the property may institute a suit under this Act to recover damages from such person for any injury which he may have sustained from the distraint or sale. The said person shall when the act complained of does not amount to criminal trespass, be liable to fine which may extend to three hundred Rupees, or to imprisonment, simple or rigorous, which may extend to two months, or to both, in addition to any damages which may be awarded against him in such suit.

Time for commencing suits for damages.

C. Provided always that any suit which may be instituted under any of the last three Sections shall be commenced within three months from the date of the occurrence of the cause of action.

Procedure on resistance to distraint, &c.

CI. If any person shall resist a distraint of property duly made under this Act, or shall forcibly or clandestinely remove any distrained property, the Court which would have jurisdiction in a suit for the rent for which such distraint was made, shall, upon complaint being made within fifteen days from the date of such resistance or removal, cause the person accused to be arrested; and if the offence be proved, and the offender be the owner of the property, shall order him to be imprisoned in the Civil Jail for six months, or until the whole arrear due to the distrainer, with all expenses and costs, shall be paid or levied by attachment and sale of the property of the offender under warrant of the Court. If the person convicted of the offence be any other than the owner of the property, he shall make good to the distrainer the value of the same, and shall further be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred Rupees, or, in default of payment thereof, to imprisonment for a period not exceeding two months.

No appeal from any decree of the District Judge for money below 100 Rupees, unless it involve the right to enhance rent or a title to land.

CII. Nothing in this Act contained shall be deemed to confer any power of appeal in any suit tried and decided by a District Judge, originally or in appeal, if the amount sued for, or the value of the property claimed, does not exceed one hundred Rupees, in which suit a question of right to enhance or vary the rent of a ryot or tenant, or any question relating to a title to land or to some interest in land as between parties having conflicting claims thereto, has not been determined by the judgment.

Review of judgment.

CIII. No application for a review of any judgment or order passed in any suit brought under the provisions of this Act shall be received by any Court after the expiration of thirty days from the date of such order or judgment, but nothing in this Section contained shall be deemed to apply to the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

The following Order issued by the Government of India, in the Home Department, is re-published for general information :—

No. 4823.—Simla, the 21st October 1869.—Notification.—Public.—By virtue of the power vested in the Governor General in Council by Section 21 of Act XXV. of 1867, entitled "An Act for the Regulation of Printing Presses and Newspapers, for the preservation of copies of books printed in British India, and for the registration of such books," His Excellency in Council is pleased to exempt from the operation of the clause in Section 18 of the said Act, which requires the payment of the sum of two Rupees to the officer keeping the catalogue of books, all such books as become the property of Government for educational purposes.

The following Orders issued by the Government of India, in the Financial Department, are re-published for general information :—

No. 3904.—Simla. the 11th October 1869.—Notification.—Leave and Allowances.—The following is substituted for the Resolution No. 1717, passed in this Department on the 30th June 1869 :—

RESOLUTION.—In the Resolution No. 409, passed in this Department on the 7th May 1869, it is provided that the rate of absentee allowance admissible to a civil officer proceeding on leave shall, in all cases, be shown in his last pay certificate by the Accountant-General of his Presidency; but in the case of a Covenanted Civil Servant, or Military Officer in civil employ, whose appointment has been changed within the period on his average salary for which his furlough allowance is to be calculated, the rate of furlough allowance will sometimes depend on the date on which he may make over charge of his office, and the Accountant-General of his Presidency will not be aware of that date at the time the last pay certificate is prepared if the absentee intends to embark at a port in a Presidency other than that in which he is employed, and has not to pass through the Accountant-General's station on his way to that port. For cases in which, for these reasons, the Accountant-General is unable to specify the rate of absentee allowance, the Governor General in Council is pleased to lay down the following in lieu of the rules prescribed in the 6th paragraph of the above-mentioned Resolution. The Accountant-General of the absentee's Presidency must send him a document in the Form A appended to this Resolution, leaving the fifth, sixth, eighth and ninth spaces on the face of the form blank, and forward a duplicate of it to the Accountant-General or District Officer at the port at which the absentee intends to embark for Europe. Before the absentee's departure from his station, the District Officer in charge of the treasury from which he last drew pay must fill up the sixth space on the face of the original form, and fill up and attest the certificate at the end of that form. The Accountant-General or District Officer at the port at which the absentee intends to embark for Europe must act up to the instructions in the letter to his address on the back of the form, must copy the entry in the sixth space on the face of the original form and the entries and signature in the certificate at the end of that document into the duplicate form, and must return the original form to the absentee. If he be an Accountant-General, he must, moreover, forward the duplicate form to the Local Government for transmission to the Secretary of State, and forward a copy of the certificate at the end of the form to the Accountant-General of the absentee's Presidency with a letter in the Form B. appended to this Resolution; but if he be a District Officer, he must forward the duplicate Form A. to the Accountant-General of his own Presidency, who must send it on to the Local Government for transmission to the Secretary of State, and forward a copy of the certificate at the end of the Form A. to the Accountant-General of the absentee's Presidency with a letter in the Form C. appended to this Resolution.

ORDER.—Ordered, that copies of the foregoing notification be forwarded to the Foreign, Home, Military, Public Works, and Legislative Departments; the Governments of Bengal, Madras, Bombay, the North-Western Provinces, and the Punjab; the Comptroller-General of Accounts; the Director-General of the Post Office of India; the Mint Master, Calcutta; the Head Commissioner of Paper Currency, Calcutta; the Accountants-General in Bengal, Madras, Bombay, the North-Western Provinces, the Punjab, and British Burmah; and the Deputy Accountants-General in the Central Provinces, Hyderabad, and Mysore.

A. EDEN,

Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

The following Order issued by the Government of India, in the Home Department, is re-published for general information :—

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India, in the Home Department (Police).

Nos. 730 to 738.—Simla, the 16*th October* 1869.—Police.—Resolution.—The necessity for reduction of expenditure in all Departments being urgent, it becomes an imperative duty to scrutinize the charges for Police which have now risen to a gross amount of nearly two and a half millions sterling annually.* Even after allowing for the receipts from municipalities and other sources,† the cost has, during the last few years, greatly increased, and such reductions as can be made without impairing the efficiency of the service must be carried out as rapidly as circumstances will admit. Nor will the fact of any Province having been hitherto allowed to have a fixed annual sum for its Police be permitted to stand in the way of reductions of general application.

2. His Excellency the Governor General in Council would not desire to reduce the numbers or pay of constables, or otherwise to issue orders affecting the minor details of Police administration, without previous reference to the Local Governments and Administrations. But there are changes which may be made on general principles, conducing greatly to economy in administration, and yet, in the opinion of His Excellency in Council, not injurious to efficiency. It may confidently be expected that all Local Governments and Administrations will readily accept these changes, and do their best to support the Government of India in the efforts now being made to retrench all redundant expenditure.

3. The first of the reductions to be made is in the appointment of Deputy Inspector-General of Police. The office has already been condemned as useless and abolished in the minor Administrations under the Government of India, and there is no doubt that it may equally well be abolished elsewhere. In Bengal one officer of this rank has been recently appointed for special detective service, and would necessarily be retained for the present; but. with this exception, in all Provinces the office of Deputy Inspector-General must be abolished. By these means fifteen appointments, costing annually in pay alone Rs. 2,28,000, will be dispensed with, and a further saving, estimated at the least at Rs. 72,000, on account of travelling allowances and establishments, will bring the total annual saving to three lakhs of rupees.

4. Another reduction which may be made is in the office of Assistant District Superintendent. The principal reason for maintaining this grade of officers is to train District Superintendents, as it would be inexpedient to entrust the Police charge of a District to a Superintendent wholly without experience. There are also places in which it is desirable to station an assistant on detached duty, and virtually in charge of a District, as, for instance, in the Naga Hills in Assam. These cases however are exceptional. Ordinarily assistants are employed to aid District Superintendents, although the work might be done as efficiently and more economically by experienced Inspectors.

5. The number of assistants therefore may safely be reduced to the number required to train young officers for Superintendents, and to serve on detached duty at places where an Inspector would not suffice.

6. In Regulation Provinces it will be necessary to retain some assistants with the former object.

7. In the smaller Non-Regulation Provinces, in fact in all, except perhaps the Punjab, it will be quite feasible to dispense altogether with Assistant Superintendents, except so far as their services are required for detached duty.

8. In carrying out this principle, it is estimated that the services of 107 Assistant District Superintendents may be dispensed with, causing a saving in pay alone of Rupees 4,50,000 annually; and if a moderate sum be added for travelling and other contingent expenses, the relief to the Police Budget will be under this head upwards of Rupees 5,00,000.

9. There will thus be a saving of 122 officers, and upwards of Rupees 8,00,000 per annum.

10. Other savings may doubtless be made, and it is believed that a further considerable sum can be struck off the Police expenditure; but His Excellency in Council does not consider it desirable to order other retrenchments without previous reference to Local Governments and Administrations.

11. The Governor General in Council requests that no appointments in the rank of Deputy Inspector-General, or Assistant District Superintendent, be filled up either permanently or temporarily pending the receipt of further instructions, which will be issued in detail to each Local Government and Administration.

12. The Governor General in Council desires further to express his conviction that, in giving effect to these reductions, endeavours will be made to absorb as far as possible the officers whose appointments are to be reduced, and to secure their employment, whether in their own Provinces or those adjacent to them, as occasions occur, in other branches of the Administration. In Non-Regulation Provinces it will be easy to provide for the reductions by transferring to other appointments some of the Police Officers who are qualified for other local duties; and it may be remarked generally that in these Provinces there is no objection whatever to promote Police Officers, who are properly qualified to appointments in the general Administration.

13. In all Administrations openings will be found in the Superintendents of Central Jails, in the new State Railways, in the Forest Department, in the establishments to be created in the Salt Department in Oudh and elsewhere, and in the arrangements for the employment of prisoners in large bodies on extramural labor.

14. For some Military Officers military appointments may gradually be found, and the Governor General in Council has no doubt that their claims will receive full consideration from the Commander-in-Chief of the armies to which they severally belong. In any case officers placed out of employ must have the preference over fresh candidates for any appointments for which they are fitted, and the Governor General in Council will be guided in the disposal of his own patronage by the same principle until all the officers displaced are provided for.

15. The reductions should begin to take effect as vacancies occur, but they must be completed by the 31st of March next; for provision will not be made in next year's Budget for the appointments which will under these orders be reduced.

ORDER.—Ordered, that a copy of the foregoing Resolution be forwarded to the Local Governments and Administrations noted in the margin for information and guidance.

VII. The Revenue Superintendent or other duly authorized Officer shall comply as speedily as possible, with all such applications. In the event of its being necessary or desirable, in order to comply with such application, to adopt any temporary expedient for raising the level or increasing the supply of water in the Canal, the Revenue Superintendent may call upon the Canal Engineers to carry out such expedient.

VIII. Should the Canal Engineers see any professional objection thereto, or should any difference of opinion arise between the Revenue Superintendent and the Canal Engineers regarding the manner of dealing with any particular application for water, and which involves a professional question, the same shall be referred to the Superintending Engineer for settlement, whose orders shall be final.

IX. Before any water is supplied to an applicant, the Revenue Superintendent, or any person authorized by him, shall cause an Agreement, according to Form B., to be executed between himself and the parties applying for such water. The flow of water in all Distributaries will be regulated by the Canal Engineers. The flow therefrom will be managed by the Revenue Superintendent and his Subordinates.

X. After such Agreement has been properly executed, the Revenue Superintendent shall attest it, and file the same, and shall deliver a counterpart to the applicant.

MANAGEMENT AND REGULATION OF ALL WORKS OF IRRIGATION CONNECTED WITH THE ABOVE MENTIONED CANALS.

XI. Unless it be otherwise specially agreed in any case, the Government will construct and maintain at the public cost distributing channels for the delivery of water within the lands of every village to which the means of irrigation can be conveniently given by the Canals. The sluices or outlets for supplying water from these channels will also be formed and maintained by the Government, and their positions will be settled by the Canal Engineers in communication with the Revenue Superintendent.

XII. The water-courses beyond these channels must be provided by, and at the cost of, the cultivators or landlords; but if the Revenue Superintendent pleases, he may, at the request of the persons interested, call upon the Canal Engineers to construct such water-courses for them, or assist them in their construction.

XIII. Every such water-course shall be carried out from the distributing channel from which it is fed for a distance of at least 50 feet from the centre of the channel in a direction perpendicular to the channel for a distance of at least half a mile from the main feeding channel. Two water-courses, and no greater number, may be formed side by side, if a space of at least 5 feet shall be preserved between the high water lines of such water-courses. Under all such circumstances, a clear space of not less than 50 feet from centre to centre of all water-courses shall be preserved for the distance of at least half a mile from the main feeding channel.

XIV. Every such water-course shall be liable to be made available for the use of persons not originally interested therein on the order of the Revenue Superintendent, subject to the payment by such persons of a reasonable share in the first cost and maintenance charges of the said water-course, and of all charges incurred for making the same suitable for the use of such persons.

Also, all needful works for the passage of water-courses across roads or natural lines of drainage, or vice versâ, shall be provided by the cultivators or landlords constructing or maintaining the same.

XV. A memorandum of Agreement shall be prepared at the time of opening every water-course, stating the shares of the first cost thereof, and of its subsequent maintenance, which shall be borne by the several parties interested in its construction or use, and any general conditions regarding the subsequent use and maintenance of the same; and it shall provide that it may be enforced by the Revenue Superintendent against every party thereto. Every memorandum aforesaid shall contain suitable clauses for giving effect to Rules XIII. and XIV.

XVI. If any question arises regarding the just shares of the first cost or maintenance charges of such water-courses to be borne by the cultivators or landlords, or regarding any changes that should equitably be made in the distribution of any such charges consequent on variations in the interests of the persons using the water-course or the supply of water derived from it, or regarding any other matter concerning the use or maintenance of such water-course, the same shall be enquired into and determined finally by the Revenue Superintendent.

XVII. The Revenue Superintendent may suspend the supply of water to any water-courses in respect to which the above Rules shall not be carried out, or which shall not be kept in proper repair, so long as the default continues.

XVIII. The Revenue Superintendent, as described in these Rules, shall be ex-officio Canal Officer and Collector, as defined in Act XII. of 1866, for works connected with these Canals.

ASSESSMENT OF RATES AND REALIZATION OF THE SAME.

XIX. The following Rates shall be leviable under these Rules:—

Clause 1.—For 1,000 cubic yards of water taken between 15th June and 31st October, Rupee 1.

2.—For 1,000 cubic yards of water taken between the 1st November and the 14th June, Rupees 1-8.

3.—In reckoning the volume of water supplied, it shall be held that a square opening each side of which measures 3 feet, and under a constant mean head-pressure of water of ·35 inches, discharges 1,024 cubic yards in one hour. Any portion of that quantity shall be calculated in sixteenths.

4.—In calculating the charge for water supplied by volume, quantities less than 100 cubic yards shall be disregarded.

XX. Rates according to the area of land irrigated—

Clause 1.—For the full irrigation of a single crop of sugar-cane for the whole period during which it may remain on the ground.	Rupees 6 for each acre.
2.—For the full irrigation of any other produce, and any number of crops raised on the same land during one year when the water is taken for at least one year certain	Rupees 5 for each acre.
3.—For the full irrigation of any single crop which shall remain on the ground for any period not exceeding six months, and for any single crop of Sarud rice which shall remain on the ground for more than six months.	Rupees 3 for each acre.

4.—Special contracts on other terms may be made, in any cases, by the Revenue Superintendent, subject to the confirmation of the Local Government.

XXI. Every annual lease shall be reckoned from the 1st April to the 31st March following. Leases applied for at any intermediate period of the year will be granted at the same rate as leases for a complete year, but will be considered as valid for the remainder of that year only. Notice of relinquishment of a lease for the ensuing year must be presented on or before the 15th day of March to the person authorized by the Revenue Superintendent to receive such notice. Unless such notice be given, the lease shall be deemed binding for the ensuing year. This is not intended to hinder parties taking out leases, or contracts such as are specified in Clause 4, Rule XX. for longer periods.

XXII. All Water-rates shall be usually payable at the same time as the rent of the land to which the water is supplied, or if the land be rent-free, or if the application under which water is supplied is for land for which the rent is not all payable at one time, then at the customary time for the payment of rent in the district, or at such time or times as shall be determined by the Revenue Superintendent in each case. The time at which the Water-rate is due shall be entered in every agreement made under Rules IX. and X.

XXIII. No person shall be appointed to receive Water-rates as a Farmer under Section VII. of Act VIII. of 1867, other than a landlord or cultivator in the village to which the water is supplied, for which such rates are receivable, excepting with the sanction of Government. Every Farmer will be appointed by the Revenue Superintendent, who will take all the requisite steps in relation to the appointment.

XXIV. Every Farmer of Water-rates shall be bound to pay the same to the Revenue Superintendent in full, without deduction, at the time of the falling due of the last instalment of land revenue payable on account of the land, and the crop on which such water-rates have accrued, or at such other time as may be especially agreed to.

XXV. The Revenue Superintendent shall, from time to time, furnish all Farmers and Collecting Officers of Water-rates with Warrants, showing the sums which such persons are entitled to collect, whether such sums are charges payable under the terms of any Agreement, or charges fixed under Rule XX., or any additional charges for the use or waste of water otherwise determined under proper authority. Excepting in accordance with such a Warrant, no Farmer or Collecting Officer shall collect any sums as Water rates.

XXVI. If any cultivator shall object to the demand of a Farmer, the question will be determined under Rule XXXIV.

XXVII. No Farmer of Water-rates shall, under any circumstances whatever, be authorized to make any charges for the use of water for irrigation higher than, or in addition to, those specified under these rules; but shall receive from the Revenue Superintendent, in compensation for his trouble and risk, 5 per cent. on the whole sum collected by him, provided he shall pay the whole sum due by him to the Revenue Superintendent on the day appointed for the payment thereof.

XXVIII. Unless it be otherwise specially agreed, every Farmer of Water-rates shall be responsible for the collection and payment of all Water-rates accruing in the village for which he is appointed Farmer, according to the Warrants from time to time issued to him by the Revenue Superintendent.

XXIX. All payments of Water-rates to the Revenue Superintendent made by a Farmer shall be accompanied by the Warrant under which they have been collected, and the sum so paid shall be endorsed on such Warrants as acquittance for the Farmer. The Revenue Superintendent or his Deputies, or the Farmer, as the case may require, shall give to the consumers of water, or other persons chargeable for water, written receipts in the Form (C) annexed, on the payment by those persons of the sums payable by them.

XXX. In the event of any demand for a Water-rate not being paid on or before the day on which the same shall be due, the Revenue Superintendent shall proceed against the person responsible for such payment for the recovery of the amount in the manner prescibed in Act VIII. of 1867. All other charges duly made under these Rules for the recovery of which no special provision may be made, shall be recoverable in the same way as if they were arrears of Water-rate, and all suits connected with the recovery of such arrears of water-rate, or of such other charges shall be cognizable by the Revenue Superintendent only as if he were Collector of a District within the meaning of Acts VIII. of 1867 and VI. of 1869.

XXXI. No person by virtue of his being a Farmer of Water-rates shall have any right to interfere with the flow or distribution of water in any water-course otherwise than is provided by Section X., Act VIII. of 1867.

XXXII. No person shall acquire under any Agreement made under Rules IX. or X, or otherwise, excepting with the special authority of Government, the right to derive any profit from the sale or sub-letting of any water supplied from the Canals, or of the use of such water, and every such sale or sub-letting shall be void, and the full payment for the use of such water shall be claimable by the Government from the purchaser as though such sale or sub-letting had not been made.

XXXIII. All lands irrigated from the Canals shall be constantly inspected by the Revenue Superintendent or his Deputies during every half-year, and the area and nature of crop raised on them ascertained either by actual measurement or by reference to the survey maps and registers; whenever the Agreement under which the water is supplied to any land shall so require, the charge for the water shall be fixed by the Revenue Superintendent according to the area so ascertained.

XXXIV. Any question which shall arise relating to the proper sum to be charged under these rules for the use or waste of water for irrigation shall be decided by the Revenue Superintendent, and his decisions shall be entered in a Register.

XXXV. All questions arising relative to the distribution among the persons interested of the charges for water supplied for irrigation under any Agreement, or any charges whatever otherwise accruing in respect to the use or waste of water supplied to any water-course for irrigation, shall be determined finally by the Revenue Superintendent.

XXXVI. If water supplied to a water-course under an Agreement made as aforesaid, shall flow over cultivated land intentionally or otherwise, such land shall be deemed to have been irrigated. If such water shall flow over or run to waste on uncultivated land, the Revenue Superintendent may charge water-rate on such land at the highest rate chargeable under these rules for a single crop, against the persons responsible for the water-course from which the water shall flow, or the person by whose act such waste arose.

XXXVII. All agreements, when duly attested and filed by the Revenue Superintendent under Rule XIII., shall be held to be Agreements to take and pay for water under Sections VIII. and IX. of Act VIII. of 1867.

XXXVIII. The using of water for irrigation supplied from the Canals without a proper application or Agreement, but with the previous knowledge of the Revenue Superintendent or his Deputies, shall be held to constitute an agreement to take and pay for water under the same Sections.

XXXIX. Under Section XIV. of Act VIII. of 1867, double water-rates will be levied for the use of water without an Agreement.

REMISSIONS.

XL. No claim for a reduction of water-rate shall arise by reason of the stoppage of the supply of water under Rules XVII. or XVIII. on account of waste of water or non-compliance with the conditions under which a water-course is constructed.

XLI. All claims made by, or in behalf of, any cultivator for any remission or reduction of the full water-rate chargeable under these rules by reason of any failure in the regular or sufficient supply of water from the Canals, or any other reasonable cause, shall be made to the Revenue Superintendent, who shall enquire into and proceed to determine the claim. His decision, which shall be final, shall be communicated to the person using the water or making the claim.

XLII. In no case shall any remission be allowed, unless it be proved that an irrigated crop has been injured, or irrigation has not taken place, from some cause beyond the control of the cultivator, and unless the claim be made before any injured crop is removed from the ground.

XLIII. No claim for remission of water-rate shall be allowed on account of any emergent closure of the canals, which takes place without notice, but does not exceed ten days at one time, and which is made after an interval of more than seven days from any previous closure, nor for any ordinary closure for repairs or clearances which takes place after not less than one month's previous notice, and does not exceed one month in duration; provided also that the aggregate of such closures does not exceed one month in any one half-year.

XLIV. Emergent closures thought to be essentially necessary for the safety of the works may be made by the Superintending Engineer, but shall be reported forthwith to the Revenue Superintendent and to Government. Claims for remission for loss arising from such stoppage will not be barred, but shall be duly considered by the Revenue Superintendent and reported to Government. Ordinary closures shall not commence until sanctioned by the Government.

XLV. The Revenue Superintendent or his Subordinates may regulate the flow of water in all water-courses in such manner as shall best provide for the equitable and proper distribution of the supply to the persons using the water, and no partial closures made for this purpose, which shall not cause the flow of water to be reduced to less than one day in any seven consecutive days, shall be held to give any claim to remission of water-rates.

The following are the Conditions of Sale:—

1. The Opium will be sold for exportation by sea only, and no Certificate will be granted except to cover such export.

2. The Opium will be ordinarily offered for sale at an upset price of Rupees 800 per chest, and sold to the highest bidder above that price, except under the circumstances for which provision is made by Clause 12th of these Conditions of Sale.

3. The sale shall commence at the hour of 11 A. M. of the day fixed by previous notification, and shall not be continued after the hour of 5 P. M.; but if at that hour any of the lots advertised for sale shall remain unsold, the sale may, at the discretion of the Board of Revenue, be resumed on the next day following (not being Sunday or a public holiday) at the hour of 11 A. M., and so on until the whole of the remaining lots are disposed of, or, if the whole quantity advertised shall not be sold on the day appointed, the Board may dispose of the lots which remain on hand at a future sale.

4. Each lot shall contain five chests.

DEPOSIT.

When the amount bid is less than Rs 1,200 per chest, Rs. 200 per. chest.

On bids of Rs. 1,200 and upwards, but less than Rs. 1,600 per chest, Rs. 300 per chest.

On bids of Rs. 1,600 and upwards, but less than Rs. 2,000 per chest, Rs. 400 per chest.

And so on, Rs. 100 being added to the deposit for every bid additional to the extent of Rs. 400.

5. A Promissory Note for a sum calculated according to the scale noted in the margin shall be taken as a deposit on each lot from the purchaser in the sale-room, and before the lot is registered in the sale book, and all such Promissory Notes shall be redeemed on the part of the purchasers at this Office by Bank of Bengal receipts, or by substitution of other public securities of the Bengal Government, on or before 4 o'clock in the afternoon of the fifth day after the sale, or on the other hand, failing such redemption by the time aforesaid then the lot or lots for which no Bank of Bengal receipts, or deposit of other public securities as aforesaid shall have been delivered in, shall be re-sold at such time or times and under such conditions of re-sale as the Board of Revenue shall see fit, and all losses and expenses whatsoever attending such re-sale shall be borne and paid by the defaulters, whilst any profit accruing from such re-sale shall be forfeited to Government.

6. The Promissory Notes taken on the day of sale under the last mentioned condition, if remaining unredeemed at 4 o'clock of the fifth day following the day of sale, will be placed in the hands of the Solicitor to the Government for realization in such manner as to him shall seem fit.

7. No tender of money, Bank of Bengal receipts, or public securities, on account of Opium, upon which the prescribed deposit may not have been made before 4 o'clock of the fifth day following the day of sale, will be afterwards accepted.

8. The Opium advertised for sale shall be paid for within fifteen clear days from the day of sale, and in case any lots of such Opium shall not be so paid for and adjusted, then the cash deposit made under the fifth condition, or any public securities that may have been deposited on account of such lots or chests shall be forfeited, and the Opium shall be disposed of on account of Government at such time and in such manner as the Board of Revenue shall think fit, and the first purchaser shall further be required to make good any loss or difference of price between that obtained at the re-sale and the amount at which the Opium was first purchased, forfeiting all advantages that may arise from such re-sale.

9. Purchasers taking out Certificates or Orders for the delivery of Opium, after making full payment as above prescribed, shall have the option of naming the number of lots of their purchase, which they may desire to be included in each Certificate or Order, and it is to be clearly understood that the Certificates or Orders so taken out shall be considered final, and not afterwards changeable for other Certificates or Orders authorising the delivery of single lots, or of a different number of lots or chests, whether more or less than the number of lots or chests originally required to be included in each Certificate or Order.

10. No deposit of public securities under the fifth of the present Conditions will be received in this Office, except from the party recorded as the purchaser in the sale book, or his authorised Agent. The receipt for deposit of public securities will be granted only in the name of such purchaser, and the securities so deposited will be returned when payment in full has been made by the said purchaser or his order.

11. The Officer superintending the sale on the part of the Board of Revenue is empowered to reject, at his discretion, the bid of any individual, unless such individual shall, on demand, tender at the time a deposit either in Government of India Notes, Bank of Bengal receipts, or Government securities, a sum equal to the amount for which a Promissory Note would otherwise be taken under the fifth of these Conditions.

12. With a view to prevent fictitious biddings designed to obstruct the sale, it is hereby notified that the Officer of Government superintending the sale shall be competent, at any time during the sale, to withdraw any unsold lot, and immediately to put it up again for sale at a maximum upset price diminishing the same gradually until a bid is obtained, and the first bonâ fide bidder for a lot after it has been offered for sale in the mode here described shall be held and declared to be the purchaser of the said lot, and the Officer of Government superintending the sale shall also be competent to dispose, in the same manner, of as many of the subsequent lots as he may think proper, provided always that no lot shall be sold below the minimum price of 800 Rupees specified in the second of these Conditions.

13. The purchaser of any lot shall have the option of naming and purchasing in immediate succession, at the same price and under the same conditions, any number of lots of the same Agency Opium not exceeding altogether twenty-five lots, provided always that there remain a sufficient number of lots of the Opium to complete the said twenty-five.

14. In the event of any dispute or difference touching or concerning any matter or question arising out of the sale of the Opium included in this Notification, or adjustment of the account thereof, the same shall and may be tried and decided in the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

15. The following papers will be exhibited for inspection on the day of sale, or may be seen previously to that date by application at the Office of the Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue:—No. 1, Certificate of the Opium advertised for sale. No. 2, Report of the examination of such Opium.

16. The public are hereby informed that in providing the investment of the Behar and Benares Opium for the year 1868-69, the same precautions have been taken as those which have been observed during past years, to have the drug procured and sent down in a pure state, to have only the prescribed quantity of leaves used in forming the cakes, and to have the due proportion of Opium put into each cake. An account of the weight of the drug when packed at Behar and Benares, and a statement of the average weight of the chests, indiscriminately taken for the purpose of comparison from the despatches on arrival at Calcutta, may be seen on application at the Office of the Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue.

17. Any further information respecting weight or quality of the Opium advertised for sale that may be desired by parties connected with the trade, will, as heretofore, be furnished to them on application at the Office of the Board of Revenue. But, in accordance with established usage, under no circumstances will the Board entertain or recognise any claim to compensation for loss from any alleged deficiency of weight, abstraction of Opium or adulteration of the drug, which may be preferred on reference to chests, after the sale and delivery of the Opium for shipment.

18. It is hereby further notified that, under the 6th Article of the Convention between Great Britain and France, dated the 7th March 1815, quoted below, the Agents of India in the French Government, or persons duly appointed by them, are entitled to demand, that out of the quantities of Behar and Benares Opium declared as above for sale at the twelve sales of the year 1870, there shall be delivered to them, at the average of the particular sale or sales to which the Opium so applied for may belong, a quantity not exceeding in the aggregate 300 chests, and the Agents of the French Government must make requisition specifying the quantity of Opium required by them at any particular sale, within thirty days from the advertisement of such intended sale, provided, however, that the Agents of the French Government may make such requisition for the whole quantity within thirty days from the publication of this notification. If the Agents of the French Government shall not make the requisition for Opium within the time above mentioned, the entire quantity of about 48,000 chests of Behar and Benares as above estimated, will be brought to sale in the usual manner, and if they shall make application for a quantity of Opium to be delivered to them out of the quantity advertised for sale at each or any of the twelve sales abovementioned, but shall not pay for it within the prescribed period of payment, the Government of Bengal reserves to itself the right of disposing of the Opium which the French Authorities may so fail to pay for, either by increasing the quantity reserved at the sale next ensuing the date of payment, or by selling it at a sale to be held expressly for the purpose.

Report by Captain E. J. Butler, Assistant Master Attendant, of the result of his search for wrecked vessels on the sea-face of the Sunderbuns, dated 24th September 1869.

From CAPTAIN E. BUTLER, Assistant Master Attendant, to CAPTAIN H. HOWE, Officiating Master Attendant,—(dated Calcutta, the 24th September 1869.)

I HAVE the honor to report my return to Calcutta, having completed the search on the sea-face of the Soonderbunds and delivered the steamer India over to the Commissioner of Chittagong, agreeably to the instructions conveyed in your letter No. 4336, dated 19th August 1869.

2. The following is a full report of my proceedings:

3. I took charge of the steamer India on the morning of the 25th ultimo, and at 8-30 A. M. proceeded down the river and anchored off Diamond Harbour at 4 P. M. Daylight 26th, weighed and proceeded; entered Channel Creek at 8-30 A. M.; stationed a lascar at the mast-head to look well into and over the jungle for wreck, and particularly for the hull of the ship Morayshire, (lost during the Cyclone of 1867), which vessel rumour places somewhere in this locality. In order to make the search as complete as possible, I waited a short time for the tide to rise, so as to enable me (from the bridge of the steamer) to examine the jungle thoroughly.

4. At noon being off Hammet's point (Channel Creek) I perceived the Port Canning schooner Alexandra out of the channel and in shoal water; steamed alongside, gave the commander a few instructions, and supplied him with a chart, then continued my course down the left bank to House of Refuge A. Three posts and one side is all that remain of this house. The bank having washed away, the remains of the house being at the water's edge. This house (it will be remembered) was newly erected after the Cyclone of 1867. I then placed it thirty yards from the bank. An entire new house will be required here.

5. Leaving house A, I carefully searched the banks and jungle to Pitt's point, where meeting a fresh south-east breeze, with a sea too much for the India, I was compelled to return, I then entered the creek immediately behind House of Refuge A (eastward), and carefully searched jungle and bank down to its very mouth. Here House of Refuge No. 1 could plainly be seen, and the only thing seen on the beach between the two houses was a wooden buoy. At sun-set returned and anchored in Door Agra Creek.

6. Daylight, 27th I proceeded through Door Agra Creek into the Subtermooky river, and closely examined its right bank down to abreast of the extreme south end of Lothian Island.

7. Feeling anxious to search the southern portion of Channel Creek, I proceeded down the passage leading to House of Refuge No. 1, and anchored abreast at 11 A. M. At 11-30 A. M. manned the cutter and proceeded to search the western part of Sever Island. I was accompanied by Captain Rogers, who formerly commanded the steamer Thunder, and Mr. Inman, late of the Bengal Marine. We pulled to the extreme south-west point of Sever Island without seeing a plank or piece of wreck of any kind. Here we found the sea and breakers too much for the boat, which compelled us to return and land on Sever Island at the entrance of the creek. We walked along the beach eastward three miles, our further progress being impeded by a very high tide and a nullah which we were unable to cross. We examined every piece of plank or wreck thrown up among the debris, and looking seaward could have plainly seen any object or wreck within six miles, had there been any there. A vessel sailing down the Eastern Channel was distinctly seen. Sydney point to the westward, and the breakers on Edmonstone sand were plainly visible. The hulls of the steam tugs, Atlas and Interloper, (lost during the Cyclone of 1867) have, however, disappeared. They were wrecked within two miles of each other, south of Edmonstone sand, and the hulls were plainly seen up to May last.

8. The many searches made by myself and others since the Cyclone of 1867, makes me feel confident that the Morayshire cannot be anywhere in Channel Creek. On our way back we examined House of Refuge No. 1; found the biscuit a little mouldy, and the clothes partly destroyed by rats. The house is in good order. 3 P. M. returned to the steamer. At 4 P. M. manned the jolly boat and proceeded to examine a creek leading to the sea-face of Seyer Island, four miles east of House of Refuge No. 1. Except a few empty casks and an empty tar barrel, nothing remarkable was seen.

9. Daylight 28th, weighed and proceeded to examine the northern and shoalest part of Subtermooky, or Light House sand, (the sand on which the steamer Thunder is said to be).

10. We entered the Subtermooky river about 8 A. M., and carefully searched the banks and beach to its very mouth, feeling sure that a plank, an oar, a portion of a boat, or something belonging to a vessel wrecked in the position that rumour places the Thunder would be seen; nothing, however, was seen eve at low water. Leaving the southern extreme of the Subtermooky river, we proceeded downn to the head of the Subtermooky sand within two miles of the spot where rumour places the Thunder. I carefully looked south-east and west, and feel satisfied no Thunder or wreck of any vessel can be on the Subtermooky sand, within a radius of six miles from its northern end. Captain Rogers (who at one time commanded the steamer Thunder) accompanied me, and carefully inspected the reef while passing, and expressed himself satisfied that no wreck could be within eight miles of us; and was also of opinion that, had the Thunder been wrecked within eight miles of the sea-face of the Soonderbunds, some portion of her loose works must have washed on shore ere this. Leaving this sand and proceeding to cross the tail of the Jumeera sand, we passed a buoy with the figure of an anchor painted on it in white, lying in 3½ fathoms on the south end of Jumeera sand. Here, I regret to say, the India shewed signs of weakness, and was leaking a little in the fore and after-compartments.

11. Steering across the Jumeera sand toward the western side of Bulcherry Island, I carefully swept the horizon south, south-west, east and south-east, with a good telescope, but could see nothing of any wreck; although from the elevated position of the India's bridge, I consider a radius of six miles considerably less than the actual distance an object (such as a wreck) could be seen. Steering up close along the western shore of Bulcherry Island we examined the beach carefully, and at 11 A. M. entered Bulcherry Creek, a careful look-out being kept at the mast-head to search the jungle. Noon anchored close to No. 3 House of Refuge. We proceeded in the cutter to examine the sea-face of Bulcherry. At 1 P. M. finding the breakers too much for the cutter, we landed, placed the boat in a safe position with two men to look after her, we then proceeded along the beach eastward, carefully overhauling every piece of plank seen. We met several natives picking up shells; they had been here several days. They declared they had not seen any wreck either to the eastward or westward. Continuing our walk eastward along the beach, we examined several pieces of plank which had evidently been lying here a long time. Our further progress eastward was stopped by a nullah, which we were unable to cross. With telescopes looking south-east, south, and south-west, a clear six miles of horizon could be seen, but no wreck. Returning, we examined House of Refuge No. 3. We found the biscuit a little mouldy but edible. The water good; but the greater portion of clothing missing. The house is in good order.

12. Daylight 29th, proceeded through Bulcherry Creek eastward towards the Mutlah river, carefully examining the banks and jungle en route from the bridge of the India, as well as from the mast-head. At 8 A. M. entered the Mutlah river and steamed to within three miles of the spot Mr. Seaman reported having seen something of a wreck. It being low water and fine, we had a clear view of the horizon six miles round, or west, south, and east, but no wreck was seen. At 10 A. M. standing over to the left bank or eastern shore of the Mutlah river, we examined the northern part of Dalhousie sand, and sweeping the horizon with our telescopes could have distinctly seen a wreck, had there been any within six miles. I intended to have continued the search along the sea-face in this way to the Horingotta river, but the India proving to be too weak and beginning to strain, I was reluctantly compelled to avoid the sea-face as much as possible; and as the Conservator of Port Canning had examined from Dalhousie Island to Putney Island eastward, I determined to proceed to Dalhousie Creek, pick up the coal boat (as previously arranged), and make the best of my way to Morrellgunge to examine the sea-face of the Horingutta river and the mast seen by Mr. Morrell.

13. At noon (29th) entered Dalhousie creek and steamed down to the western bank of Bangadoony Island, searching carefully the banks and jungle on the way. Not seeing the coal boat here as arranged, I returned and steamed up the Mutlah river to Catallee and anchored for the night. Daylight 30th, the coal boat in sight coming down, weighed and proceeded towards her, took her in tow, and at 11 entered the Depannee Dewannee creek. At sun-set anchored in the Roymungal river, in latitude 21° 45′ north.

14. Daylight 31st, proceeded to examine Tiger Island, one of the places on which rumour puts a wreck, carefully searching banks and jungle en route. At 3 P. M. entered the Aspungassee or Mollenchew river, and arrived off Tiger Island at 4 P. M. Tiger Island is about four hundred feet long and about half that in breadth; it is in latitude 22° 8′ north and 89° 18′ east longitude,—a low island, covered with jungle, and in the centre of the Aspungassee river. The idea, "that a vessel could possibly be carried over forty miles of land from the sea-face and be thrown upon this island, is ridiculous. At sun-set we anchored in Shaik Barria Creek. Daylight, 1st September, proceeded towards Morrellgunge, and arrived there at noon on the 2nd September. Communicated with Mr. Morrell, who very kindly offered to accompany me to the sea-face of the Horingutta river and Tiger Point.

15. On the morning of the 3rd September steamed down the Horingutta to view the sea-face. At 11 A. M., when off Chur Dewaneah (five miles above Deer Point bush) a moderate southerly breeze and a slight head sea compelled me to turn back; the India appearing to be straining about the midship or engine compartment, and leaking a little in the fore and after-compartments. I steamed into a creek on the left bank of the Horingutta, called Nullee, and remained there for the night.

16. Daylight 4th, being informed by Mr. Morrell that he knew a creek leading to the sea-face running out near Tiger Point, and as Mr. Morrell kindly offered to pilot me through it, I at once proceeded by his directions round north of Morrellgunge into Baloochoonea Nullee; then west through the Jeebdhana Creek into the Poolhuttagang, then into the Bhola Nuddee, and at sun-set anchored in Baitmore Creek, near Tiger Point.

17. Daylight 5th, manned the cutter and proceeded to the sea-face and landed on the beach, five miles westward of Tiger Point. I was accompanied by Mr. Morrell, Captain Rogers, Mr. Inman, and five of the boat's crew the other two lascars being left in the boat to keep her afloat and in a safe position. On landing, we walked westward carefully, turning over every piece of plank or piece of wood seen. A large quantity of bulwark planking painted red; a portion of a life-boat painted white, with cork bolsters and coir fenders; some teak wood panelling painted light blue; part of a companion door, a teak wood settee or couch and the light mast with its two battens: all the above I am sure belonged to the light vessel Mutlah. Continuing our search, we found a portion of what appeared to be the athwartship piece of a steamer's bridge, on which the stanchions and rails are usually fixed; a portion of a companion like. those of the British India Steam Navigation Company's vessels; some pieces of pine planking, and a grating; these (we were of opinion) belonged to the steamer Cheduba.

18. You will observe that everything belonging to these vessels thrown up upon the beach are upper fittings. There is nothing to shew that either of these vessels were stranded; but there is much to lead one to conclude that both the steamer Cheduba and floating light vessel Mutlah went down in deep water. Looking seaward, aided by good telescopes, nothing of wreck could be seen east, west, or south, continuing our walk westward, a pine wood fender, and a few pieces of bulwark planking painted red, was seen. Our further progress in this direction was impeded by impenetrable jungle to the very water's edge, and a large nullah. From this point looking south-westward, the land which separates the Bungarah from the Pursur river was plainly visible, as well as the breakers on the reef south of it; but no wreck was seen. We returned to the steamer at 4 P. M.

19. Daylight 6th, manned the cutter and proceded to Tiger Point, accompanied by Mr. Morrell, Captain Rogers, and Mr. Inman. We examined the sea-face, westward from this point to where we commenced the day before. We found several pieces of bulwark planking (red), and another portion of a steamer's bridge, corresponding to the part seen the day previous. Looking seaward, nothing of wreck could be seen.

20. I was surprised to find the water here (sea-face) quite fresh and sweet from Tiger Point to Durputty Island; and I am informed by Mr. Morrell that throughout the south-west monsoon, or from June to October, it is quite fresh at Landfall Point and Chaplee (eastward), and I have no doubt to the very shore on the Arracan coast. A House of Refuge on or near Tiger Point might be of service to ship-wrecked mariners, and can easily be visited by those in search of ship-wrecked people. The creek to the westward of Tiger Point would be a good position for a house. We returned to the steamer at 5 P. M.

21. Daylight 7th, weighed and proceeded to Morrellgunge, and was detained there a day, owing to some repairs necessary to the India's engines.

22. On the 9th started for Chittagong; on 10th anchored off Burrisal. Here I was detained till the 12th, on account of the strong tides and bores which prevail during the springs in the Megna river.

23. On the morning of the 12th left Burrisal, and had to anchor at noon near a village called Goneshpoor, to procure the services of a pilot, as I found the men sent to conduct the steamer from Burrisal to Chittagong quite ignorant of the route.

Daylight 13th, proceeded across the Megna, and at 2 P. M. grounded near a village called Bunney.

24. We lay aground one hour and floated with the flood. The pilot declared the river had changed within the week, there being (he said) nothing less than four fathoms water where we grounded.

25. Daylight 14th, started for Chittagong, and at sun-set entered the river and anchored. On the 15th I made over the steamer India to the Conservator of Chittagong, by order of the Commissioner.

26. I beg to add that that part of the Soonderbunds visited on this occasion has been very carefully searched, and had there been a wreck, or a portion of the hull of a wrecked vessel, within six miles of the shore, or as far as could be seen inland from the mainland, we must have seen it.

27. The positions which rumour places the ship Morayshire and steamer Thunder upon, are imaginary. They certainly are not between Saugor and No. 5 House of Refuge, within a range of six miles from shore. It is only reasonable to suppose that if portions of the wrecks of the floating light vessel Mutlah and steamer Cheduba can be found and identified, that something of the Morayshire and Thunder must have been seen ere this, had these vessels been wrecked in the position where rumour places them. The fact of not having seen anything belonging to these vessels is sufficient to lead one to conclude they must have foundered a considerable distance from the sea-face of the Soonderbunds.

28. Setting aside the many visits I have made to the sea face of the Soonderbunds since the Cyclone of 1867, other officers of this department, and the Conservator of Port Canning, have, on various occasions, searched the sea-face, passing over or near the ground where rumour places the Morayshire, and within two miles of the spot where the steamer Thunder is said to be, without having seen a spar or plank by which they could identify these vessels, and it is only just to the officers concerned in these visits to say that their searches have been very carefully carried out.

Accounts of the Calcutta Port Fund for the year 1868-1869.

From CAPTAIN H. HOWE, Conservator of the Port of Calcutta, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, General Department,—(No. 5209, dated Fort William, the 6th October 1869.)

I have the honor to submit, for publication in the Gazette, the accounts of the Calcutta Port Fund for the year 1868-69. These accounts have been the subject of close examination and discussion by the Committee appointed by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor in his letter No. 2171, dated 11th June 1869, and, pending the submission of the report of that Committee, I have not considered it necessary to write a full report, such as usually accompanies these accounts.

2. The account between the General Treasury and the Fund is stated differently in the books of the two offices, but the points of difference are understood and are the subject of discussion, which will result in an agreement of the two accounts.

3. In accepting the bills for dock-yard stores and labour, &c., which were only very recently received, it has not been conceded that the whole of the items are properly debited to the Fund. A careful examination of these accounts is being made, and any charges which may appear to be erroneous or excessive will be objected to, and the Accountant-General will be asked to give credit for the amount. As soon as the proposed system of forwarding monthly instead of yearly bills comes into operation, this work of examining dock-yard charges will be at once easier and more satisfactory to those responsible for the careful and economical working of the revenues of the port.

H. HOWE,
Conservator of the Port of Calcutta.

Cholera in Emigrant Vessels.

From Surgeon J. M. CUNINGHAM, M.D., Sanitary Commissioner with the Government of India, to the Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department,—(No. 528, dated Simla, the 28th June 1869.)

IN attempting to collect all the data which are available regarding the origin and propagation of cholera in this country, it is of great importance to consider the special class of facts which may be ascertained with reference to the occurrence of the disease among emigrants on boardship.

2. The importance of this enquiry and the valuable nature of the data which may be thus obtained are specially alluded to in the " Instructions for conducting an enquiry into cholera in India,"* prepared by the Army Sanitary Commission, copy of which was forwarded with Secretary of State's despatch No. 21, dated 23rd April. Copy of these papers has not yet reached me officially, but I have had an opportunity of perusing them.

3. I have therefore the honor to suggest that the Governments of Bengal, Madras, and Bombay should be requested to compile all the data which can be procured on this important point. The statistics, I would observe, should embrace all the years regarding which reliable records are in existence.

Simla, the 16th July 1869.

From J. G. GRANT, ESQ., M. D., Officiating Protector of Emigrants at Calcutta, to A. MACKENZIE, ESQ., Officiating Junior Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 352, dated Fort William, the 8th October 1869.)

2. The medical diary and mortality returns of voyages hence to Mauritius previous to the year 1850 are so incomplete, that I was under the necessity of commencing the statement for that colony from the year 1850, and for the same reason that for the West Indies, from the year 1861.

Extract from B report on the Ship Hyderee. Since 1854 the Hyderee has made seven voyages from India to Mauritius with coolies, and that on three out of the seven voyages she has had cholera on board, which determined the Government of Mauritius to exclude the vessel from the emigration service.

J. G. GRANT, M. D.,
Officiating Protector of Emigrants.

The State of the Crops in the Pubna District.

From C. E. LANCE, ESQ., Officiating Commissioner of the Rajshahye Division, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 121Ct., dated Darjeeling, the 16th October 1869.)

I have the honor to forward the accompanying copies of correspondence regarding the state of the crops in the Pubna District.

2. Whilst other crops are good, the amun rice crop is decidedly short, but as prices are high, I do not anticipate that this will produce distress amongst the agricultural population.

From J. TWEEDIE, ESQ., Officiating Collector of Pubna, to the Officiating Commissioner of the Rajshahye Division,—(No 730, dated Pubna, the 6th October 1869.)

As the end of September seemed a time at which the state of the crops admitted of being definitely ascertained, I deputed Mr. Nolan to make a short cruise on the rivers and collect information on the spots where the crops grow.

2. I have the honor to annex a copy of the report which he has furnished on the subject, and to state that letters received from Serajgunge and from Coomercolly give similar accounts of the crops at these places as Mr. Nolan's report gives for Pubna.

3. The results may be summarised thus—

1*st*.—That all crops, except rice, are full crops.

2*nd*.—The amun rice has yielded from 10 to 12 annas, and sells at 26 pucka seers to the rupee.

3*rd* —That taking an average of the whole district the amun rice will certainly not be more than an eight anna crop, and will not exceed seven annas, unless there be a general and heavy fall of rain within the next ten days.

4. As regards the weather, I regret to have to report that no rain has fallen for several days; the days are very hot, the atmosphere is dry, and at present there are no signs of the closing showers on which depend one-fourth part of a harvest which will at best be a scanty one.

5. We must therefore look forward to another year of scarcity. At present, however, there is no reason to believe that any measures of relief to the people will have to be undertaken by the Government.

Report on the Cultivation of Cinchona at Darjeeling for the month of September 1869.

From C. B. CLARKE, ESQ., Officiating Superintendent, Botanic Gardens, and in charge of Cinchona cultivation in Bengal, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, General Department,—(No. 148, dated Runghu, Darjeeling, the 3rd October 1869.)

I beg leave to submit the report of the Government Cinchona cultivation at this place for the month of September 1869.

Report on the cultivation of Cinchona at Darjeeling, for the month of September 1869.

THE month has been unusually wet; not only was the amount of rainfall above the average for the month, but this amount was distributed over a great number of hours.

The growth of Cinchona Succirubra and C. Calisaya continues satisfactory: that of C. Officinalis is so very unsatisfactory that it has been determined not to increase the present area prepared for its cultivation (which will contain about 500,000 plants) until at least more encouraging experience is obtained.

The coolies have been principally employed in weeding the young plantations. There has also been a considerable amount of labor required by the roads.

Seed of Cinchona Succirubra and C. Officinalis has been collected and has been distributed as under :—

	C. Succirubra.	C. Officinalis.
Dr. King, Officiating Superintendent Botanic Garden, Saharunpore	¼ oz.	1 oz.
Colonel Strutt, Holta Plantations, Kangra Valley ...	¼ „
Captain Fitzgerald, Bygnoth, Kangra Valley ...	¼ „	½ „
Mr. Mackay, Punjaub Cinchona Association ...	¼ „	1 „
„ Munro, Darjeeling Cinchona Association ...	¼ „
„ Peachey, Somailee, Kangra Valley	¼ „	½ „
„ Robson, Tukvar, Darjeeling	¼ „
„ Johnston, Dooteriah, Darjeeling	¼ „
„ Werniche, Kurseong, Darjeeling	¼ „
Total ...	2¼ oz.	3 oz.

As ¼ oz. of seed does not appear a very large quantity, it may be permissible to explain that it raises abcut 12,000 plants.

The number of plants of C. Calisaya which has flowered this season is not large, owing to the wet (and doubtless other causes.) Seed on a large scale can now not be hoped for, but a sufficient quantity to be of great use to this garden will probably be secured. No relaxation is made in the efforts to multiply C. Calisaya by division.

The mean Barometer, as likewise the Dry and Wet Bulb Thermometer means, are derived from the twenty-four hourly observations made during the day.

The Dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants.—The figures in column ten represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken at unity.—The receiver of the lower rain gauge is 1½ feet, and that of the Anemometer 70 feet 10 inches above the level of the ground.—The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's Anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.

NOTE.

Barometric Pressure.—The pressures in column 2 of the above Table for all stations below 500 feet are reduced from those given in column 3 of the Table on the previous page by adding the weight of a column of air of the temperature given in column 17. For stations of above 500 feet elevation, the reduction is made by Dippe's Table as given in Guyot's "Tables."

Temperature.—The temperatures in column 3 are deduced from those in column 17, on the preceding page, by adding 1° Faht. for every 350 feet.

Wind Direction.—The mean wind direction and its comparative prevalence are calculated from the whole number of wind observations recorded during the month, an equal value (2) being assigned to each day's observations, so that the maximum (exclusive prevalence of one wind) would be 62. The mean direction is calculated in the usual way by the sines and cosines of the compass points.

The above being all comparable, afford the data for constructing a meteorological chart for the month, which shall shew the isobarometric and isothermal lines, and the wind directions, which may be represented by lines of proportionate length. To these may be added the rainfall from the previous Tables.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1869.

Government of Bengal.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Act of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council received the assent of His Honor on the 21st August 1869, and having been assented to by His Excellency the Governor General on the 15th October 1869, is hereby promulgated for general information:—

Act No. VIII of 1869.

An Act to amend the Procedure in Suits between Landlords and Tenants.

Preamble.

Whereas it is expedient to amend the procedure in suits between Landlords and Tenants in the Provinces subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal; It is enacted as follows:—

Interpretation of "Collector."

I. In the construction of this Act the word "Collector" shall include a Deputy Collector in charge of a Sub-division or other officer exercising the powers of a Collector of a District or of a Deputy Collector in charge of a Sub-division, by whatever designation such officer may be called.

Ryots entitled to a pottah.

II. Every ryot is entitled to receive from the person to whom the rent of the land held or cultivated by him is payable, a pottah containing the following particulars:—

The quantity and boundaries of the land; and where fields have been numbered in a Government survey, the number of each field.

The amount of annual rent.

The instalments in which the same is to be paid.

And any special conditions of the lease.

If the rent is payable in kind, the proportion of produce to be delivered and the time and manner of delivery.

Ryots holding land at fixed rates to receive pottahs.

III. Ryots who, in any Province to which this Act may apply, hold lands at fixed rates of rent, which shall not have been changed from the time of the Permanent Settlement of such Province, are entitled to receive pottahs at those rates.

Presumption if rent of land be not changed for 20 years.

IV. Whenever, in any suit under this Act, it shall be proved that the rent at which land is held by a ryot in any such Province has not been changed for a period of twenty years before the commencement of the suit, it shall be presumed that the land has been held at that rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement, unless the contrary be shewn, or unless it be proved that such rent was fixed at some later period.

Ryots having right of occupancy, but not holding at fixed rates, to receive pottahs.

V. Ryots having rights of occupancy, but not holding at fixed rates as described in the two preceding Sections, are entitled to receive pottahs at fair and equitable rates. In case of dispute, the rate previously paid by the ryot shall be deemed to be fair and equitable, unless the contrary be shewn in a suit by either party under the provisions of this Act

Right of occupancy of ryot cultivating or holding land for 12 years.

VI. Every ryot who shall have cultivated or held land for a period of twelve years shall have a right of occupancy in the land so cultivated or held by him, whether it be held under pottah or not, so long as he pays the rent payable on account of the same; but this rule does not apply to Khomar, Neejjote, or Seer land belonging to the proprietor of the estate or tenure and let by him on lease for a term, or year by year, nor (as respects the actual cultivator) to lands sub-let for a term, or year by year, by a ryot having a right of occupancy. The holding of the father or other person from whom a ryot inherits shall be deemed to be the holding of the ryot within the meaning of this Section.

Saving of terms of written contracts.

VII. Nothing in the last preceding Section shall be held to affect the terms of any written contract for the cultivation of land entered into between a land-holder and a ryot, when it contains any express stipulation contrary thereto.

Pottahs to which ryots not having rights of occupancy are entitled.

VIII. Ryots not having rights of occupancy are entitled to pottahs only at such rates as may be agreed on between them and the persons to whom the rent is payable.

If on trial of suit for delivery of pottah, parties do not agree as to the time for which the pottah is granted, Court to fix the time.

IX. If on the trial of a suit for the delivery of a pottah instituted by a ryot having a right of occupancy, the parties do not agree as to the term for which the pottah is to be granted, the Court shall fix such term as under the circumstances of the case may seem just and proper: provided that the term shall not in any case be longer than ten years, and, in estates not permanently settled, shall not extend beyond the period for which the proprietor of the estate has engaged with Government: provided also that if the defendant be a farmer or other person having only a temporary interest in the land, the term of the pottah shall not extend beyond the period of the continuance of such interest. For cultivators not having a right of occupancy, the term of pottah shall be exclusively in the discretion of the person entitled to the rent of the land.

Proviso.

Person granting pottah entitled to a counterpart engagement.

X. Every person who grants a pottah is entitled to receive from the person to whom the pottah is granted, a kubooliyet or counterpart engagement in conformity with the terms of the pottah. The tender to any ryot of a pottah, such as the ryot is entitled to receive, shall be held to entitle the person to whom the rent is payable to receive a kubooliyet from such ryot.

Damages for exactions in excess of rent or for receipt withheld.

Form of receipt.

XI. Every under-tenant or ryot, from whom any sum is exacted in excess of the rent specified in his pottah, or payable under the provisions of this Act, whether as abwab or under any other pretext, and every under-tenant, ryot, or cultivator, from whom a receipt is withheld for any sum of money paid by him as rent, shall be entitled to recover from the person receiving such rent, damages not exceeding double the amount so exacted or paid. Receipts for rent shall specify the year or years on account of which the rent is acknowledged to have been paid; and any refusal to make such specification shall be held to be a withholding of a receipt.

Landholder not to compel the attendance of tenant for adjustment of rent or for any other purpose.

XII. All power at any time heretofore vested in zemindars and other landholders, of compelling the attendance of their tenants for the adjustment of their rents, or for any other purpose, is withdrawn; and all such persons are prohibited from adopting any means of compulsion for enforcing payment of the rents due to them, other than by suit or distress or otherwise under the provisions of this Act.

Payment of rent to be enforced under this Act.

Damages for extorting payment of rent by duress.

XIII. If payment of rent, whether the same be legally due or not, is extorted from any under-tenant or ryot by illegal confinement or other duress, such under-tenant or ryot shall be entitled to recover such damages, not exceeding in any case the sum of two hundred Rupees, as may be deemed a reasonable compensation for the injury done him by such extortion. An award of compensation under this Section shall not bar or affect any penalty or punishment to which the person practising such extortion may be subject by law.

Enhancement of rent of ryot holding without, or after expiry, &c., of written engagements.

XIV. No under-tenant or ryot, who holds or cultivates land without a written engagement, or under a written engagement not specifying the period of such engagement, or whose engagement has expired or has become cancelled in consequence of the sale for arrears of rent or revenue of the tenure or estate in which the land held or cultivated by him is situate, and has not been renewed, shall be liable to pay any higher rent for such land than the rent payable for the previous year, unless a written notice shall have been served on such under-tenant or ryot, in districts or parts of districts where the Fuslee year prevails, in or before the month of Jeyt, and in districts or parts of districts where the Bengalee year prevails, in or before the month of Poos, specifying the rent to which he will be subject for the ensuing year, and the ground on which an enhancement of rent is claimed. Such notice shall be served by order of the Collector in whose jurisdiction the lands are situate, on the application (which may be on plain paper) of the person to whom the rent is payable, and shall, if practicable, be served personally upon the under-tenant or ryot. If for any reason the notice cannot be served personally upon the under-tenant or ryot, it shall be affixed at his usual place of residence; or, if he have no such place of residence in the District in which the land is situate, the mode of service of such notice shall be by affixing it at the Mal Cutcherry of such land or other conspicuous place thereon, or at the village Chowree or Chowpal, or at some other conspicuous place in the village in which the land is situate.

Mode of contesting enhancement of rent.

XV. Any under-tenant or ryot, on whom such notice as aforesaid has been served, may contest his liability to pay the enhanced rent demanded of him either by complaint of excessive demand of rent as hereinafter provided, or in answer to any suit preferred against him for recovery of arrears of the enchanced rent.

Dependent talookdar, &c., holding land at fixed rent without change since Permanent Settlement, not liable to enhancement of rent.

XVI. No dependent talookdar, or other person possessing a permanent transferable interest in land intermediate between the proprietor of an estate and the ryot, who, in any province to which the provisions of this Act may apply, holds his talook or tenure (otherwise than under a terminable lease) at a fixed rent which has not been changed from the time of the Permanent Settlement, shall be liable to any enhancement of such rent, anything in Section LI, Regulation VIII of 1793, or in any other law, to the contrary notwithstanding.

Rent of talookdar, &c., not changed for twenty years, to be primâ facie evidence of occupancy at that rent since the Permanent Settlement.

XVII. Whenever, in any suit under this Act, it shall be proved that the rent at which a talook or other tenure is held in the said provinces has not been changed for a period of twenty years before the commencement of the suit, it shall be presumed that such talook or tenure has been held at that rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement, unless the contrary be shewn, or it be proved that such rent was fixed at some later period.

Grounds on which ryot having right of occupancy is liable to enhanced rent.

XVIII. No ryot having a right of occupancy shall be liable to an enhancement of the rent previously paid by him, except on some one of the following grounds, namely :—

That the rate paid by him is below that prevailing in adjacent places.

That the rate of rent paid by such ryot is below the prevailing rate payable by the same class of ryots for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the places adjacent.

That the value of the land, &c., has increased independently of the ryot.

That the value of the produce or the productive powers of the land have been increased otherwise than by the agency or at the expense of the ryot.

That the quantity of land held by the ryot is greater than he has paid rent for.

That the quantity of land held by the ryot has been proved by measurement to be greater than the quantity for which rent has been previously paid by him.

When ryot may claim abatement of rent.

XIX. Every ryot having a right of occupancy shall be entitled to claim an abatement of the rent previously paid by him, if the area of the land has been diminished by diluvion or otherwise, or if the value of the produce or the productive powers of the land have been decreased by any cause beyond the power of the ryot, or if the quantity of land held by the ryot has been proved by measurement to be less than the quantity for which rent has been previously paid by him.

Relinquishment of land by ryot after notice given.

XX. Any ryot, who desires to relinquish the land held or cultivated by him, shall be at liberty to do so, provided he gives notice of his intention, in writing, to the person entitled to the rent of the land, or his authorized agent, in districts or parts of districts where the Fuslee year prevails, in or before the month of Jeyt, and in districts or parts of districts where the Bengalee year prevails, in or before the month of Poos, of the year preceding that in which the relinquishment is to have effect. If he fail to give such notice, and the land is not let to any other person, he shall continue liable for the rent of the land. If the person entitled to the rent of the land, or his agent, refuse to receive any such notice, and to sign a receipt for the same, the ryot may make an application on plain paper to the Collector, in whose jurisdiction the lands are situate, who shall thereupon cause the notice to be served on such person or his agent in the manner provided in Section XIV.

What to be deemed an arrear of rent under this Act.

XXI. Any instalment of rent which is not paid on or before the day when the same is payable according to the pottah or engagement, or if there be no written specification of the time of payment, at or before the time when such instalment is payable according to established usage, shall be held to be an arrear of rent under this Act, and, unless otherwise provided by written agreement, shall be liable to interest at twelve per centum per annum.

Liability of ryot to be ejected for arrear due.

XXII. When an arrear of rent remains due from any ryot at the end of the Bengal year, or at the end of the month of Jeyt of the Fuslee or Willayutee year, as the case may be, such ryot shall be liable to be ejected from the land in respect of which the arrear is due: provided that no ryot having a right of occupancy, or holding under a pottah the term of which has not expired, shall be ejected otherwise than in execution of a decree or order under the provisions of this Act.

Liability of farmer to have his lease cancelled for arrear adjudged due.

Proviso.

XXIII. When an arrear of rent shall be adjudged to be due from any farmer or other lease-holder not having a permanent or transferable interest in the land, the lease of such lease-holder shall be liable to be cancelled, and the lease-holder to be ejected, provided that no such lease shall be cancelled nor the lease-holder ejected otherwise than in execution of a decree or order under the provisions of this Act.

Suits by or against Surburakars or Tehseeldars of estates held khas.

XXIV. All suits which under the provisions of this Act may be brought by or against zemindars or other persons in the receipt of the rent of land, may be brought by or against Surburakars or Tehseeldars of estates held under khas management, whether such estates are the property of Government or of individuals.

Proprietor's right to survey and measure his estate.

XXV. Every proprietor of an estate or tenure, or other person in receipt of the rents of an estate or tenure, has the right of making a general survey and measurement of the lands comprised in such estate or tenure, or any part thereof, unless restrained from doing so by express engagement with the occupants of the lands.

Registry of transfers of talookdars, &c.

XXVI. All dependent talookdars and other persons possessing a permanent transferable interest in land intermediate between the zemindar and the cultivator, are required to register, in the Sheristah of the zemindar or superior tenant to whom the rents of their talooks or tenures are payable, all transfers of such talooks or tenures, or portions of them, by sale, gift, or otherwise, as well as all successions thereto, and divisions among heirs in cases of inheritance. And every zemindar or superior tenant is required to admit to registry and otherwise give effect to all such transfers when made in good faith, and all such successions and divisions. Provided that no zemindar or superior tenant shall be required to admit to registry, or give effect to any division or distribution of the rent payable on account of any such tenure, nor shall any such division or distribution of rent be valid and binding without the consent in writing of the zemindar or superior tenant.

Limitation of certain suits.

XXVII. All suits instituted for the recovery of damages on account of the illegal exaction of rent, or of any unauthorized cess or impost, or on account of the refusal of receipts for rent paid, or on account of the extortion of rent by confinement or other duress, or on account of the excessive demand of rent, and all suits for abatement of rent, and all suits to eject any ryot or to cancel any lease on account of the non-payment of arrears of rent or of the breach of the conditions of any contract by which a ryot may be liable to be ejected, or a lease may be liable to be cancelled, and all suits to recover the occupancy of any land, farm, or tenure from which a ryot, farmer, or tenant has been illegally ejected by the person entitled to receive rent for the same, and all suits arising out of the exercise of the power of distraint for arrears of rent conferred on zemindars and others, by this or any other Act or out of any acts done under color of the exercise of the said power shall be commenced within the period of one year from the date of the accruing of the cause of action and not afterwards.

Limitation of suits for grant of pottahs, &c.

XXVIII. Suits for the delivery of pottahs or kubooliyets, and for the determination of the rates of rent at which such pottahs or kubooliyets are to be delivered, may be instituted at any time during the tenancy.

Limitation of suits for arrears of rent.

XXIX. Suits for the recovery of arrears of rent shall be instituted within three years from the last day of the Bengal year, or from the last day of the month of Jeyt of the Fuslee or Willayutee year, in which the arrear claimed shall have become due: Provided that if the suit be for the recovery of rent at a higher rate than was payable in the previous year, such rent having been enhanced after issue of notice under Section XIII of Act X of 1859, or under Section XIV of this Act; and the enhancement not having been confirmed by any competent Court, the suit shall be instituted within three months from the end of the Bengal year, or of the month of Jeyt of the Fuslee or Willayutee year, on account of which such enhanced rent is claimed.

Limitation of suits against agents for money, papers, or accounts.

XXX. Suits for the recovery of money in the hands of an agent, or for the delivery of accounts or papers by an agent, may be brought at any time during the agency or within one year after the determination of the agency of such agent: Provided that if the person having the right to sue shall, by means of fraud, have been kept from the knowledge of the receipt of any such money by the agent, or if any fraudulent account shall have been rendered by the agent, the suit may be brought within one year from the time when the fraud shall have been first known to such person; but no such suit shall in any case be brought at any time exceeding three years from the termination of the agency.

Every Naib or Gomastah thereto specially authorized by any writing under the hand of his employer shall, for the purposes of all suits for any of the causes of action mentioned in Section XXVII, XXVIII, XXIX, or XXX, of this Act, be deemed to be the recognised Agent of such employer within the meaning of Section XIII of the said Act VIII of 1859, though such employer may be within the jurisdiction of the Court in which such Naib or Gomastah may appear or make any application.

Cognizance of suits under this Act.

XXXIII. From and after the time when this Act shall commence and take effect in any place, the jurisdiction, save as regards any suits or proceedings then pending, of the Collectorate Courts in such place, under Act X of 1859 of the Governor-General in Council, and Act VI of 1862 of the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, to entertain suits, shall cease: and all suits brought for any cause of action arising under either of those Acts or this Act shall, from such time and in such place, be cognizable by the Civil Courts according to their several jurisdictions.

Proceedings to be regulated under Code of Civil Procedure.

XXXIV. Save as in this Act is otherwise provided, suits of every description brought for any cause of action arising under this Act, and all proceedings therein, shall be regulated by the Code of Civil Procedure passed by the Governor-General in Council, being Act No. VIII of 1859, and by such further and other enactments of the Governor-General in Council in relation to Civil Procedure as now are or from time to time may be in force; and all the provisions of the said Act and of such other enactments shall apply to such suits.

Provision when cause of action arises in different jurisdictions.

XXXVI. If the land which by the provisions of the next preceding Section determines the place in which the cause of action in the suits in the said Section mentioned shall be deemed to have arisen, be situate within the jurisdiction of different Courts, the provisions of Sections XI and XII of the said Act VIII of 1859, shall apply to such suits, as if the same had been suits for the recovery of such land.

Proceedings in case of opposition made to the measurement of land.

XXXVII. If any person, intending to measure any land which he has a right to measure, is opposed in making such measurement by the occupant of the land; or if any under-tenant or ryot, having received notice of the intended measurement, of land held or cultivated by him, which is liable to such measurement, refuses to attend and point out such land, the person claiming the right to measure such land may apply to establish his right to measure such land, in the Court which would have had jurisdiction in case such suit had been brought for the recovery of such land, and such Court shall hear and determine the right to make such measurement, and, if the case shall so require, shall make an order enjoining or excusing the attendance of any such under-tenant or ryot. If any under-tenant or ryot, after the issue of an order enjoining his attendance, neglects to attend and to point out the land, it shall not be competent to him to contest the correctness of the measurement made, or any of the proceedings held, in his absence.

Measurement of land when it cannot be ascertained who are the persons liable to pay rent.

XXXVIII. If the proprietor of an estate or tenure, or other person entitled to receive the rents of an estate or tenure, is unable to measure the lands comprised in such estate or tenure, or any part thereof, by reason that he cannot ascertain who are the persons liable to pay rent in respect of the lands, or any part of the lands comprised therein, such proprietor or other person may apply to the Court which would have had jurisdiction in case a suit had been brought for the recovery of such lands, and such Court thereupon, and on the necessary costs being deposited therein by the applicant, shall order such lands to be measured, and shall cause a copy of such order to be transmitted to the Collector in whose jurisdiction the lands are situate, together with the sum so deposited for costs, and the Collector shall thereupon proceed to measure such lands, and shall ascertain and record the names of the persons in occupation of the same, or, on the special application of the proprietor or other person aforesaid, but not otherwise, shall proceed to ascertain, determine, and record the tenures and under-tenures, the rates of rent payable in respect of such lands, and the persons by whom respectively the rents are payable. If after due enquiry the Collector shall be unable to cause such lands to be measured, or to ascertain or record the names of the persons in occupation of the same, or if he shall (in any case in which such special application shall have been made as aforesaid) be unable to ascertain who are the persons having tenures or under-tenures in such lands, or any part thereof, then and in any such case such Collector may declare the same to have lapsed to the party on whose application such enquiry may have been made. If any person, within fifteen days after such Collector shall have recorded the name of such person as being in occupation of such land, or any part thereof, or shall have declared a tenure to have lapsed, shall appear and show good and sufficient cause for his previous non-appearance, and satisfy such Collector that there has been a failure of justice, such Collector may, upon such terms or conditions as may seem fit, alter or rescind such order according to the justice of the case.

Proceeding on completion of such measurement.

XXXIX. The Collector shall, as soon as conveniently may be after he shall have finally completed any such measurement and record, return a copy thereof to the Court by which such measurement had been ordered, and such Court shall receive and record the same; and every decision of the Collector made in pursuance of the provisions of Section XXXVIII shall be appealable as if the same had been an order of the Court into which such copy had been returned, made upon the day on which such copy was so returned; but save as aforesaid, every decision of such Collector made in pursuance of the provisions of Section XXXVIII shall be final.

Collector's powers.

XL. The provisions of the said Act VIII. of 1859 and the Acts amending the same, or of any other Act or Acts for the time being in force in Civil Courts in Bengal, relating to the evidence of witnesses, to procuring the attendance of witnesses and the production of documents, and to the examination, remuneration, and punishment of witnesses, shall apply to all proceedings before any Collector under Section XXXVIII; and for the purposes aforesaid, the Collector shall have all the powers and authorities in and by such Acts or any of them conferred upon the Court.

XLI. All measurements made under this Act shall be made according to the standard pole of measurement of the Pergunnah in which the land is situated.

In any suit hereafter to be brought for the recovery of an arrear of rent, the plaint shall specify the name of the village and estate, and of the pergunnah or other local division in which the land is situate, the yearly rent of the land, the amount (if any) received on account of the year for which the claim is made, the amount in arrear, and the time in respect of which it is alleged to be due. If the arrear is alleged to be due from any ryot, the plaint shall further specify the quantity of land; and where fields have been numbered in a Government Survey, the number (if it be possible to give it) of each field.

The Court may in certain cases award to the plaintiff additional damages not exceeding 25 per cent.

XLIV. In any suit hereafter to be brought for rent under the provisions of this Act, if it shall appear to the Court that the defendant has, without reasonable or probable cause, neglected or refused to pay the amount due by him, and that he has not, before the institution of the suit, tendered such amount to the plaintiff or his duly authorized agent, or in case of the refusal of the plaintiff or such agent to receive the amount tendered, has not deposited such amount in the Court before the institution of the suit in manner hereinafter mentioned, it shall be lawful for the Court to award to the plaintiff, in addition to the amount decreed for rent and costs, such damages, not exceeding twenty-five per centum on the amount of rent decreed, as the Court may think fit. These damages, if awarded, as well as the amount of rent and costs decreed in the suit, shall carry interest at the rate of twelve per centum per annum from the date of decree until payment thereof.

The Court may award compensation not exceeding 25 per cent. on the amount sued for, to a defendant improperly sued.

XLV. In any suit hereafter to be brought for rent under the provisions of this Act, if it shall appear to the Court that the plaintiff has instituted the suit against the defendant without reasonable or probable cause, or that the defendant had before the institution of the suit duly deposited in the Court, in the manner hereinafter mentioned, the full amount which the Court shall find to have been due to the plaintiff at the date of such deposit, it shall be lawful for the Court to award to the defendant, by way of compensation, such sum, not exceeding twenty-five per centum on the whole amount claimed by the plaintiff, as the Court may think fit; and such sum, with interest at the rate of twelve per centum per annum until payment thereof, shall be recoverable from the plaintiff in like manner as sums ordered to be paid by decrees of such Court.

Under-tenant or ryot may, after tender, &c., pay into Court, without any action being brought against him, what he admits to be due to his zemindar, &c.

XLVI. If any under-tenant or ryot shall, at the Mal Cutcherry for the receipt of rents or other place where the rents of the land or other immoveable property held or cultivated by him are usually payable, tender payment of what he shall consider to be the full amount of rent due from him at the date of the tender to the zemindar or other person in receipt of the rent of such land; and if the amount so tendered shall not be accepted, and a receipt in full shall not be forthwith granted, it shall be lawful for the under-tenant or ryot, without any suit having been instituted against him, to deposit such amount in the Court having jurisdiction to entertain a suit for such rent, to the credit of the zemindar or other person aforesaid; and such deposit shall, so far as the under-tenant or ryot, and all persons claiming through or under him, are concerned, in all respects operate as, and have the full effect of, a payment then made by the under-tenant or ryot of the amount deposited to such zemindar or other person.

Payment into Court to have effect of payment to zemindar or other person entitled.

Proceedings on making a payment into Court and drawing out the money.

XLVII. Such deposit shall be received in such Court on the application of the under-tenant or ryot, or his agent, made in writing, and on the under-tenant, or, ryot, or his agent, making a declaration in the form, or, as nearly as circumstances will admit in the form set forth in the Schedule (A) hereto annexed, and the Court shall give a receipt for the same under its seal. If the declaration shall contain any averment which the person making the declaration shall know or believe to be false, or shall not know or believe to be true, such person shall be subject to punishment according to the law for the time being in force for the punishment of giving or fabricating false evidence. Upon receiving the money so deposited, the Court shall issue a notice to the person to whose credit it has been deposited, in the form set forth in the Schedule (B) hereto annexed; and such notice shall be served by the Court, without the payment of any fee, either upon the person to whom it is addressed, or upon his Naib, Gomashtah, or other agent; and in the absence of any such agent, it shall be served by sticking up a copy of the same in the said Court, and another copy upon the Mal Cutcherry for the receipt of rents, or other place where the rents are usually paid for the land in respect of which the money has been deposited. If the person to whom such notice is issued, or his duly authorized agent, shall appear and apply that the money in deposit be paid to him, it shall be immediately made over to him.

After action brought defendant may pay into Court, without costs, money tendered before action brought.

XLVIII. The defendant in any suit instituted under any of the provisions of this Act, may, if he have duly tendered the same to the plaintiff before the institution of the suit, pay into Court such sum of money as such defendant may consider to be due to the plaintiff without paying in any costs incurred by the plaintiff up to the time of such payment, and such sum shall be immediately paid out of Court to the plaintiff. If, after such payment, the plaintiff elects to proceed in the suit, and ultimately recovers no further sum than shall have been paid into Court, the plaintiff shall be charged with the whole costs of the suit incurred by the defendant; but if the plaintiff ultimately recovers a further sum than shall have been paid into Court, the defendant shall be charged with the whole costs of the suit.

Costs if plaintiff goes on and recovers no more.

If no previous tender has been made, defendant may pay into Court what he admits to be due, with costs on that sum.

XLIX. The defendant in any suit instituted under any of the provisions of this Act, may, without having made any tender before action brought, pay into Court such sum of money as he shall consider to be due to the plaintiff, together with the costs (to be fixed by the Court, if necessary, as of a suit originally instituted for the amount so paid into Court) incurred by the plaintiff up to the time of such payment, and such sum shall immediately be paid out of Court to the plaintiff. If after such payment the plaintiff elects to proceed in the suit and ultimately recovers no further sum than shall have been paid into Court, he shall be charged with all costs incurred by the defendant subsequently to such payment; but if the plaintiff ultimately recovers a further sum than shall have been paid into Court, the defendant shall be charged with costs as upon a suit originally instituted, for the whole amount for which the plaintiff ultimately obtains a decree; but shall have credit thereout for the amount of costs paid into Court by him in the first instance.

Costs if plaintiff goes on with the suit.

No warrant of arrest before judgment.

L. No warrant of arrest before judgment shall be issued in a suit for arrears of rent due in respect of a dependent talook or other transferable tenure, which may be liable to sale in execution of any decree which may be passed in the case.

Mesne profits may be claimed in suits for recovery of land.

LI. It shall be lawful for any person entitled to recover the possession of land under any of the provisions of this Act, to include in his plaint a claim for the mesne profits of the land.

Suits for ejectment or cancelment of lease.

LII. Any person desiring to eject a ryot or to cancel a lease on account of non-payment of arrears of rent, may sue for such ejectment or cancelment and for recovery of the arrear in the same action, or may adduce any unexecuted decree for arrears of rent as evidence of the existence of such arrear in a suit for such ejectment or cancelment. In all cases of such suits for the ejectment of a ryot or the cancelment of a lease, the decree shall specify the amount of the arrear, and if such amount, together with interest and costs of suit, be paid into Court within fifteen days from the date of the decree, execution shall be stayed.

Court to issue immediate execution in certain cases.

LIII. Whenever in any suit brought by any zemindar or other person in receipt of the rent of land, to eject any cultivator not having a right of occupancy, or to eject any farmer, or other tenant holding only for a limited period after the determination of his lease or tenancy, or any agent after the determination of his agency, or to enforce any attachment or ejectment expressly authorised by any Regulation or Act, the Court shall pass a decree in favor of the plaintiff, no application in the form provided in Section 212 of the said Act VIII of 1859 shall be necessary, but the Court shall forthwith, upon the plaintiff depositing in Court the necessary expenses, make an order for delivery of possession in execution of the decree. Provided, however, that in cases to which Section LII of this Act is applicable, no such order shall be made until after the expiration of fifteen days from the date of the decree.

In such cases execution not to be stayed pending appeal.

LIV. It shall not be lawful for the Court to entertain any application for stay of execution of any such order pending any appeal, and no person who shall have been evicted under any such order shall be restored to possession so long as the decree under which such order was issued shall remain unreversed.

If person required by the decree refuse to grant pottah, Court may do so.

LV. When a decree is given for the delivery of a pottah, if the person required by the decree to grant such pottah refuse or delay to grant the same, the Court may grant a pottah in conformity with the terms of the decree under the signature and seal of such Court, and such pottah shall be of the same force and effect as if granted by the person aforesaid.

Refusal to execute kubooliyet as required by the decree.

LVI. When a decree is given for the delivery of a kubooliyet, if the person required by the decree to execute such kubooliyet shall refuse to execute the same, the decree shall be evidence of the amount of rent claimable from such person, and a copy of the decree under the signature and seal of the Court shall be of the same force and effect as a kubooliyet executed by the said person.

Process not to issue simultaneously against both person and property.

LVII. Process of execution in any suit instituted under this Act may be issued against either the person or the property of a judgment-debtor, but process shall not be issued simultaneously against both the person and property.

No execution to be issued after three years from date of judgment.

LVIII. No process of execution of any description whatsoever shall be issued on a judgment in any suit for any of the causes of action mentioned in Section XXVII, XXVIII, XXIX, or XXX, of this Act, after the lapse of three years from the date of such judgment, unless the judgment be for a sum exceeding five hundred Rupees, in which case the period within which execution may be had shall be regulated by the general rules in force in respect to the period allowed for the execution of decrees of the Court.

Procedure on sale of under tenure.

LIX. Whenever a decree may be passed for an arrear of rent due in respect of an under-tenure which by the title-deeds or the custom of the country is transferable by sale, and the judgment-creditor shall make application for the attachment and sale of such under-tenure, the Court shall, so soon as such under-tenure shall have been ordered to be sold, cause to be hung up in some conspicuous part of the building in which such Court sits, and of the buildings in which the Collector and Judge of the District within which the land comprised in such under-tenure is situate, and to be affixed on some conspicuous place on such land and on some conspicuous place in the town or village in or nearest to which such land is situate, a notice for the sale of such under-tenure on some fixed date not less than twenty days from the hanging up of such notice in such Court.

Contents of notice of sale of under-tenure.

LX. Every such notice shall specify in the words used in the plaint in the suit in which the decree was made, the name of the village, estate, and pergunnah, or other local division in which the land comprised in the said under-tenure is situated, the yearly rent payable under the said under-tenure, and the gross amount recoverable under the said decree.

Under-tenures not to be sold while other execution in force.

LXI. No order for the sale of any such under-tenure shall be made in execution of a decree for recovery of arrears of rent payable in respect thereof, when a warrant of execution has been previously issued against the person or moveable property of the judgment-debtor, so long as such warrant remains in force. If, after sale of any such under-tenure in execution of such decree, any portion of the amount decreed remains due, process may be applied for and issued against any other property, moveable or immoveable, belonging to the debtor.

How the sale may be stayed by person interested in under-tenure.

LXII. If the sum due under the decree, together with interest to date of payment, and all costs of process, be paid into Court at any time before the sale commences, whether by the defaulting holder of the under-tenure or any one on his behalf, or any one interested in the protection of the under-tenure, such sale shall not take place; and the provisions of Section 13 of Regulation VIII of 1819, for the recovery of sums paid by persons other than the defaulting holder of the under-tenure, to stay the sale of the under-tenure, shall be applicable to all similar payments made under this Section.

If third party claim to be the lawful possessor of such under-tenure, Court to stay the sale and to enquire into, and adjudicate upon, the claim, upon decree being paid or secured.

LXIII. If after attachment and before sale of any such under-tenure as aforesaid in execution of a decree for arrears of rent due in respect of such under-tenure, any third party may prefer a claim alleging that such third party and not the person against whom the decree has been obtained, is the proprietor of such under-tenure, and was in lawful possession of the same at the time when such decree was obtained, the Court shall not postpone such sale, unless and until such third party shall have deposited in Court the amount of the decree, or given sufficient security for the same. Provided always that no transfer of an under-tenure which, by the provisions of this Act or any other law for the time being in force, is required to be registered in the Sherishtah of the zemindar or superior tenant, shall be recognized unless it has been so registered, or unless sufficient cause for non-registration be shewn to the satisfaction of the Court.

Non-registered transfers not to be recognized.

Execution of decrees given in favor of sharers in undivided estates or tenures.

LXIV. If a decree is given in favor of a sharer in a joint undivided estate, dependent talook, or other similar tenure, for money due to him on account of his share of the rent of an under-tenure, situate in such undivided estate, talook, or tenure, no order for the sale of such under-tenure in execution of such decree, shall be made unless and until all moveable property, (if any), which such judgment-debtor may possess within the jurisdiction of the Court in which the suit was instituted, shall have been seized and sold in execution of such decree, and the sale of such property, if any, shall have proved insufficient to satisfy the judgment. In such case such under-tenure, if of the nature described in Section LIX, may be seized and sold in execution of such decree, according to the ordinary procedure of the Court and not in the manner provided in the said Section, and every such sale shall have such and the same effect as the sale of any immoveable property sold in execution of a decree not being for arrears of rent payable in respect thereof.

Execution of judgment.

LXV. In the execution of any decree for the payment of any money under this Act, not being money due as arrears of rent of a saleable under-tenure, if satisfaction of the judgment cannot be obtained by execution against the person or moveable property of the debtor within the district in which the suit was instituted, the judgment-creditor may apply for execution against any immoveable property belonging to such debtor.

Purchaser to acquire the under-tenure, with certain exceptions, free of incumbrances.

LXVI. The purchaser of an under-tenure under the provisions of Sections LIX and LX of this Act shall acquire it free of all incumbrances which may have accrued thereon by any act of any holder of the said under-tenure, his representatives or assignees, unless the right of making such incumbrances shall have been expressly vested in the holder by the written engagement under which the under-tenure was created, or by the subsequent written authority of the person who created it, his representatives or assignees: provided that nothing herein contained shall be held to entitle the purchaser to eject khoodkhast ryots or resident and hereditary cultivators, nor to cancel bonâ fide engagements made with ryots or cultivators of the classes aforesaid by any holder of the under-tenure or his representatives, except it be proved in a regular suit to be brought by such purchaser for the adjustment of his rent, that a higher rent would have been demandable at the time such engagements were contracted by his predecessor. Nothing in this section shall be held to apply to the purchase of a tenure by the previous holder thereof through whose default the tenure was brought to sale.

Zemindar how to proceed if purchaser do not register.

LXVII. The purchaser of an under-tenure sold under this Act shall apply to the zemindar or other landholder within fifteen days from the day of sale to have his name registered in the zemindar or other landholder's books as the purchaser, and shall execute a kubooliyet on the same terms and conditions on which the under-tenure was held by the defaulter; and if such application be not made within fifteen days, it shall be lawful for the zemindar or other landholder to sue the said purchaser for the delivery of a kubooliyet.

Produce of the land to be held hypothecated for the rent.

Arrears of rent may be recovered by distraint under the following rules.

Cultivators who have given security to be exempt from distraint.

Proviso.

LXVIII. The produce of the land is held to be hypothecated for the rent payable in respect thereof; and when an arrear of rent, as defined in Section XXI of this Act, is due from any cultivator of land, the zemindar, lakhrajdar, farmer, dependent talookdar, under-farmer, or other person entitled to receive the rent of such land immediately from the actual cultivator thereof, instead of bringing suit for the arrear as hereinbefore provided, may recover the same by distraint and sale of the produce of the land on account of which the arrear is due, under the following rules. Provided always that, when a cultivator has given security for the payment of his rent, the produce of the land for the rent of which security has been given, shall not be liable to distraint. Provided also that no sharer in a joint estate, dependent talook, or other tenure in which a division of lands has not been made amongst the sharers, shall exercise the power of distraint otherwise than through a manager authorised to collect the rents of the whole estate, talook or tenure, on behalf of all the sharers in the same.

No distraint in certain cases.

LXIX. Distraint shall not be made for any arrear which has been due for a longer period than one year; nor for the recovery of any sum in excess of the rent payable for the same land in the preceding year, unless a written engagement for the payment of such excess has been executed by the cultivator.

Power of distraint to be exercised by managers under the Court of Wards, &c.

Proviso.

LXX. The power of distraint vested by Section LXVIII in zemindars and other persons entitled to receive rent from cultivators of land, may be exercised by managers under the Court of Wards, Surburakars, and Tehseeldars of estates held under khas management, and other persons lawfully entrusted with the charge of landed property; and also by Naibs, Gomastahs, and other agents employed by any such persons as aforesaid in the collection of rent, if expressly authorised by dower of attorney in that behalf; provided that, if any illegal act is committed by any such Naib, Gomashtah, or other agent under color of the exercise of the said power, the person employing such agent shall be liable, as well as the agent, for any damages accruing by reason of such act.

Standing crops and crops gathered, but not stored, liable to distraint.

LXXI. Standing crops and other ungathered products of the earth, and crops or other products when reaped or gathered and deposited in any threshing-floor or place for treading out grain or the like, whether in the field or within a home-stead, may be distrained by persons invested with the powers of distraint under the provisions of this Act. But no such crops or products other than the produce of the land in respect of which an arrear of rent is due, or of land held under the same engagement, and no grain or other produce after it has been stored by the cultivator, and no other property whatsoever, shall be liable to distraint under this Act.

Defaulter to be served with a written demand, &c., before or at the time of distraint.

LXXII. Before or at the time when distraint is made under this Act, the distrainer shall cause the defaulter to be served with a written demand for the amount of the arrear, together with an account exhibiting the grounds on which the demand is made. The demand and account shall, if practicable, be served personally on the defaulter, or if he abscond or conceal himself so that they cannot be so served, shall be affixed at his usual place of residence.

Distress to be proportionate to the arrear if not paid or tendered.

LXXIII. Unless the amount of the demand is immediately paid or tendered, the distrainer may distrain property as aforesaid of value proportionate to the amount of the arrear with costs of the distress; and shall prepare a list or description of the said property, and deliver a copy of the same to the owner, or if he be absent affix it at his usual place of residence.

Standing crops, &c., when attached, to be reaped and stored by the cultivator, or, if he neglect to do so, by the distrainer.

LXXIV. Standing crops and other ungathered products may, notwithstanding the distraint, be reaped and gathered by the cultivator, and may be stored in such granaries or other places as are commonly used by him for the purpose. If the cultivator neglect to do so, the distrainer shall cause the said crops or products to be reaped or gathered, and in such case shall store the same either in such granaries or other places as aforesaid, or in some other convenient place in the neighbourhood. In either case the distrained property shall be placed in the charge of some person appointed by the distrainer for the purpose. Crops or products which from their nature do not admit of being stored, may be sold, before they are cut or gathered, under the rules hereinafter provided; but in such case the distraint shall be made at least twenty days before the time when the crops or products, or any part of the same, would be fit for cutting or gathering.

Distrainer may apply for aid to the Court upon occasion of resistance made or apprehended.

LXXV. If a distrainer shall be opposed, or shall apprehend resistance, and shall desire to obtain the assistance of a public officer, he may apply to the Court which under the provisions of this Act would have jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the rent for which such distrainer is about to distrain, and the Court may, if it thinks necessary, depute an officer to support the distrainer in making the distraint.

Persons empowered to distrain may give written authority to their servants to do so.

LXXVI. When any person, empowered to distrain property under Section LXVIII or Section LXX, shall employ a servant or other person to make the distress, he shall give to such servant or person a written authority (which may be on plain paper) for the same, and the distress shall be made in the name and on the responsibility of the person giving such authority.

Distress to be withdrawn if defaulter tender payment of arrear and expenses of attachment prior to the day of sale.

LXXVII. If at any time after property has been distrained, and prior to the day fixed for its being put up to sale as hereinafter provided, the owner of the property shall tender payment of the arrear demanded of him and of the expenses of the distress, the distrainer shall receive the same, and shall forthwith withdraw the distress.

Application for sale.

LXXVIII. Within five days from the time of the storing of any distrained crops or products, or if the crops or products do not from their nature admit of being stored, within five days from the time of making the distress, the distrainer shall apply for sale of the same to the Court which would have jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the rent for which the distress was made.

Form of application.

LXXIX. The application shall be in writing, and shall contain an inventory or description of the property distrained, the name of the defaulter and his place of residence, the amount due, and the date of the distress, and the place in which the distrained property is deposited. Together with the application, the distrainer shall lodge in Court the amount necessary for the service of a notice upon the defaulter as hereinafter provided.

Cost of notice upon defaulter to be deposited by distrainer.

Procedure by Civil Court on receipt of application.

LXXX. Immediately on receipt of any application under the provisions of the next preceding Section, the Court to which such application shall have been made, shall appoint an officer to conduct the sale of such property and shall cause to be served a notice [which shall be in the Form contained in the Schedule (C) to this Act, or to the like effect] on the person whose property has been distrained, requiring him either to pay the amount demanded, or to institute a suit to contest the demand before such Court within the period of fifteen days from the receipt of the notice; and shall at the same time cause to be affixed upon some conspicuous place in the Court-house, a proclamation fixing a day for the sale of the distrained property, which shall not be less than twenty days from the date of the application; and shall deliver a copy of the proclamation to the peon charged with the service of the notice, to be put up by him in the place where the distrained property is deposited. The proclamation shall contain a description of the property, the demand for which it is to be sold, and the place where the sale is to be held.

Sale to be suspended when suit instituted.

LXXXI. If a suit shall be instituted in pursuance of the aforesaid notice, the Court shall suspend proceedings in regard to the sale of the distrained property, and shall certify to the officer appointed to conduct the sale such suspension.

Suit to contest distrainer's demand before issue of notice of sale.

LXXXII. Any person whose property has been distrained in the manner in this Act provided, may institute a suit to contest the demand of the distrainer immediately after the distraint of his property, and before the issue of notice of sale; when such suit is instituted, the Court shall suspend proceedings in respect of the sale of such property.

Distress to be withdrawn on receipt of Court's certificate that the owner has executed a bond to pay amount of decree with interest and costs.

LXXXIII. The person whose property has been distrained, may, at the time of instituting any such suit as aforesaid, or at any subsequent period, execute a bond with sufficient security, binding himself and his sureties to pay whatever sum may be adjudged to be due from him with interest and costs of suit; and when such bond is executed, the Court shall give to the owner of the property a certificate to that effect, or, if so requested, shall serve the distrainer with notice of the same, and upon such certificate being presented to the distrainer by the owner of the property, or served on him by order of the Court, the property shall be released from distraint.

Value of claim in suits disputing distress.

LXXXIV. The estimated value of the claim made in any suit filed under the provisions of Sections LXXX, LXXXII, & XCVI, or any of them, shall be deemed to be the amount of arrears of rent for which the distraint shall have been made.

On expiration of period fixed in the proclamation of sale, if institution of suit to contest distrainer's demand have not been certified, sale may be proceeded with.

LXXXV. On the expiration of the period fixed in the proclamation of sale, if a suit to contest the demand of the distrainer be not in the meantime instituted in the Court and certified to the officer appointed to conduct the sale, such officer shall, unless the said demand, with such costs of the distress as shall be allowed by him, be discharged in full, proceed to sell the property, or such part of it as may be necessary, in the manner hereinafter prescribed.

Place and manner of sale of distrained property.

LXXXVI. The sale shall be held at the place where the distrained property is deposited, or at the nearest gunge, bazar, haut, or other place of public resort, if the officer appointed to conduct the sale should be of opinion that it is likely to sell there to better advantage. The property shall be sold by public auction in one or more lots as such officer holding the sale may think advisable, and if the demand with the costs of distress and sale be satisfied by the sale of a portion of the property, the distress shall be immediately withdrawn with respect to the remainder.

If fair price be not offered, sale may be postponed to another day, and shall be then completed at whatever price may be offered.

LXXXVII. If on the property being put up for sale a fair price, in the estimation of the officer holding the sale, be not offered for it, and the owner of the property or some person authorised to act on his behalf apply to have the sale postponed until the next day or the next market day, if a market be held at the place of sale, the sale shall be postponed until such day, and shall be then completed, whatever price may be offered for the property.

Payment of purchase-money.

LXXXVIII. The price of every lot shall be paid for in ready money at the time of sale, or as soon after as the officer holding the sale shall think necessary, and in default of such payment the property shall be put up again and sold. When the purchase-money has been paid in full, the officer holding the sale shall give the purchaser a certificate describing the property purchased by him and the price paid.

Proceeds of sale.

LXXXIX. From the proceeds of the sale of distrained property, the officer holding the sale shall make a deduction at the rate of one anna in the Rupee on account of the costs of the sale, and shall transmit the amount to the Court, in order that it may be credited to Government. He shall then pay to the distrainer the expenses incurred by the distrainer on account of the distress and of the issue of the notice and proclamation of sale prescribed in Section LXXX, to such amount as, after examination of the statement of expenses furnished by the distrainer, he shall think proper to allow. The remainder shall be applied to the discharge of the arrear for which the distraint was made, with interest thereupon up to the day of sale; and if there be any overplus, it shall be delivered to the person whose property shall have been sold

Officers holding sales prohibited from purchasing.

XC. Officers holding sales of property under this Act, and all persons employed by or subordinate to such officers, are prohibited from purchasing, either directly or indirectly, any property sold by such officers.

All irregularities to be reported to the Court.

XCI. Officers holding sales of distrained property are required to bring to the notice of the Court any material irregularities committed by distrainers under color of this Act; and if in any case, on proceeding to hold a sale of property, such officer shall find that the owner of the property has not received due notice of the distress and intended sale, he shall postpone the sale and report the case to the Court, and the Court shall direct the issue of another notice and proclamation of sale under Section LXXX, or pass such other order as may seem proper.

Recovery of expenses if officers proceed to place of sale and no sale take place.

XCII. When any such officer has proceeded to any place for the purpose of holding a sale, and no sale takes place either for the reason stated in the last preceding Section, or because the demand of the distrainer has been previously satisfied, no intimation of such satisfaction having been given by the distrainer to such officer, the charge of one anna in the Rupee on account of expenses shall be leviable, and shall be calculated on the estimated value of the distrained property. If the demand of the distrainer be not satisfied until the day fixed for the sale, the charge for expenses shall be paid by the owner of the property, and may be recovered by the sale of such portion thereof as may be necessary. In all other cases the Court shall make an order that such expenses shall be paid by the distrainer, and shall in such order fix the amount to be paid by him; such amount not to exceed the sum of ten Rupees: and the amount by such order directed to be paid may be recovered from such distrainer as if such order were a decree of such Court.

Proceedings of officers, &c., subject to revision and orders of Court.

XCIII. All proceedings under this Act of the officers appointed to hold sales of distrained property shall be subject to the revision and orders of the Court to which they respectively are attached, and the Court may require the submission of such reports and statements of business performed by such officers as may be thought necessary.

Second proclamation of sale.

XCIV. When a suit has been instituted to contest the demand of a distrainer, and the property has not been released on security, if the demand or any portion of it shall be adjudged to be due, the Court shall issue an order to the officer appointed to conduct the sale of such property and furnish a copy of such order to the distrainer, authorising the sale of the property; and on the application of the distrainer, which shall be made within five days from the receipt by him of such copy of such order, such officer shall publish a second proclamation in the manner prescribed in Section LXXX, fixing another day for the sale of the distrained property, which shall not be less than five nor more than ten days from the date of the proclamation; and unless the amount adjudged to be due with the costs of distress, including any costs of suit which may be ordered to be paid by the person instituting such suit, be paid intermediately, shall proceed to sell the property in the manner hereinbefore provided.

Procedure after institution of suit to contest distrainer's demand.

XCV. In all suits instituted to contest the demand of a distrainer, the distrainer shall be required to prove the arrear in the same manner as if he had himself instituted a suit for the amount. If the demand or any part thereof is found to be due, the Court shall make a decree for the amount in favor of the distrainer, together with such costs of suit as to such Court may seem proper, and the amount may be recovered by sale of the property as provided in the last preceding Section if the distress has not been withdrawn, and if any balance remain due after such sale, by execution of the decree against the person and any other property of the defaulter, or if the property has been released on security, by execution of the decree against the person and property of the defaulter and of his surety. If, on the other hand, the distraint is adjudged to be vexatious or groundless, the Court, besides directing the release of the distrained property, may award such damages in favor of the plaintiff as the circumstances of the case shall seem to require, and may decree the costs of the suit to be paid by the distrainer.

Any person whose property has been distrained for arrears of rent alleged to be due from another, may institute a suit against the distrainer.

XCVI. If any person shall claim as his own, property which has been distrained for arrears of rent alleged to be due from any other person, such person may institute a suit against the distrainer and such other person to try the right to the possession of the property in such Court, and in like manner and under the same conditions as to the time of instituting the suit and to the consequent postponement of sale, as a person whose property has been distrained for an arrear of rent alleged to be due from him may institute a suit to contest the demand. When any such suit is instituted, the property may be released upon security being given for the value of the same. If the claim is dismissed, the Court shall make an order for the sale of the property or the recovery of the value thereof, as the case may be, for the benefit of the distrainer, and for payment of such costs of suit to such distrainer, as to such Court shall seem fit. If the claim is upheld, the Court shall decree the release of the distrained property with costs, and such damages (if any) as the circumstances of the case may seem to require. Provided always that no claim to any produce of land liable to distraint under this Act, which at the time of the distress may have been found in the possession of a defaulting cultivator, whether such claim be in respect of a previous sale, mortgage, or otherwise, shall bar the prior claim of the person entitled to the rent of the land; nor shall any attachment in execution of a judgment or decree of any Court prevail against such prior claim.

Persons prevented from suing in time to save their property from sale, may sue for damages.

XCVII. If any person, whose property has been distrained for the recovery of a demand not justly due or of a demand due or alleged to be due from some other person, is prevented by any sufficient cause from bringing a suit to contest the demand or to try the right to the property, as the case may be, within the period allowed by Sections LXXXII and XCVI, and his property is in consequence brought to sale, he may nevertheless institute a suit under this Act to recover damages for the illegal distress and sale of his property.

Also persons aggrieved by any illegal act of distrainer.

XCVIII. If any person empowered to distrain property, or employed for the purpose under a written authority by a person so empowered, shall distrain or sell, or cause to be sold, any property for the recovery of an arrear of rent alleged to be due otherwise than according to the provisions of this Act, or if any distrained property shall be lost, damaged, or destroyed by reason of the distrainer not having taken proper precautions for the due keeping and preservation thereof, or if the distraint shall not be immediately withdrawn when it is required to be withdrawn by any provision of this Act, the owner of the property may institute a suit under this Act to recover damages for any injury which he may have thereby sustained.

Unlawful distraint.

XCIX. If any person not empowered to distrain property under Sections LXVIII and LXX of this Act, nor employed for the purpose under a written authority by a person so empowered, shall under color of this Act, distrain or sell or cause to be sold any property, the owner of the property may institute a suit under this Act to recover damages from such person for any injury which he may have sustained from the distraint or sale. The said person shall when the act complained of does not amount to criminal trespass, be liable to fine which may extend to three hundred Rupees, or to imprisonment, simple or rigorous, which may extend to two months, or to both, in addition to any damages which may be awarded against him in such suit.

Time for commencing suits for damages.

C. Provided always that any suit which may be instituted under any of the last three Sections shall be commenced within three months from the date of the occurrence of the cause of action.

Procedure on resistance to distraint, &c.

CI. If any person shall resist a distraint of property duly made under this Act, or shall forcibly or clandestinely remove any distrained property, the Court which would have jurisdiction in a suit for the rent for which such distraint was made, shall, upon complaint being made within fifteen days from the date of such resistance or removal, cause the person accused to be arrested; and if the offence be proved, and the offender be the owner of the property, shall order him to be imprisoned in the Civil Jail for six months, or until the whole arrear due to the distrainer, with all expenses and costs, shall be paid or levied by attachment and sale of the property of the offender under warrant of the Court. If the person convicted of the offence be any other than the owner of the property, he shall make good to the distrainer the value of the same, and shall further be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred Rupees, or, in default of payment thereof, to imprisonment for a period not exceeding two months.

No appeal from any decree of the District Judge for money below 100 Rupees, unless it involve the right to enhance rent or a title to land.

CII. Nothing in this Act contained shall be deemed to confer any power of appeal in any suit tried and decided by a District Judge, originally or in appeal, if the amount sued for, or the value of the property claimed, does not exceed one hundred Rupees, in which suit a question of right to enhance or vary the rent of a ryot or tenant, or any question relating to a title to land or to some interest in land as between parties having conflicting claims thereto, has not been determined by the judgment.

Review of judgment.

CIII. No application for a review of any judgment or order passed in any suit brought under the provisions of this Act shall be received by any Court after the expiration of thirty days from the date of such order or judgment, but nothing in this Section contained shall be deemed to apply to the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

Whenever any suit or other proceeding under the provisions of the Acts in the Schedule (D) mentioned, or of any of them, shall at the time when this Act comes into operation in any place have been instituted before any Collector or other Officer having under the provisions of the same Acts or of any of them jurisdiction in such suit or proceeding, such suit or proceeding and all appeals therein shall be heard and determined, and execution of any decree or order therein shall be had, and the practice and procedure therein shall be such and the same, as if this Act had not been passed.

The mean Barometer, as likewise the Dry and Wet Bulb Thermometer means, are derived from the twenty-four hourly observations made during the day.

The Dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants.—The figures in column ten represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken at unity.—The receiver of the lower rain gauge is 1½ feet, and that of the Anemometer 70 feet 10 inches above the level of the ground.—The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's Anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.

REMARKS.

THE Ven'ble the Archdeacon has submitted several questions connected with the interpretation and working of the rules promulgated in September last, and has reported that the regulation as to fees for monuments in cemeteries presses very hardly upon soldiers. Representations have also been received from the Governments of the North-Western Provinces and Madras, and from His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, the two former suggesting a reduction in the amount of the fees prescribed for the construction of masonry graves and for the erection of monuments; and the Commander-in-Chief recommending the exemption of British soldiers from the payment of fees for ground in cemeteries when masonry graves may be constructed, in like manner as they are exempted from fees for searching registers.

2. The most important points for the consideration of the Governor General in Council seem to be the incidence of the tax on soldiers and non-commissioned officers, and the alleged excessive nature in all cases of the fees for monuments and masonry graves. As regards the first point, His Excellency in Council is pleased to accept the views of the Commander-in-Chief, and directs that soldiers and non-commissioned officers be exempted from the payment of any fee for the construction of masonry graves, or for the erection of monuments in cemeteries. With respect to the incidence of the scale of fees upon others than the two classes just mentioned, His Excellency in Council observes that it is only with the object of providing funds for maintaining the burial grounds in better order than they have hitherto been kept that the fees have been imposed and he does not desire that the fees should be heavier than is consistent with this object. It is probable that lower rates than those fixed by the former Resolution may suffice, and he is, therefore, pleased to fix the charges as in the appended revised rules.

3. The questions submitted by the Archdeacon for the orders of the Government of India refer to minor points. These, as well as certain points in the letter from the Madras Government which call for orders, will be disposed of separately.

RULES.

I.—No fees are charged for the performance of the rite of baptism or burial, or for the registration of the performance of these offices.

II.—In addition to the fee for the surrogate's license, a fee of Rupees 10 shall be charged on all marriages by license, except the marriages of officers and others in the military or naval service of Her Majesty.

III.—The fee for the surrogate's license shall be Rupees 50, both at the presidency towns and in the interior. No fee will be charged on marriages by banns.

IV.—When registers are searched and copy of any entry given, a fee of one rupee shall be charged for the first year,* and four annas for every additional year over which the search may extend; as well as a fee of one rupee for the certificate. Soldiers, sailors, and non-commissioned and petty officers are exempted from payment.

* N B—The first year shall be taken to mean any one year indicated by the applicant.

V.—A fee of eight annas for every square foot of ground occupied shall be charged for the construction of any masonry grave in a burial ground.

VI.—A further fee of one rupee per square foot shall be levied on the erection of a monument in a burial ground: provided, however, that for a simple headstone or flat slab of the size of an ordinary headstone, an uniform fee of Rupees 15 only shall be charged. A fee of Rupees 75 shall be levied on a faculty for the erection of a monument in a church.

VII.—The fees levied on the construction of masonry graves and the erection of monuments, shall form a fund for keeping the burial ground and church compound in order, except in Calcutta and Bombay, where they will be credited to Government.

VIII.—British soldiers and non-commissioned officers are exempted, with retrospective effect, from the payment of any fee for the construction of masonry graves, or for the erection of monuments in burial grounds to the memory of their comrades, wives, or children. No monument, however, either regimental or private, shall exceed six square feet, and no masonry grave shall occupy more ground than an area of eight feet by four. The simple stone slab or headstone should be generally adopted.

IX.—The chaplain may at his discretion reduce, or altogether remit, in cases of extreme poverty, the fee for searching registers and making copies, as well as the fee leviable on the construction of masonry graves, but not for the erection of monuments.

X.—The fees prescribed in these rules should be paid to the chaplain, or in the absence of the chaplain, to the officer in charge of the burial ground, and shall be duly accounted for.

Memorandum from E. C. Bayley, Esq., Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(dated Fort William, the 29th September 1869.)

Ordered, that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Government of Bengal for information, in continuation of the Resolution referred to in the first paragraph, and with reference to the communication from that Government, No. 1608, dated the 23rd April last, the views expressed in which are concurred in by the Government of India.

No. 487.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India, in the Home Department, (Ecclesiastical), under date Simla, the 29th September 1869.

Resolution.

In the 3rd paragraph of the Resolution recorded to-day on the subject of ecclesiastical fees throughout India, certain questions connected with the interpretation of the rules for the levy of such fees, submitted by the Ven'ble the Archdeacon of Calcutta, as well as certain questions referred by the Madras Government for decision, having been reserved for separate consideration, His Excellency the Governor General in Council now proceeds to consider and dispose of those questions, which are as follows. The answers are appended to each question :—

Question I.—" Whether certificates copied from returns kept in the orderly rooms would not suffice for soldiers ; or, if not, whether orderly room clerks might not be allowed to make copies out of chaplain's registers?" The difficulty does not seem of any importance, but in order to obviate it, it may be ruled that the chaplain's clerk shall make the copies of the certificates, and a fee of one anna will be charged in future to cover the expense of the stationery used in furnishing the extract, the amount being entered in the contingent bill of the staff officers of the station, instead of being levied on the soldier.

Question II.—" To whom is the monumental fee in a cemetery to be given? Is it to be disdisposed of as monumental fee in a church?" It is clear from the tenor of the rules that monumental fees in a cemetery should be paid to the chaplain, to be duly accounted for to Government and spent in the maintenance in proper order of the burial ground and tombs.

Question III.—" Is the fee for a monument, which is defined as double the amount of the fee for a masonry grave, to be understood as including the fee for the grave?" When a monument is erected over a masonry grave, the total of the two fees will, by the amended rules, be equivalent to one and a half rupees for each square foot of ground occupied.

Question IV.—" Is any fee to be levied on the construction of a masonry grave which is not built up to the level of the ground, but which is only over and round the coffin?" The Governor General in Council is of opinion that the fee leviable on a masonry grave regularly built up to the level of the ground should be charged in such cases also.

Question V.—" When the top of a masonry grave or of a grave without brick-work is flagged with a single slab of stone, either quite plain or with an inscription of name and date to prevent removal, or with only the latter, and a little carving as of a cross in relief, is the stone to be considered a monument, and charged for accordingly?" This is provided for in the amended rules.

Question VI.—" What constitutes a masonry grave, and what should be its dimensions? Is a simple headstone enclosed by four posts and a railing to be considered a monument?" Separate provision is made in the amended rules for simple headstones, which set the latter question at rest. No doubts ought to arise as to what a masonry grave is.

Question VII.—" Can a stone laid flat on a grave exceed the size of a simple headstone?" A stone laid flat, if not larger than a headstone, should be subjected to the smaller fee prescribed in rule VI. of the amended rules ; if larger, it should be regarded as a monument.

Question VIII.—" Is a tablet on the wall of the cemetery to be considered as a monument?" Such a tablet should be regarded as a monument.

Question IX. and X.—" Can an undertaker use a masonry grave before paying the fee, and to whom is the fee to be paid? If it is to be paid in advance, and to the treasury, what is to be done if a person dies after 3 P. M., or on a Sunday, or during holidays?" The fee should be paid to the chaplain ; but His Excellency in Council sees no necessity for requiring that it should be paid in advance, and there need, therefore, be no difficulty as to burials on Sundays and holidays.

Question XI.—" Can a grave or ground be purchased in anticipation?" This must be left to the discretion of the chaplain.

Question XII.—" To whom is the Government to look for the payment of a ground or monumental fee?—the undertaker, or the individual ordering the grave or monument?" The undertaker is responsible for the payment of the prescribed fee for a masonry grave or a monument, but where there is no undertaker, the individual ordering a grave or a monument should be held responsible for it.

Question XIII.—" Do the same rules apply to Dissenters and Roman Catholics?" As all graves, whether of Roman Catholics, Dissenters, or members of the Established Church, require an equal amount of care for their maintenance, they should all be subject to the same rules in regard to fees.

Question XIV.—" Is any discretion to be allowed to the chaplain in charging the fee?" His Excellency in Council will not object to vest the chaplain or other officer in charge of the burial ground with the power of reducing or remitting altogether to persons of known poverty the fee for searching registers and making copies, as well as the fee leviable on masonry graves. But the fee for monuments is not to be reduced or remitted on such grounds. This is provided for in the amended rules.

2. The Archdeacon has also submitted three other cases for the orders of the Government of India. One relates to the refusal of a military officer to pay the prescribed fee on a monument on the ground that it had been ordered previous to the promulgation of the rules in September. The Archdeacon may, in this case, properly grant exemption.

3. The second reference is from the chaplain of Umritsur, submitting for orders a case in which the commanding officer of the station has refused to pay the prescribed fee on a monument erected by the comrades of a deceased private, stating as his reason that he could not think that it was intended to apply the new rules to British soldiers. This case will be met by the general exemptions sanctioned in behalf of soldiers.

4. The last case is that of serjeant-major Stebbings, of the 11th Hussars, Muttra, praying for the refund of the money paid by him as "ground fees" for his wife's monument. This case will also be met by the general exemption referred to in the preceding paragraph.

5. As regards the reference from the Madras Government, His Excellency the Governor General in Council observes that the following points in it seem to call for orders. The question of the grant of compensation to presidency chaplains for the loss entailed on them by the new ecclesiastical-fee rules, is at present under consideration, and the decision of the Government of India will be communicated to the Madras Government as soon as the case is finally disposed of.

6. The Revd. D. G. Clark, chaplain of Chudderghat and Bolaram, states that the abolition of the fees for burials will entail a serious loss on him, "for whenever he is called from Bolaram to Chudderghat (a distance of 10 miles) to bury people, he get will no compensation whatever for the expense of the journey." His Excellency in Council, however, observes that, under the existing rules, travelling allowance would seem to be claimable which would suffice to meet the case put.

7. The Revd. Mr. Cooper, chaplain of St. John's Chuch at Bangalore, remarks that "rule III. does not state what portion of the fee for a marriage license is to be paid to the registrar of the diocese." The distribution of the fees for marriage licenses between the registrar of the diocese and the chaplain concerned, is a matter for the decision of the bishop of the diocese.

8. As regards the remarks made by the Revd. Mr. Tanner, in respect of the abolition of the burial fees hitherto payable to the clerks and sextons, His Excellency in Council observes that it was specially intended to abolish these varying and vexatious fees.

9. The Revd. Mr. Raban, chaplain of Secunderabad, enquires whether the fee of Rupees 10 in rule II. abrogated the fee of Rupees 5 paid to the clerk under the former regulations. No such fee will now be paid to clerks under the new rules.

10. With reference to paragraph 59 of the letter from the Ven'ble the Archdeacon of Madras, requesting that the rule prohibiting a fee for baptism or registration of baptism, should be omitted, as it implies that such a fee has hitherto been allowed, His Excellency in Council observes that the wording of the rule has been amended in order to meet this objection. As the rule now stands, it is simply declaratory.

11. As regards paragraph 65 of the Archdeacon's letter about the interpretation of the word "search," His Excellency in Council thinks that "search" must be interpreted to mean even simply opening the book and verifying the assertion of the person asking for a search, and that even if an applicant specifies the exact date of the entry of which he wants a copy, the fee prescribed for searching the register will have to be paid by him.

The following are the Conditions of Sale:—

1. The Opium will be sold for exportation by sea only, and no Certificate will be granted except to cover such export.

2. The Opium will be ordinarily offered for sale at an upset price of Rupees 800 per chest, and sold to the highest bidder above that price, except under the circumstances for which provision is made by Clause 12th of these Conditions of Sale.

3. The sale shall commence at the hour of 11 a. m. of the day fixed by previous notification, and shall not be continued after the hour of 5 p. m.; but if at that hour any of the lots advertised for sale shall remain unsold, the sale may, at the discretion of the Board of Revenue, be resumed on the next day following (not being Sunday or a public holiday) at the hour of 11 a. m., and so on until the whole of the remaining lots are disposed of, or, if the whole quantity advertised, shall not be sold on the day appointed, the Board may dispose of the lots which remain on hand at a future sale.

4. Each lot shall contain five chests.

5. A Promissory Note for a sum calculated according to the scale noted in the margin shall be taken as a deposit on each lot from the purchaser in the sale-room, and before the lot is registered in the sale book, and all such Promissory Notes shall be redeemed on the part of the purchasers at this Office by Bank of Bengal receipts, or by substitution of other public securities of the Bengal Government, on or before 4 o'clock in the afternoon of the fifth day after the sale, or on the other hand, failing such redemption by the time aforesaid then the lot or lots for which no Bank of Bengal receipts, or deposit of other public securities as aforesaid shall have been delivered in, shall be re-sold at such time or times and under such conditions of re-sale as the Board of Revenue shall see fit, and all losses and expenses whatsoever attending such re-sale shall be borne and paid by the defaulters, whilst any profit accruing from such re-sale shall be forfeited to Government.

Deposit.

When the amount bid is less than Rs. 1,200 per chest, Rs. 200 per. chest.

On bids of Rs. 1,200 and upwards, but less than Rs. 1,600 per chest, Rs. 300 per chest.

On bids of Rs. 1,600 and upwards, but less than Rs. 2,000 per chest, Rs. 400 per chest.

And so on, Rs. 100 being added to the deposit for every bid additional to the extent of Rs. 400.

6. The Promissory Notes taken on the day of sale under the last mentioned condition, if remaining unredeemed at 4 o'clock of the fifth day following the day of sale, will be placed in the hands of the Solicitor to the Government for realization in such manner as to him shall seem fit.

7. No tender of money, Bank of Bengal receipts, or public securities, on account of Opium, upon which the prescribed deposit may not have been made before 4 o'clock of the fifth day following the day of sale, will be afterwards accepted.

8. The Opium advertised for sale shall be paid for within fifteen clear days from the day of sale, and in case any lots of such Opium shall not be so paid for and adjusted, then the cash deposit made under the fifth condition, or any public securities that may have been deposited on account of such lots or chests shall be forfeited, and the Opium shall be disposed of on account of Government at such time and in such manner as the Board of Revenue shall think fit, and the first purchaser shall further be required to make good any loss or difference of price between that obtained at the re-sale and the amount at which the Opium was first purchased, forfeiting all advantages that may arise from such re-sale.

9. Purchasers taking out Certificates or Orders for the delivery of Opium, after making full payment as above prescribed, shall have the option of naming the number of lots of their purchase, which they may desire to be included in each Certificate or Order, and it is to be clearly understood that the Certificates or Orders so taken out shall be considered final, and not afterwards changeable for other Certificates or Orders authorising the delivery of single lots, or of a different number of lots or chests, whether more or less than the number of lots or chests originally required to be included in each Certificate or Order.

10. No deposit of public securities under the fifth of the present Conditions will be received in this Office, except from the party recorded as the purchaser in the sale book, or his authorised Agent. The receipt for deposit of public securities will be granted only in the name of such purchaser, and the securities so deposited will be returned when payment in full has been made by the said purchaser or his order.

11. The Officer superintending the sale on the part of the Board of Revenue is empowered to reject, at his discretion, the bid of any individual, unless such individual shall, on demand, tender at the time a deposit either in Government of India Notes, Bank of Bengal receipts, or Government securities, a sum equal to the amount for which a Promissory Note would otherwise be taken under the fifth of these Conditions.

12. With a view to prevent fictitious biddings designed to obstruct the sale, it is hereby notified that the Officer of Government superintending the sale shall be competent, at any time during the sale, to withdraw any unsold lot, and immediately to put it up again for sale at a maximum upset price diminishing the same gradually until a bid is obtained, and the first bonâ fide bidder for a lot after it has been offered for sale in the mode here described shall be held and declared to be the purchaser of the said lot, and the Officer of Government superintending the sale shall also be competent to dispose, in the same manner, of as many of the subsequent lots as he may think proper, provided always that no lot shall be sold below the minimum price of 800 Rupees specified in the second of these Conditions.

13. The purchaser of any lot shall have the option of naming and purchasing in immediate succession, at the same price and under the same conditions, any number of lots of the same Agency Opium not exceeding altogether twenty-five lots, provided always that there remain a sufficient number of lots of the Opium to complete the said twenty-five.

14. In the event of any dispute or difference touching or concerning any matter or question arising out of the sale of the Opium included in this Notification, or adjustment of the account thereof, the same shall and may be tried and decided in the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

15. The following papers will be exhibited for inspection on the day of sale, or may be seen previously to that date by application at the Office of the Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue:—No. 1, Certificate of the Opium advertised for sale. No. 2, Report of the examination of such Opium.

16. The public are hereby informed that in providing the investment of the Behar and Benares Opium for the year 1868-69, the same precautions have been taken as those which have been observed during past years, to have the drug procured and sent down in a pure state, to have only the prescribed quantity of leaves used in forming the cakes, and to have the due proportion of Opium put into each cake. An account of the weight of the drug when packed at Behar and Benares, and a statement of the average weight of the chests, indiscriminately taken for the purpose of comparison from the despatches on arrival at Calcutta, may be seen on application at the Office of the Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue.

17. Any further information respecting weight or quality of the Opium advertised for sale that may be desired by parties connected with the trade, will, as heretofore, be furnished to them on application at the Office of the Board of Revenue. But, in accordance with established usage, under no circumstances will the Board entertain or recognise any claim to compensation for loss from any alleged deficiency of weight, abstraction of Opium or adulteration of the drug, which may be preferred on reference to chests, after the sale and delivery of the Opium for shipment.

18. It is hereby further notified that, under the 6th Article of the Convention between Great Britain and France, dated the 7th March 1815, quoted below, the Agents of India in the French Government, or persons duly appointed by them, are entitled to demand, that out of the quantities of Behar and Benares Opium declared as above for sale at the twelve sales of the year 1870, there shall be delivered to them, at the average of the particular sale or sales to which the Opium so applied for may belong, a quantity not exceeding in the aggregate 300 chests, and the Agents of the French Government must make requisition specifying the quantity of Opium required by them at any particular sale, within thirty days from the advertisement of such intended sale, provided, however, that the Agents of the French Government may make such requisition for the whole quantity within thirty days from the publication of this notification. If the Agents of the French Government shall not make the requisition for Opium within the time above mentioned, the entire quantity of about 48,000 chests of Behar and Benares as above estimated, will be brought to sale in the usual manner, and if they shall make application for a quantity of Opium to be delivered to them out of the quantity advertised for sale at each or any of the twelve sales abovementioned, but shall not pay for it within the prescribed period of payment, the Government of Bengal reserves to itself the right of disposing of the Opium which the French Authorities may so fail to pay for, either by increasing the quantity reserved at the sale next ensuing the date of payment, or by selling it at a sale to be held expressly for the purpose.

Article of the Convention above referred to:—

Article VI.—"With regard to the trade in Opium, it is agreed between the high contracting parties that at each of the periodical sales of that article, there shall be reserved for the French Government, and delivered upon requisition duly made by the Agents of His Most Christian Majesty, or by the persons duly appointed by them, the number of chests so applied for, provided that such supply shall not exceed three hundred chests in each year, and the price for the same shall be determined by the average rate at which Opium shall have been sold at every such periodical sale, it being understood that, if the quantity of Opium applied for at any one time shall not be taken on account of the French Government by the Agents of His Most Christian Majesty, within the usual period of delivery, the quantity so applied for shall nevertheless be considered as so much in reduction of the three hundred chests hereinbefore mentioned. "The requisitions for Opium as aforesaid are to be addressed to the Governor General at Calcutta within thirty days after notice of the intended sales shall have been published in the Government Gazette."

Plan of conservancy by carbonization by Mr. W. R. Gilbert Hickey.

Memorandum from COLONEL J. C. HAUGHTON, C. S. I., Commissioner of the Cooch Behar Division,—(No. 184, dated Julpigoree, the 3rd February 1869.)

FORWARDED in original to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, with reference to his No. 71, dated 6th January 1869. The undersigned would note that Mr. Hickey's proposal appears to him likely to be freer from objection than the plan in use at Simla. This plan has been followed in many large towns of Central Asia for centuries; all matters capable of combustion being utilized for heating and public baths, but any one who has resided in the neighbourhood of one of these can testify to the highly offensive qualities of the smoke from them.

From MAJOR B. W. D. MORTON, Deputy Commissioner, Darjeeling, and Ex-officio Chairman, Darjeeling Municipality, to the Commissioner of the Cooch Behar Division,—(No. 154, dated Camp Teesta Bridge, the 19th January 1869.)

I HAVE the honor to acknowledge receipt of your endorsement No. 67, dated the 18th instant, accompanying copy of Government letter No. 71, dated the 6th idem, to your address, calling for a report of the result of the experimental introduction of the dry-earth system of conservancy at this station and to state—

2. I laid the correspondence you had forwarded to me, in regard to the Simla conservancy, before the Commissioners at their Extraordinary Meeting held on Saturday, the 9th instant.

The Commissioners in acknowledging the trouble which Government had taken in procuring for them the information from Simla were led to re-consider their former proposal to introduce the dry-earth system in Darjeeling. This proposal, as you are aware, had led to a good deal of discussion. Before the receipt of the Government correspondence, Mr. Hickey, Civil Engineer, now at Darjeeling, had proposed a plan for disposal of station refuse by carbonization. The advantages of his plan, Mr. Hickey pointed out, lay in the destruction of all the offensive properties of the refuse, and thus obtaining a residuum highly valuable as a manure.

3. In the Government corespondence the Sanitary Commissioner stated that whilst the destruction, by fire, of refuse matter, was a plan suited to the requirements of Simla, he was not generally in favor of it; one of the Commissioners present at the Extraordinary Meeting supported this statement by a relation of his own experience at Hazareebaugh. He stated that the burning of refuse was carried out there, and proved a very offensive process.

4. Mr. Hickey's plan appears to be an improvement on that adopted at Simla, and the Commissioners, with the sanction of Government, would like to make an experiment under Mr. Hickey's supervision. Mr. Hickey asks for Rupees 400 to enable him to erect the necessary apparatus in the vicinity of the bazar.

5. I annex an extract from Municipal Proceedings, and have the honor to state that in giving effect to the wishes of the Commissioners no money will have been lost, as the expenditure, up to date, on account of latrines and the purchase of ponies, carts, harness, &c., must have been incurred under any circumstances.

6. I have requested Mr. Hickey kindly to annex a statement of his proposed system for the information of Government.

Extract from Proceedings of the Municipal Commissioners at their Meeting held on 9th January 1869.

Read the correspondence on the subject of conservancy received from Government—also a proposition from Mr. Hickey.

Resolved, that the expenses for extraordinary conservancy, in connection with the dry-earth system, be, for the present, limited to what has been already incurred, and to the cost of latrines in the bazar; and that in place of this proposed dry-earth experiment an experiment of conservancy by carbonization be attempted on Mr. Hickey's plan, and that to this effect Government be moved to sanction an advance of Rupees 400 to that gentleman, to be met from the sanction of Rupees 4,000 for extraordinary conservancy.

Further, that, in event of the experiment proving a success, a sum be estimated for such further extension of the system during the next financial year as may appear adviseable.

(Sd.) B. W. D. MORTON,
Deputy Commissioner and Ex-officio Chairman,
Darjeeling Municipality.

MEMORANDUM.

Sketch of the method by which I propose to deodorize and utilize the filth of Darjeeling.

1. In the immediate vicinity of the public latrine in the bazar, I propose erecting a furnace with a cluster of four or more retorts, laid at an angle of 45° or 55° round the fire-place, so that one fire will heat them all.

2. These retorts will have a luted cover at top for filling, and an opening at bottom for emptying,—pipes will lead from them to a vessel of water which will be used as a condenser.

3. From the condenser I propose, in the first instance, to let the gas pass off up the chimney to waste, but later, when my experiments are perfected, I shall use the gas for heating the furnace itself, or for illuminating purposes, or perhaps for both.

4. The refuse in the retort from the process of carbonization will be charcoal with phosphates, sulphates, and carbonates of potash, soda, lime, magnesium and iron. The products of distillation will be a highly concentrated solution of ammonia.

5. His Excellency the Viceroy, the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, and other authorities have seen the experiment tried at the Alipore Jail. Drs. Mouat and Fawcus report that it is a perfect success; the latter adds, that the excrement of about 100 men can be converted, by a maund of coal, into 250 cubic feet of gas.

6. I propose bringing this little apparatus to Darjeeling, and placing it near Chevernout, the house I have taken. The garbage and stable refuse will give a highly illuminating gas.

7. Dr. Fawcas says, "I do not think it would be advisable to use the gas for heating, for it will certainly be more profitable to employ it for illuminating." I am prepared, therefore, to extend operations, on receiving an order to do so, to lighting the Darjeeling bazar.

8. The same gentleman says, "what remains in the retort will certainly be very valuable." I would ask for a grant of land within a short distance from Darjeeling to utilize the manure.

9. I shall later propose to erect an apparatus near every group of houses for mehters to deposit the filth instead of, as at present, throwing it down the khuds. The terms on which I will dispose of all the filth will be a matter for future consideration and discussion.

10. I imagine the poudrette will be worth about two Rupees per maund for manure.

11. I have already written to the Government of India asking authority to try the system on a large scale in some cantonment. Any further information I will give that may be asked for. I may mention, in conclusion, that I have petitioned for leave to file a specification of the invention.

Civil Engineer.

From A. MACKENZIE, ESQ., Officiating Junior Secretary to the Government of Bengal, to the Officiating Commissioner of the Cooch Behar Division,—(No. 1945, dated Fort William, the 22nd March 1869.)

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your memorandum No. 184, dated the 3rd ultimo, with its enclosures, and in reply to inform you that, under the circumstances represented, and on the understanding that the charge can be met from the sum of Rupees 4,200 authorised in Government Order No. 6622, dated 9th December last, for the introduction of a system of dry-earth conservancy at Darjeeling, the Lieutenant-Governor is pleased to sanction the expenditure of Rupees (400) four hundred for the purpose of giving a fair trial, at that station, to Mr. Gilbert Hickey's plan of conservancy by carbonization, and I am to request that a report of the result of the experiment may be submitted to Government.

2. His Honor desires me to add that the apparatus should not be erected near the bazar as proposed, as the gases which the process would evolve may prove injurious to health.

Memorandum from J. GEOGHEGAN, ESQ., Under-Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department,—(No. 55, dated Fort William, the 9th February 1869.)

FORWARDED to the Government of Bengal for report, as to what experiments have been tried at the Alipore Jail, and with what result.

From W. R. GILBERT HICKEY, ESQ. C. E., to the Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department,—(dated Darjeeling, the 25th January 1869.)

AN experiment of my process for deodorizing and utilizing the refuse and filth of large towns and cantonments has been tried at Alipore Jail, and from the letters I have received, I am justified in saying that it has proved successful. I have also tried an experiment up here with a like result. My method is simply this, a number of retorts, at an angle of 40° to 50°, are placed in a furnace, the fire being in the centre and heating all simultaneously. These retorts are similar to those used for making gas, but are much lighter, as they need not be subjected to so great a heat. They have a luted opening at top for filling and one at bottom for emptying. A pipe leads from each retort to a vessel of water, where the vapours are arrested and the gases pass through. These can be either carried to waste up the chimney of the furnace, or be brought by a pipe round to the fire, where it will act as a blast and also supply a gas for heating, so that the apparatus will be to a great extent self-maintaining. A retort might be placed in a central position, and chiefly used for burning garbage. The gas evolved from it may be purified and collected in a holder for lighting the latrine and its approaches. The residue left in the retorts will be a perfectly innoxious, highly concentrated manure in the form of a blade poudrette. The condenser will contain a highly charged ammoniacal liquid manure. These two products of carbonization and distillation will be highly valuable. I have the honor to request, Sir, that you will kindly submit this my petition to Government to authorize an experiment on a large scale in some cantonment or city.

No. 1110.

FORWARDED to Inspector-General of Jails for report. The original papers to be returned.

From F. J. MOUAT, ESQ., M. D., Inspector-General of Jails, Lower Provinces, to the Officiating Junior Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 1636, dated Alipore, the 8th March 1869.)

IN reply to your endorsement No. 1110, dated the 15th ultimo, covering original correspondence from the Government of India, herewith returned, regarding an experiment on the deodorization and utilization of sewage and garbage conducted at Alipore, according to a proposal of Mr. W. R. Gilbert Hickey, I have the honor to transmit the subjoined note drawn up by Dr. Fawcus, by whom the experiments were made.

" On several occasions experiments with Mr. Hickey's apparatus were made at the Alipore Jail, and the following results were obtained :—

" The dejecta (solid) of 100 men were converted into gas with an expenditure of one maund or 8 annas worth of coal.

" The gas burnt in a full jet for about four hours, and the jet was considered by spectators to be equivalent in size and illuminating power to about six ordinary street lamp jets. As the amount of gas consumed per hour in an ordinary street lamp is 6 cubic feet, I calculate that about 144 cubic feet or 13 annas worth of gas was produced. The retort at the conclusion of the experiment contained about 2lbs of charcoal and the mineral ingredients of fœces, viz., potash, soda, lime, magnesia, common salt, and iron. This compound is an excellent deodorizer, and I have no doubt might be profitably disposed of. The condenser contained an ammoniacal liquor of no ascertained value at present in India. The apparatus used at Alipore was not constructed so as fully to economise fuel. With such an apparatus as Mr. Hickey describes, it is probable that six times as much gas might be generated with the same expenditure of coal."

2. The healthy and profitable disposal of excrementitious and refuse matters is a question of the deepest interest in India, where, from climatic causes, all sound and wholesome systems of sewerage must be on the dry principle. To bring water and organic matters into contact will always be attended with rapid putrefaction, however great may be the dilution employed. To the putrefaction of excrementitious substances is supposed to be due the production of some of the endemic and epidemic diseases which are the greatest scourges of the age in which we live. To this cause the greatest living authorities at the present time mainly attribute the production of cholera, typhoid fevers, some of the worst forms of diarrhœa and dysentery, and similar disorders.

3. Hence the experiment of Mr. Hickey seems to me to be well deserving of trial on such a scale as to test absolutely its sanitary and economic advantages and value. Should it succeed, as the Alipore experiments afford reasonable hope of, it will prove one of the most valuable solutions of an economic problem of great difficulty and of greater importance.

From A. MACKENZIE, ESQ., Officiating Junior Secretary to the Government of Bengal, to the Under-Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department,—(No. 1946, dated Fort William, the 22nd March 1869.)

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your endorsement No. 55, dated the 9th ultimo, with its annexure, and in reply to submit, for the information of the Government of India, the accompanying copy of a communication* from the Inspector-General of Jails, Lower Provinces, reporting the result of the experiment for the disposal and utilization of night-soil, conducted at the Alipore Jail, according to Mr. Gilbert Hickey's plan of carbonization.

2. I am, at the same time desired to add that on a pressing representation from the Municipality of Darjeeling, the Lieutenant-Governor has sanctioned the expenditure of Rupees 400, for the purpose of giving a fair trial to the same plan at that station. The result of the experiment will be duly reported for the information of the Governor General in Council.

From A. Mackenzie, Esq., Officiating Junior Secretary to the Government of Bengal, to the Inspector-General of Jails, Lower Provinces,—(No. 1947, dated Fort William, the 22nd March 1869.)

With reference to your letter No. 1636, dated the 8th ultimo, reporting regarding an experiment tried in the Alipore Jail, for the disposal and utilization of night soil, according to Mr. Gilbert Hickey's plan of carbonization, I am directed to request that you will be good enough to report whether you can suggest arrangements for a trial of Mr. Hickey's experiment on a larger scale, and if so, at what outlay.

From F. J. Mouat, Esq., m. d., Inspector-General of Jails, Lower Provinces, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Judicial Department,—(No. 499T., dated Darjeeling, the 2nd June 1869.)

In compliance with the directions contained in your letter No. 2740, dated 20th April last, I have the honor to forward the accompanying plans and estimates of the cost of trying Mr. Hickey's carbonizing process on any scale that may be desired. The papers have been prepared by Mr. Hickey and Messrs. Burn and Co., as the details of the proceeding are purely professional and technical and as such beyond my province.

As Mr. Hickey intends to patent his process, his plans are not for publication.

The best place in which to submit the proceeding to a thorough practical test would be a Railway Station, such as that of Jamalpore, where the material to be operated on exists in abundance, and where there is practical engineering skill available at all times to watch and control the proceeding.

All new processes are liable to minor defects in the first working, which do not affect the principle of the process, but materially influence its successful working, hence the above recommendation.

Memoranda on the carbonizing or dry distilling system of getting rid of night-soil and other filth utilizing the gas and products left in the retorts, condensers and purifiers, with a short description of the apparatus.

Objects.

1. The principal objects to be attained in a system of conservancy are—

1st.—To render filth innoxious as quickly as possible.

2nd.—To do so as perfectly as possible.

3rd.—To obviate the return of filth to its normal state at any future time.

4th.—To perform these operations with the greatest economy.

General description.

2. The following is a general description of the system proposed in this paper. The filth, (ordure, stable, and kitchen refuse) is conveyed to carbonizing retorts placed in convenient positions. It is there carbonized, the gas being purified and collected for burning or heating purposes. The refuse in the retorts can be used as deodorizers, and eventually, when it has accumulated in larger quantities than are necessary for that purpose, it can be used as manure.

First operation.

3. The first operation is then to convey the filth to the apparatus, and it is evidently necessary that it should be conveyed in such a manner as will prevent its being a nuisance in transit. For this purpose it is proposed to use a slop pail, which will not only answer this purpose, but get rid of a large quantity of fluid, and thus render the dessicating process more rapid, and consequently more economical, for gas will be evolved in a much shorter time.

Slop pail.

4. The slop pail may be of any convenient shape and material,—probably a frustrum of a cone will be the most convenient shape. The top must have an air-tight cover, which may be attained by a water lute, for, as will be seen hereafter, the cover need not be carried to the apparatus. The first thing to be done is, to place a layer of poudrette residua from the retorts at the bottom of the pail say 2" or 3" thick. It is then filled to within a few inches of the top, when a layer of charcoal 3" thick is placed over it to prevent any escape of gas during transit, or the cover may be made with a clay lute and screw for closing effectually.

Arrival at apparatus.

5. The slop pail having now been brought to the apparatus, it is emptied into a retort, either from the top by tilting it over, or the bottom being made to open, it is placed on the retort and the filth forced through. It must be cleaned by a wisp of straw or grass which is thrown into the retort with the filth. Some poudrette may be used in this operation.

Disposition of retorts; plate I.

6. The escape of noxious gases would be very much increased if the filth were thrown into an incandescent retort. The best dispositon of retorts will then be in two groups, one of which will be carbonizing and the other in process of filling. Another precaution is necessary, viz., not to commence charging any retort until sufficient is collected to fill it, when it should at once be closed.

Description of retorts; plates 2 and 3.

7. The retorts are cylindrical. They are placed at an angle of about 45°; they have a luted opening at top for filling and one at bottom for emptying. The top one is arranged to be as large as possible, indeed the full size of the retort.

Hydraulic mains and condensers.

8. The hydraulic mains and condensers are combined and are placed about midway between the furnace and purifier.

Dry lime purifiers; plate 4.

9. The dry lime purifiers are double, so that one portion can be in use while the other is cleaning and re-filling. The shelves are fixed permanently. All the cleaning out and changing of lime to be done by removing the front doors, which will be held in their places by sheds.

Gas-holder; plate 5.

10. The gas-holder shewn in the drawing is the ordinary one. A new one applicable for places where iron is very dear will shortly be submitted.

General remarks.

11. The next subject for consideration is, how far the objects mentioned in the first paragraph are obtained by this system.

1st.—The filth is at once rendered innoxious, even on its journey to the apparatus, by means of the deodorizer (poudrette.)

2nd.—Ample testimony can be produced as to the perfection of the deodorization.

3rd—The filth has undergone a thorough chemical change, and cannot regain its objectionable form.

4th.—It is evident that the most economical scheme is the one that is most re-productive. This one gives a gas for illuminating purposes and also a valuable manure.

The gas.

12. The gas is highly luminous, burns without the slightest smell: if not required for lighting purposes, it may be used to aid in heating the retorts, thus rendering the operation partially self-maintaining.

The manure.

13. Dr. Fawcus writes: "What remains in the retort will certainly be very valuable, for it consists of charcoal with phosphates, carbonates, and sulphates of potash, soda, lime, magnesia, iron, &c." These are the mineral or earthy materials of plant food. The dry lime purifier will yield carbonic acid and the condenser ammonia and water. These three are the organic materials of plant food (see note, article manure, page 829, Watt's Dictionary of chemistry, written by Benjamin H. Paul, Ph. Dr. F. C. S., Consulting Chemist.)

From A. MACKENZIE, ESQ., Officiating Junior Secretary to the Government of Bengal, to the Officiating Chemical Examiner to Government,—(No. 4384, dated Fort William, the 6th July 1869.)

Judicial A. March 1869, Nos. 149-53.

Letter from the Inspector-General of Jails, Lower Provinces, No. 499T., dated 2nd ultimo, with enclosure and 5 plans.

The return of the original papers is requested.

I AM directed by the Lieutenant-Governor to forward to you the accompanying copy of a correspondence on the subject of Mr. Hickey's process for deodorizing and utilizing refuse and filth, and to request that you will be good enough to conduct an experiment on a very small scale, with a view to making an analysis of the gas, in order to ascertain with some approximation to truth whether it is likely that it can be used to advantage.

2. I am at the same time to request that it may be determined by experiment what proportionate saving in fuel may be effected by using the gas and the residue as fuel.

From D. B. SMITH, ESQ., M. D., Sanitary Commissioner for Bengal, to A. MACKENZIE, ESQ., Officiating Junior Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(dated Darjeeling, the 23rd July 1869.)

1. Letter from W. R. Gilbert Hickey, ESQ., C. E., to the Sanitary Commissioner, (dated 10th July 1869.)

2. Letter dated 12th July, from the Sanitary Commissioner, to Major B. W. D. Morton, Deputy Commissioner of Darjeeling.

3. Copy of a Resolution passed by the Municipality of Darjeeling, at a Special Meeting, on Monday, 19th July 1869.

I HAVE the honor herewith to submit, for the consideration of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, certain documents, noted marginally, regarding Mr. Gilbert Hickey's process of destroying waste matter by the action of furnace heat.

2. I believe the Government has already some knowledge of Mr. Hickey's scheme, so that I refrain at present from entering into the subject.

3. Mr. Hickey, as will be observed from his letter of the 10th July, was anxious to obtain Rupees 3,000 for the further prosecution of his experiments.

4. I made reference to Major Morton, the Chairman of the Darjeeling Municipality, with the view of learning to what degree local funds might be available.

5. A special meeting of the Municipality was convened to take the matter into consideration, and a sum of Rupees 7,000 was voted for the careful completion of Mr. Hickey's operations for carriage of the necessary apparatus from Calcutta, and for the additional cost of conservancy arrangements connected with the working of Mr. Hickey's apparatus.

6. It remains to be proved, by actual experiment, to what degree and with what success Mr. Hickey's anticipations can be realized, and how far his process can be hereafter rendered self-supporting.

7. In the interests of Sanitary Science and for the settlement of certain important questions connected with the Indian conservancy, I shall be glad if His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor should see fit to sanction the expenditure proposed by the Municipal Committee of Darjeeling.

From W. R. G. HICKEY, ESQ., C. E., to D. B. SMITH, ESQ., M. D., Sanitary Commissioner of Bengal,—(dated Darjeeling, the 10th July 1869.)

HAVING now seen a crude experiment of my process for the destructive distillation of filth and the gas from human ordure alone, I trust you will be inclined to recommend the Government of Bengal to make me a grant of three thousand rupees to make an apparatus on a more extended scale and on improved principles.

The first object will be to utilize the gas, either to heat the blast for the furnace, or to project a spray of gas through the furnace. In either case stable refuse might be used as fuel, and the smoke consumed. Again, a furnace fuel may be made from the poudrette mixed with the tarry residue of distillation.

The waste heat from the condensing pipes may be used to heat the furnace blast.

I would wish also to make good arrangements for the collection of the products of distillation.

Messrs. Burn & Co., of Calcutta and Howrah, require an advance of one-half the cost of the apparatus before commencing, the balance on completion. These are their usual terms.

From D. B. SMITH, ESQ., M. D., Sanitary Commissioner for Bengal, to MAJOR B. W. D. MORTON, Deputy Commissioner of Darjeeling,—(dated Darjeeling, the 12th July 1869.)

I HAVE the honor to request you to peruse the enclosed letter from Mr. Gilbert Hickey, C. E.

2. You and I together saw Mr. Hickey's process, in partial operation, a few days ago.

3. Human ordure was reduced by furnace heat, to a coke-like substance, and gas was evolved, which, after passing through water, burned with a clear bright flame.

4. Mr. Hickey is sanguine that he will be able to push his experiments to still more useful results. These are indicated in the enclosed letter.

5. In a sanitary point of view, it seems very important that the following questions should be set at rest:—

(a.) Can ordure and waste matter be economically consumed by heat?

(b. Can useful illuminating gas be so produced?

(c.) Can its purfication be effected economically?

(d.) Can the gas be turned to account for heating purposes, i. e., to supply sufficient heat to consume further ordure, and to evolve more gas?

(e.) Can the poudrette be advantageously employed as a deodorant, and can it be turned to account as fuel? These are questions of broad and general interest.

6. Mr. Hickey's experiments, so far as they have gone, have been carried out at the expense of the Darjeeling Municipality.

7. It is clearly of direct importance to this place that such experiments should be pursued to really useful practical ends.

8. Before forwarding to Government Mr. Hickey's communication, I beg to address you on the subject, with a view to being informed if the Darjeeling Municipality will sanction a further grant of money for the carrying out of the extended experiments now proposed by Mr. Hickey; and if so, what sum could be rendered available.

9. The Municipality has already entered into this subject in a most praiseworthy spirit, and I trust that it may see fit still further to furnish facilities for the completion of Mr. Hickey's operations.

10. Should the success anticipated by Mr. Hickey attend the experiments, great credit will attach to the public body under whose auspices such a desirable end has been attained.

11. On the other hand, even although the results should not prove fully equal to what is desired, yet a large apparatus would remain in the possession of the Municipality by means of which sweepings and waste matter could most conveniently be consumed. Of such refuse there is at present in Darjeeling a vast deal which remains unconsumed, and which is liable to be a source of disease.

12. The Municipality of this place being in a more favorable financial condition than many others in Bengal, I am the more induced to refer this matter to you.

13. I may mention, as a matter of precedent, that a short time ago the Municipality of Hooghly and Chinsurah allotted Rupees 5,000 to Dr. Thompson, the Civil Surgeon of the Station, for the purpose of enabling him to construct a particular kind of latrine which he had devised and by which it is hoped the conservancy of the place will be materially improved.

14. I shall feel much obliged by your being good enough to lay before the Municipality of Darjeeling the question of sanctioning a further grant of public money to Mr. Hickey for the completion of his experiments.

RESOLUTION.

Proposed by Major Morton, that a copy of the Sub-Committee's Report be submitted to Government, and that the sanction of Government be solicited for the setting apart from the Improvement Fund of a sum of Rupees 7,000, as per details given in the margin, for the further testing of Mr. Hickey's scheme as proposed by Dr Smith in his letter to the Deputy Commissioner of Darjeeling, dated the 12th instant, and for the particular introduction of the conservancy measures proposed by the Sub-Committee.

Proposed further, that in addressing Government it may be explained that the Commissioners are desirous that when the preliminaries of the proposed experiment are completed, they may be placed in communication with a Chemical Analyst as also with a Gas Engineer or other expert, whose services may be available; either or both of whom might in due course be deputed by Government to Darjeeling to report upon the points raised by Dr. Smith in his letter to the Deputy Commissioner, and on any other question which, in the working of the experiment, may demand solution.

Cost of carriage to Darjeeling and constructing of furnaces and incidental expenses	2,000
Additional cost of conservancy as per Sub-Committee's Report submitted, commencing with the first working of the new apparatus	2,000

From COLONEL J. C. HAUGHTON, C. S. I., Commissioner of the Cooch Behar Division, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 2217, dated Julpigoree, the 31st July 1869.)

IN reply to your letter No. 4743, dated 29th instant, I have the honor to forward a report on the trial of Mr. Hickey's plan for carbonizing and utilizing refuse, made at Darjeeling, which reached me this day. I recommend for favorable consideration Major Morton's proposal for further experiment.

From MAJOR B. W. D. MORTON, Deputy Commissioner of Darjeeling, to the Commissioner of Cooch Behar, Julpigoree,—(No. 271, dated Darjeeling, the 4th July 1869.)

I HAVE the honor to forward the report called for by Government in their letter No. 1945, dated 22nd March 1869, to your address, on the subject of the conservancy scheme proposed by Mr. Hickey.

2. The report has been signed by a Sub-Committee of the Municipal Commissioners of Darjeeling, composed of the following members, viz:—

Major Morton, Deputy Commissioner
W. Loyd, Esq., Vice-Chairman.
W. Oakley, Esq., Municipal Commissioner, late Secretary to the Darjeeling Municipality.
Dr. Mathew, Civil Surgeon.

The report speaks for itself, and it is needless in this letter to recapitulate the facts elicited, and the conclusions arrived at by the Sub-Committee.

3. Eight out of the twelve Municipal Commissioners of Darjeeling assembled on Monday, the 19th July, to receive the report of their Sub-Committee.

The report was favorably considered, but with reference to letters (vide annexures) received by the Deputy Commissioner from the Sanitary Commissioner of Bengal, and Mr. Muller, Senior, of Colinton, Darjeeling, the Commissioners held that the time had not yet arrived for the absolute introduction of Mr. Hickey's scheme.

They agreed with the gentlemen named that further experiments were required. The resolutions adopted by the meeting will be found in the copy of their proceedings, which I annex.

4. Dr. Smith, who at my request attended the Municipal Meeting, informed the Commissioners that he was of opinion that it would be advisable to experiment with an apparatus perfect in construction, and made with a view of testing the several questions, regarding which he considered proof still called for.

5. The Commissioners accordingly expressed their opinion that the apparatus proposed by Mr. Hickey himself, and which Burn and Co., of Calcutta, estimate to cost Rupees 3,000 in Calcutta, should be purchased.

6. The total sum which the Commissioners wish to have spent in further testing Mr. Hickey's scheme, and in working, for a time, the further conservancy measures proposed by the Sub-Committee, is Rupees 7,000.

And Major Jenkins' objections since received.
B. W. M.

7. Opinions vary as to the advisability of expending from the Improvement Fund so large a sum as Rupees 7,000 for this object. If I except Mr. Graham's amendment to the resolution I proposed at the meeting, I believe that the objections raised against the expenditure are more vague than suggestive.

8. The decision as to whether the dry-earth system is, as a whole, preferable to the rival scheme, will depend on the replies of the Chemical Analyst to the questions raised by Dr. Smith and Mr. Muller. I believe, however, that the dry-earth system will not, in a damp climate like Darjeeling, be found the cheapest of the two systems.

9. As to the mere question of expense however, I am of opinion that, so long as there is a fair chance of a satisfactory result, Rupees 7,000 will not be too much to pay for a conservancy experiment at so important a place as the sanitarium of Bengal.

10. The following may be accepted as facts:—

1st.—Darjeeling is not so healthy as it used to be.

2nd.—Six thousand cart loads of stable refuse are annually thrown on the surface of the land in the station.

3rd.—Three hundred and fifteen tons of fœcal matter are similarly disposed of, principally down khuds, in which the supplies of water to persons resident below have their source.

11. Should Government be pleased to endorse the resolution of the Municipal Commissioners, I would respectfully suggest that the experiments (which are of general interest) paid for by the Municipality, should still be considered under the supervision of Government itself.

12. The manner in which this supervision should, in the opinion of the Commissioners, be exercised, is indicated in their resolution. I have only to add that I would be glad if the apparatus proposed to be purchased were tested and passed by a competent Committee in Calcutta, before being sent up to Darjeeling. It is hopeless to expect any satisfactory result to the experiments we propose to make, unless the apparatus itself is perfect in construction.

Report of the Sub-Committee appointed at a Meeting of the Municipal Commissioners held at Darjeeling, on the 5th of April 1869, to report on Mr. Hickey's scheme of Conservancy by Carbonization.

The undersigned having inspected the apparatus constructed under Mr. Hickey's orders for the destruction of refuse matter by carbonization, and having witnessed its working, report as follows:—

Description of the apparatus.

The apparatus on the Calcutta road, with which experiments were made in our presence, is a very faulty one, and cannot be accepted as a good sample of the apparatus which should be used in carrying out Mr. Hickey's conservancy scheme.

It consists of a furnace and chimney. In the centre of and built into the furnace is an iron retort for the reception of refuse.

This retort which should be, but is not, air-tight, is supported on iron bars running across inside the furnace. An iron pipe leads from the retort to a condenser, partially filled with water, from which a second pipe leads from under the water, in the condenser, to a gas purifier, in which there are two chambers through which the pipe passes, one chamber is filled with charcoal or poudrette and the other with lime.

We annex a specification and plan drawn up by Mr. Hickey, which shew the description of apparatus which he desires to use; and we may add that an apparatus, better arranged and larger than the one worked in our presence, has been constructed near the old Sapper's lines. Owing to the mortar not having yet consolidated this latter apparatus has not yet been worked.

Working of the apparatus.

3. The retort was charged with semi-fluid ordure in our presence, and rendered as air-tight as its leaky condition would admit. In the course of a few hours we witnessed the lighting of the gas generated from this ordure. In due course the lid of the retort was removed, and the ordure was found to have been completely carbonized.

In a subsequent experiment witnessed by Major Morton, the gas generated from the ordure was lighted immediately on its passing through the purifier. About a maund of ordure had been placed in the retort, the flame of gas attained the height of a foot. It burned steadily, notwithstanding a good breeze, for at least ten minutes, and was then with some difficulty extinguished under Major Morton's orders. Major Morton has reason to believe that the gas which had been lighted previously, had thus burnt for an hour before he was called to witness it.

Value of the gas generated as an illuminating and heating agent.

4. The gas which was burnt in Major Morton's presence gave out whilst burning not the slightest odour, and the flame appeared to him as brilliant as any ordinary gas. It occurred to him that there would be no difficulty in introducing gas through a pipe into a chamber underneath the retort, where the flame would, to a certain degree at least, assist in heating the retort, and thus economise fuel.

Report on the poudrette as a deodorizing agent.

5. The poudrette found in the retort, after the ordure had been carbonized, was tested by Dr. Mathew, Civil Surgeon of Darjeeling, and its properties as a deodorizing agent are thus described by him:

"A specimen of Mr. Hickey's poudrette (which he informed me was the result of incineration of pure human ordure alone) was used by me in the jail for the same purpose, and in the same way as dry-earth is used there. I found it a perfect deodoriser of both solid and fluid excreta. Without exact weighments and more vigorous experiments, which I propose to make as soon as Mr. Hickey shall have furnished me with a further supply of poudrette, I cannot speak positively as to the value of the poudrette as a deodoriser compared with dry-earth; but from what I have seen, I strongly incline to the opinion that the former is much the better of the two, and that a smaller quantity of it would be required to deodorise a given quantity of human excreta than of the latter."

(Sd.) J. MATHEW,
Offg. Civil Surgeon.

Cost of working the scheme proposed by Mr. Hickey.

6. On the cost of working Mr. Hickey's scheme at Darjeeling, we must speak with diffidence. The apparatus at the Calcutta road is, as we have said, an extremely faulty one. The heat of the furnace, owing to the cracking of the masonry, could not be confined, and there can be no doubt that the heat which was actually supplied would have sufficed to carbonize the contents of at least four retorts in place of only one.

Major Morton conducted an experiment with a view of testing the cost of the scheme. He found that about 4 maunds of wood, beside stable refuse, were required to carbonize one maund of ordure. Taking into consideration the waste of heat, and the fact that Major Morton's experiment was commenced with the furnace and retort both cold, we are of opinion that, so far as experiments have yet been made, a maund of wood would, in a properly constructed apparatus, suffice to carbonize a maund of ordure. The tentative census gives a population of between 2,000 and 3,000 people residing within the limits, within which Mr. Hickey's scheme, if approved of, will operate. Allowing twelve ounces to each person (and this is a fair estimate, as the census contains a number of children) we calculate that, at the most, 24 maunds of ordure will have to be consumed daily. This would need 24 maunds of wood, the cost of which may be estimated at Rupees 3 daily, the monthly cost being Rupees 90. To the cost of the wood must be added the wages of the two mehters at the furnace, or 18 a month, and the carriage of the ordure. We believe that the latter will not be found to exceed an anna a maund, or Rupees 1-8 a day, or Rupees 45 a month.

We therefore conclude that the outside monthly cost of working Mr. Hickey's scheme may be reckoned at Rupees 153 a month, to which we would add for contingencies Rupees 16, making a total monthly cost of Rupees 169.

Estimate of cost will probably be found in time susceptible of considerable reduction.

7. If, as we hope and believe, the flame of the gas generated, can be utilised as a heating agent, and the stable refuse so manipulated as to form good fuel, there can be no question that our estimate will be found over the mark. In regard to the utilising of the stable refuse, we may remark that the refuse in the cold season might, at small cost, be turned into the cakes largely used by the natives as fuel. A similar result could, doubtless, be attained by drying the refuse on the top of the furnace.

We desire also to remark that we have made no attempt to value the poudrette obtained by the carbonization of ordure. This poudrette may, or may not, be of value. The question will soon be settled, as a sample of it has been sent by the Sanitary Commissioner of Bengal to Calcutta for analysis.

Whater may be found to be the marketable value of the poudrette, must be credited as a set-off to the cost of working Mr. Hickey's scheme.

8. We are satisfied that the scheme of conservancy proposed by Mr. Hickey is, apart from financial considerations, practically perfect.

We find that ordure can, under this scheme, be rapidly rendered innocuous. It is too early in the day to state the relative value of Mr. Hickey's scheme compared with the system of dry-earth conservancy. In coming to any conclusion on this point, a great deal will depend on matters which still require proof; to wit, the value of the gas as an illuminant, and that of the poudrette as a disinfectant and deodorant, as well as a manure. All these questions will, sooner or later, be satisfactorily disposed of. It will then be time enough to discuss the relative value of the rival schemes.

It suffices for our present purpose to remind the Municipal Commissioners that the dry-earth system was not long ago held by good authority,* rightly or wrongly, scarcely applicable to a damp climate like Darjeeling; and to repeat that Mr. Hickey's scheme has been tested, and, so far as the destruction of ordure is concerned, has been found a success.

Remarks by the Civil Surgeon of Darjeeling.

* "I think it may be safely said "rightly" in the first place the earth would require to be collected; in the second place, it should be kiln-dried (at a greater cost probably than Mr. Hickey's scheme); in the third place, the compound of earth and ordure would have to be removed somewhere and disposed of at the municipality expense, as no natives, except sweepers, would use it as a fertilizing agent in their own lands, or any lands they might be employed upon."

Before quitting this portion of the subject under report, we desire to state our belief on the one hand that, whilst owing to the defective nature of the apparatus with which we experimented greater odour was discernible, than would be the case with a properly constructed furnace and retort, we still think that utter and complete absence of ordure in the working of Mr. Hickey's scheme is scarcely attainable, and, on the other hand, that such emanations, however† disagreeable they might prove to delicate organizations, are in no ways injurious. One or other of our members has spent hours in the immediate neighbourhood of the retort whilst working, and though, at times, pure atmosphere might be preferred, no injurious results attended the visits.

† Remarks by Civil Surgeon.

"Not more so than the smell from a brick kiln and bricks are burned in the heart of the station without complaint."

"I doubt that the ordure can be ever completely neutralized. The easiest and most natural remedy is to build the retorts from some little distance from houses and frequented roads.

Concluding remarks.

9. It must be borne in mind that conservancy arrangements scarcely exist at Darjeeling, and that in adopting any scheme certain expenses, independent of those we have already detailed, must be incurred.

The system—if system it can be called—at present in force at Darjeeling, may be spoken of under two heads—

1*st*.—The disposal of ordure.

2*nd*.—The disposal of stable refuse.

Some dozen public latrines have been built, and, as a rule, the residents of the bazar and native town use them; the ordure thus accumulated is removed by mehters into pits adjoining the latrines, earth being thrown over the deposit. There are also public urinaries, the accumulation of which are similarly disposed of. The ordure from private houses is either thrown into a cess-pool or over the nearest khud. Pigs thrive on the ordure of the Bhootea busties within station limits. Stable refuse is taken away from houses accessible to carts, and, until lately, used to be thrown on the Calcutta road.

Remarks by the Civil Surgeon.

"It should be borne in mind that the construction of these latrines is most faulty."

The existing system must be abrogated before success under any conservancy scheme can be effected.

10. We are of opinion that the present system must be abolished whatever scheme of conservancy may be found applicable to Darjeeling. We also believe that the existing provisions of the law must be more strictly enforced, and that additional Bye-laws must be enacted.

11. We consider that the law will be inoperative until an officer is appointed, whose duty it will be to see that its provisions are carried out to the letter.

The appointment of an Inspector of Nuisances is an imperative necessity.

An Inspector of Nuisances must be appointed, and a man distinguished for energy, determination, and tact, should be chosen for the post. We are of opinion that Inspector Rosamond, of the Darjeeling Police, is just the man for the place.

Government should be moved to appoint him an ex-officio Inspector of Nuisances on his present salary of Rupees 150 a month, and house allowance of Rupees 25 a month, to be paid by the Municipality; he might still remain in the Police, and his services in drilling the Constables would still be available to the Ditsrict Superintendent.

Two more latrines are required.

Remarks by Civil Surgeon.

They should be of quite a different pattern from the present public latrines, otherwise they will be only an aggravation of present nuisances at both points.

Further Bye-laws to be enacted.

12. We urge the construction of two more public latrines, viz., one on the Calcutta road, and one in the vicinity of the Bhootea busti under the mall.

13. There seems to be a doubt as to the power which would be possessed by the Inspector of Nuisances to enter premises for the mere purposes of inspection.

We would remove this doubt by the enactment of a Bye-law as follows:—

"The Inspector of Nuisances is hereby declared to be a public servant; he shall have the right, between sun-rise and sun-set, to enter and inspect any compound or premises situated within the following limits * * *, and, on receiving written authority from the chairman of the Darjeeling municipality, he shall further have the right, between the hours of twelve and four, of entering and inspecting any building situated within those limits. Provided that the latter right shall not be exercised in the absence from the premises within which the said building is situated of the occupant or owner, and until notice has been given verbally, or in writing, to the said occupant or owner of the intention of the inspector to make such entrance and inspection."

"Any person at any time resisting the Inspector of Nuisances in the course of his inspection shall be liable to be prosecuted under Section 186 of the Indian Penal Code."

Inspector of Nuisances should have a separate staff of mehters.

14. To enable the Inspector of Nuisances to assist house occupants in removing noxious matter, and himself to have such matter destroyed within ownerless premises, or premises the owners or occupants of which cannot be found, as also when the men are not otherwise engaged to clear the station of jungle, we are of opinion that he should be allowed a staff of sweeper coolies. We would further place under his control the bazar, street, and furnace sweepers, and the conservancy carts, ponies, syces, and leaves cutters.

Summary of monthly cost of efficient conservancy at Darjeeling, including that of Mr. Hickey's scheme.

Remarks by Civil Surgeon.

"I doubt that this would answer. The Natives should be encouraged to use the latrines; at present they prefer the jungle, and if they were given to understand that they should pay for the necessity of performing the calls of nature in a manner that is repugnant to them, I expect the sweepers of the public latrines would have the lightest of tasks, and the station would be defiled on all sides under cover of night, unless, indeed, a whole army of patrols were entertained.

15. To enable the municipality in part to meet these expenses, we are of opinion that the latrines now in existence, and those to be established, should be licensed. This would effect a saving of latrine establishment, and perhaps secure a small sum in addition. This would depend on the sum which the licenser would be allowed to charge those who use the latrines. Such a measure is contemplated by Section 69 of Act III. of 1864.

Should Mr. Hickey's scheme and these suggestions be adopted, the following would be the additional monthly cost of efficient conservancy at Darjeeling:—

	Rs.
Cost of the scheme	169
Salary of Inspector of Nuisances	150
House allowance	25
Six Sweeper Coolies	54
	398
Deduct savings from Latrine Establishment ...	89
Balance	300

We strongly urge that Government be moved to allow of an additional grant of Rupees 3,600 to meet the cost for one year of conservancy at Darjeeling, and a further grant of Rupees 900 to admit of two more latrines being built and a dozen air-tight pans being bought.

In the course of a year we are sanguine that means would be found either of reducing this expenditure without affecting the completeness of the proposed conservancy arrangements, or of obtaining funds, for instance, by the establishment of a vegetable garden wherewith to defray the cost.

Report of a Sub-Committee of the Municipal Commissioners of Darjeeling appointed (at a meeting of the said Commissioners held on the 5th day of April 1869) to ascertain the best sites for Mr. Hickey's kilns, the limits within which the carbonizing system should be introduced, and the Bye-law for the erection of private latrines should be enforced.

Also the addition, if any, which ought to be made to existing conservancy establishment and stock.

We, the undersigned, appointed members of a Sub-Committee for the purposes above stated, beg to submit the following report:—

1. Two of our members (Major Morton and Mr. Lloyd) were present on Monday, the 26th instant, at an experiment made by Mr. Hickey with the carbonizing apparatus which had been worked so successfully at Calcutta. The experiment was an entire failure; and we are of opinion that further experiments should be made before the Municipality adopt Mr. Hickey's scheme. In fairness to Mr. Hickey, we desire to express our belief that the failure in the experiment we witnessed was owing to the presence of too much liquid in the retort. It will probably be found necessary to have a latrine as a store in the neighbourhood of the kiln for such filth as it may be intended to carbonise. Care must then be taken to maintain a proportion between the solids and liquids to be carbonised. This can easily be arranged by the addition of dry stable litter where liquids are found to be in excess.

We have no reason whatever to doubt the eventual success of Mr. Hickey's scheme.

2. Should his scheme be adopted at any future date, we are of opinion that there should be two kilns, the principal kiln with four retorts being placed on the west of and under the Post Office Hill, the smaller kiln with one retort under the Calcutta road.

3. We would establish no limits within which the carbonising system should be introduced. The filth of the bazar and native town should be removed from the latrines by the mehters appointed to the charge of them, with the assistance perhaps of three additional mehters, and the rubbish of the bazar and native town should be similarly removed by Municipal carts, and the mehter coolies attached to them to the principal kiln.

The stable refuse of the rest of Darjeeling should be removed, when practicable, by means of the Municipal carts, and the coolies attached to them to either of the kilns. For the removal of house filth to the small kiln on the Calcutta road, we would trust to the owners of houses. As an inducement to private mehters to undertake this job, we would recommend that a present of two pice, per pailful delivered, be offered. We would appoint a Moonshee, whose duty it would be to attend the small kiln from 6 to 9 in the morning, and to give a ticket to each mehter delivering a pail full of filth. These tickets would be redeemed at the end of the month, at two pice a piece. It might also be found advisable to employ the municipal carts, where practicable, in removing such filth to the small latrine from houses the private mehters of which decline to assist.

4. The following may be taken as the approximate monthly cost of working the kilns:—

		Rs.	As.	P.
5	Additional Mehters, viz., 3 for the bazar, and 2 for the kilns, at Rupees 9	45	0	0
1	Moonshee for 3 hours a day	10	0	0
	Reward to private Mehters	30	0	0
600	Maunds of wood, at Rupees 16 per 100 Maunds ...	96	0	0

Future experiments will show to what extent gas can be utilized to the saving of the principal item of expenditure, viz., wood.

5. We are of opinion that this Sub-Committee should not be dissolved, and that the present report should be considered an open one, pending the result of further experiment.

DARJEELING,
The 30th April 1869.

(Sd.) B. W. D. MORTON,
Deputy Commissioner.
„ WILLIAM LLOYD.
„ W. H. OAKLEY.

From D. B. SMITH, ESQ., M. D., Sanitary Commissioner for Bengal, to MAJOR B. W. D. MORTON, Deputy Commissioner of Darjeeling,—(dated Darjeeling, the 12th July 1869.)

I HAVE the honor to request you to peruse the enclosed letter from Mr. Gilbert Hickey, C. E.

2. You and I together saw Mr. Hickey's process in partial operation a few days ago.

3. Human ordure was reduced, by furnace heat, to a coke-like substance, and gas was evolved, which, after passing through water, burned with a clear bright flame.

4. Mr. Hickey is sanguine that he will be able to push his experiments to still more useful results. These are indicated in the enclosed letter.

5. In a sanitary point of view, it seems very important that the following questions should be set at rest:—

(A.)—Can ordure and waste matter be economically consumed by heat?

(B.)—Can useful illuminating gas be so produced?

(C.)—Can its purification be effected economically?

(D.)—Can the gas be turned to account for heating purposes, i. e., to supply sufficient heat to consume further ordure and to evolve more gas?

(E.)—Can the poudrette be advantageously employed as a deodorant, and can it be turned to account as fuel? These are questions of broad and general interest.

6. Mr. Hickey's experiments, so far as they have gone, have been carried out at the expense of the Darjeeling municipality?

7. It is clearly of direct importance to this place that such experiments should be pursued to really useful practical ends.

8. Before forwarding to Government Mr. Hickey's communication, I beg to address you on the subject, with a view to being informed if the Darjeeling Municipality will sanction a further grant of money for the carrying out of the extended experiments now proposed by Mr. Hickey, and if so, what sum could be rendered available.

9. The Municipality has already entered into this subject in a most praiseworthy spirit, and I trust it may see fit still further to furnish facilities for the completion of Mr. Hickey's operations.

10. Should the success anticipated by Mr. Hickey attend the experiments, great credit will attach to the public body, under whose auspices such a derivable end has been attained.

11. On the other hand, even although the results should not prove fully equal to what is desired, yet a large apparatus would remain in the possession of the Municipality, by means of which sweeping and waste matters could most conveniently be consumed. Of such refuse there is at present in Darjeeling a vast deal which remains unconsumed, and which is liable to be a source of disease.

12. The Municipality of this place being in a more favorable financial condition than many others in Bengal, I am the more induced to refer this matter to you.

13. I may mention, as a matter of precedent, that, a short time ago, the Municipality of Hooghly and Chinsurah allotted Rupees 5,000 to Dr. Thompson, the Civil Surgeon of the station, for the purpose of enabling him to construct a particular kind of latrine which he had desired, and by which it is hoped the conservancy of the place will be materially improved.

14. I shall feel much obliged by your being good enough to lay before the Municipality of Darjeeling this question of sanctioning a further grant of public money to Mr. Gilbert Hickey for the completion of his experiments.

Proceedings of an Extraordinary Meeting of the Municipal Commissioners, held at the Cutcherry of Darjeeling, on Monday, the 20th July 1869.

PRESENT:—

Major B. W. D. Morton	Ex-officio Chairman.
W. Lloyd, Esq.	Vice-Chairman.
Captain Jerdon	Commissioners.
Mr. Doyle
„ Graham
„ Oakley
Captain Masson

Dr. Smith, the Sanitary Commissioner of Bengal, also kindly attended the meeting at the request of the Chairman.

Read the proceedings of the last meeting held.

Read the notice convening the present meeting.

Read again the first report of the Sub-Committee appointed (at a meeting of the Municipal Commissioners of Darjeeling held on the 5th day of April 1869) to ascertain the sites for Mr. Hickey's kilns, the limits within which his carbonizing system should be introduced, and the Bye-law for the erection of private latrines be enforced; also the addition, if any, which should be made to existing conservancy establishment and stock.

Read a further report of the said Sub-Committee.

Read letter from Dr. Smith, Sanitary Commissioner of Bengal, to the address of the Deputy Commissioner of Darjeeling, dated 12th July 1869, enquiring whether and to what extent the Municipal Commissioners would recommend a further grant of money, with a view to a more extended experiment on the basis of Mr. Hickey's scheme.

Read a letter from Mr. John Muller, Senior, of Colinton, deprecating the introduction of Mr. Hickey's conservancy scheme without further experiment.

Proposed by Major Morton that a copy of the Sub-Committee's Report be submitted to Government, and that the sanction of Government be solicited for the setting apart from Improvement Fund a sum of Rupees 7,000, as per details given in the margin, for the further testing of Mr. Hickey's scheme, as proposed by Dr. Smith in his letter to the Deputy Commissioner of Darjeeling, dated the 12th instant, and for the partial introduction of the conservancy measures proposed by the Sub-Committee.

	Rs.
Cost of apparatus as per estimate and plan prepared in Calcutta and submitted by Mr. Hickey	3,000
Cost of carriage to Darjeeling, constructing of furnaces, &c., and incidental expenses	2,000
Cost of additional cost of conservancy, as per Sub-Committee's Report for 6½ months, commencing with the first working of the new apparatus ...	2,000
Total Rs.	7,000

Proposed further, that in addressing Government it may be explained that the Commissioners are desirous that when the preliminaries of the proposed experiment are completed, they may be placed in communication with a Chemical Analyst, as also with a Gas Engineer or other expert whose services may be available, either or both of whom might, in due course, be deputed by Government to Darjeeling to report upon the points raised by Dr. Smith in his letter to the Deputy Commissioner and on any other question which, in the working of the experiment, may demand solution.

Mr. Graham moves the following amendment, seconded by Mr. Doyle:—" That inasmuch as the Darjeeling Municipality, with reference to Mr. W. R. Gilbert Hickey's scheme, have already spent a considerable sum of money, and those experiments up to present time are considered by the Municipality satisfactory, a proposal be sent to Government, accompanied with estimates from Mr. Hickey's scheme, asking Government if they are willing to join the Municipality in further developing the experiment, it being understood that the total cost shall not exceed Rupees 7,000, and that Government be also asked to send up a Gas Engineer and Chemical Analyst to watch the experiment, and report its progress, and whether the proposed scheme is likely to be a success."

On Major Morton's proposals and Mr. Graham's amendment being put to the vote, the former were carried by a majority of 6 to 2.

Read a letter from Dr. Matthew, Civil Surgeon of Darjeeling, to the address of the Deputy Commissioner, expressing his belief that the present sickness in Darjeeling is in a great measure owing to impurity of the water supply, the said supply being in the Civil Surgeon's opinion derived from surface drainage.

Read a communication from Major Morton, detailing certain local investigations made by him in company with Captain Masson and Messrs. Doyle and Hickey.

Also a communication from Mr. Hickey on the same subject.

Resolved, that the water pipes be at once disconnected between the spring which at present feeds the pipes and the jhorah some feet further up the road.

Also that estimates be drawn up, of 1st.—The cost of connecting the present spring with the spring in Captain Masson's compound.

2nd.—The cost of a fitter to be constructed below the junction of the pipes.

3rd.—The cost of constructing a dome over the spring in Captain Masson's compound and of planting suitable trees in the immediate neighbourhood of the spring.

4th.—The cost of erecting a hydrant below the spring in Captain Masson's compound to admit of the persons using the spring being supplied with water.

That the estimates, when prepared, be circulated for the approval of the Commissioners and then submitted to Government.

(Sd.) B. W. D. Morton,
Deputy Commissioner, and Ex-Officio Chairman of the Municipality of Darjeeling.

From John Muller, Esq., to Major B. W. D. Morton, dated Colinton, the 19th July 1869.

My dear Major Morton,

I see by the Advertiser that the Municipal Commissioners meet to-day for the purpose of receiving the Report of the Sub-Committee on Mr. Hickey's carbonizing scheme.

Will you permit me to express a hope that you are not going to adopt this scheme on an extended scale without further enquiry as to the probable result.

From what I hear the process has been considered satisfactory, because the resulting mixture of animal and vegetable carbon is found inodorous; now I believe that the enemies to be guarded against are not those that are fixed, but those that are volatile.

Fire no doubt is a purifier, but it is a purifier of that which is left, and not necessarily of that which is driven off.

The substance you have to deal with may contain the germs of all manner of diseases, and although after the action of fire the residue may be nothing but impure carbon, it is possible you may be obtaining this at terrible cost, for the operation may fill the atmosphere with the most noxious gases, and these may either proceed direct from the substance operated upon, or may be formed during the process of combustion, and as they will be more rapidly formed than by the action of the atmosphere, the remedy will be worse than the disease.

I do really think, therefore, that previous to extending operations, a complete and full analysis of all the vapours and gases which are driven off should be made by a person fully competent for the undertaking.

Extraordinary and unexpected results occur occasionally by the application of heat. I give you an instance: some years back I obtained from Sydney some bog iron ore, and was engaged in making a microscopic examination of it. For this purpose I pounded some of it up in a diamond mortar and boiled it in concentrated nitric acid, and placed a drop under a very powerful miscroscope, when it was found to be swarming with infusioria, all alive, notwithstanding the boiling they had had.

Excuse me for troubling you with this note, but I feel that with the reports which we have regarding other Sanitaria, it is of the highest importance to be very cautious that we do not introduce any thing calculated to render this place more unhealthy than it is, and which, I am sorry to say, from whatever cause, is very much less healthy than it was when I was here in 1847-8-9.

From MAJOR A. E. PERKINS, R. A., Executive Engineer, Darjeeling Division, and ex-officio Municipal Commissioner, to the Chairman of the Darjeeling Municipality,—(No. 288, dated Darjeeling, the 29th July 1869.)

As I was prevented, by non receipt of the notice of the last Committee Meeting (July 20), attending at the meeting, and you have favored me with an opportunity of expressing my opinion on the subjects discussed, I beg to submit the following remarks :—

2. Had I been present I should, at least, have supported Mr. Graham's amendment. Indeed, in the present state of the question, I should have opposed entirely the proposition emanating from yourself, so far as the Municipality is concerned, for setting apart 7,000 Rupees for the purpose mentioned.

3. In the first place, as I believe I have correctly understood you, the state of the municipal funds is so bad, that now, in the month of July, when roads, drains, and other works have yet much damage to sustain for months of heavy rain, you declare yourself unable to make any further provisions for repairs until next official year. In other words that, for some eight months, the station, in such material respects, is to remain uncared for. We may best consider what this means by referring to the condition in which the "Mall," the only public place of rendezvous, on the eastern side has been allowed to remain throughout the current season, and will still remain for the time mentioned.

Major Perkins has been misled. There are at this moment Rupees 19,400 invested, and it is estimated that, on the 1st April 1870, there will be available Rupees 32,272-14-7 after deducting sanctioned expenses of 1869-70. The sums sanctioned by Government for the repairs this year of roads have been all but exhausted, owing chiefly to the enormous cost of works undertaken during the last cold weather and finished this year. The works were well done and well worth the money spent, but their cost was considerably above my estimate.

4. Such a time is chosen to recommend an extraordinary outlay, that can well stand over till next year and receive meantime that proper treatment by reduction to proper plans and calculations of construction, maintenance and working, which the Municipality have a right to demand from Mr. Hickey.

The object of the Sub-Committee, whose report does not form the basis of the application to Government, is the conservancy of Darjeeling not the benefit of Mr. Hickey.

The Municipal Commissioners of Darjeeling, not their Sub-Committee, believing that the scheme proposed by Mr. Hickey promises success, in the interest of conservancy generally and of Darjeeling conservancy in particular, recommend the setting apart of Rupees 5,000 for certain experiments, in the absence of which the cost of working the proposed scheme cannot be fixed. Mr. Hickey has not the means to conduct the experiment himself.

5. For I must observe that the perusal of the report of the Sub-Committee (Appendix E., April 5) shows me that the Municipal Engineer though, apparently, intent upon the scheme and anxious to connect his name specially with the so-called system has failed, after some months of opportunity, to submit his project in that tangible form of figures which, form my experience, is deemed necessary by Government when proposals for extraordinary expenditure (or indeed any) are submitted.

The plans and estimates annexed were submitted for inspection at the meeting, the objects and date of which were published to the best of my ability.

6. The opening sentence of paragraph 6 of Sub-Committee's Report bears on this defect clearly enough. I submit that you should have no diffidence in speaking of the cost of working Mr. Hickey's system, that it is his special business to reduce the question to a definite calculation, and that I, as the only professional member of the Municipality, should be afforded sufficient time to overhaul the propositions made within professional bearings. Further on in the same paragraph the imperfection, as mentioned of the apparatus, which the Municipal Engineer has had every reason for rendering complete, is further argument for caution in dealing with this matter. Further again in the same paragraph, the responsibility which should be solely that of the Engineer, is effectually removed from him by the hasty calculations of the Sub-Committee, on Paragraphs 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16.—I decline to enter into the other matters discussed, as I hold them for the most part irrelevant to the issue. I may state, however, that there are on an average at least 100 coolies daily employed on the 120 miles of road under the Municipality. That the greater portion of these roads are looked after by planters who are allowed a fixed establishment of coolies for the rains; that cost what it may, I have no intention of reducing the coolies on the roads materially, until all danger from the rainfall is over; and lastly that I shall shortly convene a meeting of the Municipal Commissioners, where Major Perkins' statements and my replies thereto may be properly and at length considered.

B. W. D. Morton,

the strength of which you recommend Government to take action. It seems to me that this is travelling at a very unnecessary pace.

7. I beg to observe that I do not less than yourself or the Sanitary Commissioner value the sanitary precaution which it is desirable to aim at. Nor have I the least doubt about the feasibility of deodorizing ordure by expelling its gases by the application of heat in close vessels (styled carbonization) of purifying the gas as proposed, of the inflammability of the gas, of the practicability of using the gas, when led back, for feeding the furnace.

8. But presuming, as seems to be imagined, that there is anything tentative in the process; as a process merely, I say that of all places in Bengal, indeed of all places that I have ever known in India, Darjeeling is the last that should be called upon to pay for the experiment. There are a few localities doubtless where bad smell can be found; but, on the whole, Darjeeling is wonderfully free from stenches. And I say that by active co-operation of a Police of the Establishment annually provided for in our Municipal Budget at a large cost, under existing means of supervision, the place could be much improved,

9. Why should it be otherwise, with a temperate climate, houses placed at great distances apart, steep mountain slopes that allow of filth being got rid of, and a rainfall of 130 inches to scour the slopes. Nor can I allow, seeing what the source of our water supply is, that there is reason to suppose it liable to fouling from surface drainage It may be tainted by accumulated deciduous vegetation. At this point the suggestions or recommendations of the Committee (July 20) seem good, and I should have supported them.

10. But in face of the evident advantages which Darjeeling enjoys, although fully understanding Dr. Smith's desire to see the process proved, and admitting its probable suitability to crowded localities on the plains of India, I cannot admit the conclusions to be inferred from Dr. Smith's paragraph 12, that Darjeeling should devote its procurable (available I cannot say) funds to this immature project.

11. It appears that the utilization of the gas for illuminating purposes is considered a possible aid to the system. I cannot, however, realize Darjeeling in a position to start the laying of gas pipes.

12. The contents of paragraph 9 of Sub-Committee's Report to me, read like a criticism on the management of municipal affairs (though I am aware not intended as such), for if after the years of opportunity you have enjoyed, the sums annually expended, the supervision that has been available, the Magisterial authority that backs you, the state of things is justly described in paragraphs 9, 10, 11, the cause must be that the Municipality requires a working manager, whose time is not so much occupied by civil and judicial duties. I must venture to deny that the remedy is to be found in voting Rupees 7,000, which cannot be afforded in the random way proposed.

13. I would here notice a further point on the score of expense that is opposite to the occasion. The Municipality was told by yourself, at the time when we were losing Mr. Oakley's services, that one satisfaction for the loss was the fact that the Municipality could not afford to pay his salary of Rupees 300 per month, and that it was your intention to appoint an Overseer on Rupees 100 per month, and yourself, through the agency of contractors, to do the rest of the work.

14. Following upon this, came the appointment of Mr. Hickey (opposed by me), another Rupees 300 per month; and now a further proposition (vide paragraph 15,) for an additional monthly expense of Rupees 300, showing your present proposed establishment at the following:—

		Rs.	Rs.
Mr. Hickey's salary	..	300
Pony allowance	...	30
			330
Mr. Blake's salary	...		100
			430
Additional allowance	..		300
Total, Rs. ...			730=8,760

annually.

As against Rs. 330 (Rs. 30 I suppose for pony) given to Mr. Oakley, which you said we could not afford; showing an increase since Mr. Oakley's time upon salaries and establishment of Rs. 800 annually.

14. Paragraphs 13-15 of Sub-Committee's Report are, in my opinion, most arbitrary in their provisions, the latter is practically to impose a tax upon the performance of the offices of nature. I trust that it may not be allowed.

Paragraph 13 would need to be greatly modified.

15. In conclusion, I beg to observe that I concur in only that part of the committee's proceedings which relates to the better protection of the head of the water-supply.

For the rest, I beg that it may be known that I entirely dissent from the recommendation pressed upon Government including the Chemical Analyst and the Gas Engineer. The time has not come yet for the latter for a great many years, and as regards the former, all information required can be attained from Dr. Macnamara. Such information and all other bearing upon the economy of the scheme, should, in my opinion, be collected by the Municipal Engineer, and until such time as this may have been done, I submit that your Committee is not in a position to make any recommendation to Government.

16. I trust that, whatever may be the result of these proceedings, it will not be overlooked that all estimates should be sent to me for inspection.

From W. R. GILBERT HICKEY, ESQ., C. E., to MAJOR B. W. D. MORTON, Deputy Commissioner, and Municipal Chairman,—(dated Darjeeling, the 24th July 1869.)

WITH reference to the report of the extraordinary meeting of the Municipal Commissioners which appeared in the Darjeeling Advertizer of to-day's date, I have the honor to submit the following remarks:—

'The first experiment was with the water only with which latrine pans had been washed, and the retort was filled nearly full, so that it boiled over. In the recent experiments the ordure was in a liquid state, moreso owing to the rains than would ordinarily be the case. Both yourself and the Sanitary Commissioner of Bengal can testify on this point.

In stating their belief that freedom from smell was scarcely attainable, the Sub-Committee appear to have forgotten the fact stated by Dr. Fawcus in his letter to you, that there was absolutely neither stench nor noxious vapour.

You are aware that I was very averse to the experiment being tried with the leaky apparatus, as I feared the inference could be drawn that some odour was inseparable from the operation. With a properly constructed apparatus none can exist except from the gas, and the Sub-Committee have satisfied themselves that there was no smell perceptible from the flame; for purifying the gas, poudrette was used, and not common charcoal. The gas formed is of the Hu. Cn. series, and may probably be expressed H8. C8. or olefiant gas compressed to half its volume.

HOWRAH IRON WORKS,
Dated 22nd May 1869.

BURN AND CO.

Memorandum from COLONEL J. C. HAUGHTON, C. S. I., Commissioner of the Cooch Behar Division,—(No. 2244, dated Julpigorie, the 4th August 1869.)

FORWARDED to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, in continuation of No. 2217, dated 31st July 1869.

Extract from letter from MAJOR B. W. D. MORTON, Deputy Commissioner and Ex-officio Chairman of the Municipality of Darjeeling, to the Executive Engineer, Darjeeling,—(No. 274, dated the 31st July 1869.)

PARA. 5.—As you are the professional adviser of the Municipal Commissioners, all plans and estimates of new or extraordinary works before being adopted should, I presume, be submitted to you. In the present instance I would have sent you the plans and estimates for your inspection had it occurred to me to to do so; they were submitted at the meeting at which (in ignorance of your having received no notice) I fully counted on your attendance. Your letter to my address, copy of which, as I have said, has been sent to Government, will show that the plans and estimates have not been professionally scrutinized.

The Commissioners in their resolution have not stated the necessity of spending Rs. 7,000. They have simply mentioned that that sum is likely to cover the proposed expenditure, and have asked leave to spend it if necessary.

6. In my transmitting letter, I have particularly dwelt on the necessity of Government supervision, and have gone so far as to express my hope that Government will appoint a Committee to pass the apparatus previous to its being sent to Darjeeling.

7. If Government are disposed to adopt the resolution of the Commissioners, they will probably direct the subjection of the plans and estimates to professional scrutiny in Calcutta.

To ensure their doing so, I shall forward an extract from this letter to the Commissioner, and pointedly request that this may be done.

From Major B. W. D. Morton, Deputy Commissioner, and Ex-officio Chairman of the Municipality of Darjeeling,—(No. 276, dated the 31st July 1869.)

Forwards the above to the Commissioner of Cooch Behar, in continuation of correspondence on the subject of the proposed conservancy at Darjeeling, with a request that Government may be moved to subject the plans and estimates accompanying the correspondence to professional scrutiny in Calcutta.

From the Hon'ble A. Eden, Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Judicial Department, to the Commissioner of the Cooch Behar Division,—(No. 96T., dated the 14th August 1869.)

No 3217, dated 31st ultimo.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letters noted on the margin, submitting the report called for on the trial made by the municipal commissioners of Darjeeling, of Mr. Hickey's plan of conservancy by carbonization, and in reply to state that, before sanctioning any further expenditure, or taking any further action in the matter, the Lieutenant-Governor will await the result of the experiment which the Chemical Examiner to Government has been directed to make with a view to analyzing the gas, in order to ascertain whether it is likely that it can be used to advantage, and what proportionate saving in fuel may be effected by using the gas and residue as fuel.

From W. J. Palmer, Esq., m. d., f. c. s., Officiating Chemical Examiner to the Government of Bengal, to A. Mackenzie, Esq., Officiating Junior Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 98, dated Calcutta Medical College, the 27th September 1869.)

Having conducted the experiment directed in your letter No. 4384, I have the honor to make the following report.

2. The "refuse" of towns consists of all sorts of heterogeneous matters from straw and green leaves, to blood and offal from slaughter houses; before making the crucial experiment it was, therefore, thought advisable to obtain Mr. Hickey's consent to what appeared to me a fair average specimen of such "refuse."

3. A special apparatus was required, such as that suggested by Mr. Hickey, as no experiment carried on in glass or earthen vessels would have been valid or fair; and I was fortunately able to borrow from Messrs. Thomson and Co. a small experimental gas-making-apparatus complete, as also to obtain the assistance of Mr. E. Thomson, whose great experience in gas-making contributed much to the success of the experiment. This apparatus being made for coal had a very small retort, which difficulty was, however, overcome by evaporating the "refuse" over steam until its bulk was sufficiently reduced to go into the retort, the steam heat not causing any loss of gas.

4. The excreta of sixteen men for one day so prepared being placed in the retort at noon on the 3rd September, gas soon began to come off and collect in the holder, after passing three times through 2¼ inches of water in the purifier, and continued to come off slowly and regularly until after 6 o'clock in the evening. Before stating any results of the experiment, it is desirable to mention that every step in the gas-making process was perfectly successful; there being no leakage, or flaw, or hitch of any kind, the preliminary steps having been prepared with great care, and any difficulties which might have been encountered during the operation being avoided by the skill of Mr. Thomson in adjusting the different parts of the apparatus.

5. The first point to be decided by this experiment is whether the proposed process to convert "refuse" into gas and coke is practicable with ordinary skill. The answer to this is simple, viz., that it is practicable and not difficult.

6. The next and more important question,—"Is the process an expensive one?" To answer this it is necessary that a careful estimate be made of the quantity of coal required to make the gas; the plan adopted by me was necessarily wasteful of fuel: in fact, it would be very difficult to perform an experiment of this kind on a small scale without such waste; but this is of little consequence, the quantity of coal required to evaporate a given amount of water being well known and generally admitted. To make the results of my small experiment more intelligible, I have calculated the results per 1,000 head of population, thus—

Refuse per 1,000 head of population per diem	2,875 lbs.
Dry matter contained in this	89·1 lbs.
Water in the same	2,785·9 lbs.

The expensive part of the process is then to get rid of this water, as no gas can be made until this be done.

5 lbs. of good ordinary British coal will evaporate 100 lbs. of water, therefore the whole 2,786 lbs. require 268 lbs. of coal, equal to British in quality, or maunds 3¼. An additional small quantity of coal would be necessary to convert the dry matter into gas, and this may be estimated at ¾ maunds. Total coal required of a quality equal to British, 4 maunds.

The Superintendent of the Alipore Jail informs me that Indian coal possesses only half the heating power of British, and that its average price in Calcutta is 8 annas per maund ; so that the cost of coal per 1,000 head of population would be Rs. 4. The expense of wear and tear of machinery, as well as of the labour of manufacture, should be added to this ; but although this item would be considerable at first, the amount per annum, supposing the plan to be succesful, would probably not be more than would have to be incurred for any other system of conservancy.

7. It now becomes necessary to estimate the value of the products, and first of the gas. The total amount of gas per 1,000 head of population was (at a temperature of 87° F., bar. 29·7) equal to 1,156 cubic feet. When this gas is made to burn while issuing forcibly from a large orifice, it gives a flame which appears to diffuse a considerable amount of light: when tested, however, by an ordinary burner, the light is seen to be pale and feeble. In order to ascertain accurately its commercial value, a quantity of the gas was conveyed in a large caoutchouc gas-bag to the photometer belonging to the municipality, and its illuminating power was then found to be only equal to 2½ candles, in technical language; the ordinary Calcutta gas being equal to 12 candles, and valued at 6 Rs. per 1,000 cubic feet; this gas is only therefore worth 1 rupee 4 annas per 1,000 cubic feet, representing a total value of, per 1,000 head of population, 1 rupee 7 annas.

8. The amount of charcoal or poudrette remaining in the retort per 1,000 weighed, while quite dry, 39 lbs. This substance, if only valued at the price of ordinary charcoal, may be said to be worth 8 annas.

9. The amount of pure gaseous ammonia yielded by the same quantity of "refuse" equals 1·96, or nearly 2 lbs. Though it is difficult to assign any commercial value to this product in India at present, it is an essentially valuable article ; it is therefore equally difficult to believe it would remain valueless if it could be supplied cheaply.

10. It has been asked whether any advantage would arise from using the gas and charcoal as fuel; the best gas only evaporates, weight for weight, twice as much water as coal. Supposing, therefore, this were a good heating gas, the total, 1,156 cubic feet, would only evaporate 462 lbs. of water, and its value, therefore, as a heating agent would be less than 1 rupee ; while if used in its crude condition as a lighting agent, it is worth 1 rupee 7 annas. The charcoal again contains more than half its weight of ash, which is fatal to its value as a heating agent, but ensures its having a higher market value than has been assumed above as soon as its virtues are recognized, as I shall endeavour to show.

11. It thus appears that the value of the produce may be fairly estimated at 1 rupee 15 annas, while the cost of producing is 4 rupees per 1,000 head of population ; this, of course, pre-supposes that the cost of collecting the material, as well as that of manufacturing it, apart from the expenditure of coal, would only be equal to that expended under existing circumstances. There is then an excess expenditure of 2 rupees 1 anna per diem per 1,000 head of population.

12. Before discussing the question which follows next in logical sequence, viz., whether the advantages of the proposed system are worthy of such an expenditure, I would offer a few remarks on the analysis of the gas, which is here detailed.

Hydrogen	35·36
Marsh gas	31·28
Olefiant gas and other heavy hydrocarbons	2·40
Carbonic oxide	21·74
Carbonic acid	9·00
Phosphoretted hydrogen, a trace	0·0
	99·78

Such a gas could probably never be made really "good," but still I am of opinion that a small expenditure would probably so far improve its lighting powers that it would be good enough to light towns ; and when so used, there would not only be a sufficient quantity to light the whole town, but the value of the product would be so far increased, that the excess expenditure would cease altogether. This, however, is only an opinion, the validity of which could only be tested by an experiment on a large scale.

13. The "residue," or "poudrette," which remains after making the gas, valued above, at 1 rupee per maund, should, I am inclined to believe, be estimated much higher for the following reasons :—

Dry systems of conservancy are undoubtedly alone suitable in a tropical climate, for if the water-sewage system poisons both the air breathed and the water drunk, spreading disease and death in the cold climate of Britain, it cannot be doubted that it would be much more deleterious in India, where the heat causes such rapid decomposition. The difficulty of supplying and transporting such an enormous amount of dry earth as is required for Moule's system is so great as to be considered insuperable, as this system fails utterly unless carried out thoroughly, the dry earth only being a deodoriser, so far as it is in sufficient quantity to render the whole mass dry. While ordinary dry earth has the power of absorbing from thirty to thirty-five per cent. of moisture only, the "residue" or "poudrette" absorbs under similar circumstances 100 per cent.; so that while 8 lbs. per head per idem of the former are required to carry out Moule's system, only about 2¼ lbs. per head per diem would be required of the poudrette to carry out a modification of Moule's system, which, while being equally efficacious, would be much less expensive. This, however, is not the only advantage which would result from using the "residue" instead of dry earth; for a conservancy experiment has been recently tried in Glasgow with seaweed charcoal used instead of dry earth, when it was found that the charcoal, being a true deodoriser, was capable of being re-dried and used again and again as many as five times without evolving any disagreeable smell. As the "residue" has the same power of absorbing gases which charcoal possesses, I am of opinion that it also might be re-dried and used again and again, and if so used only three times (as it absorbs 100 per cent. of moisture) all the cost of transporting it both into and out of the town would be saved, as by its means twice its own weight of water would have been evaporated in an inoffensive manner. It should also be observed that the expense of producing the gas would be decreased precisely in proportion to the loss of water by these means.

14. In time, however, the "poudrette" would accumulate in larger quantities than required for this purpose, when it would, together with the third product, viz., ammonia, form a most valuable manure; and so used, the hitherto difficult chemical problem "how to return to the soil those salts which are abstracted in producing food" would be solved.

IN continuation of my letter No. 96T., dated the 14th August, I am directed to forward to you the accompanying copy of a communication, No. 98, dated the 27th ultimo, from the Officiating Chemical Examiner to Government, and to state that the Lieutenant-Governor sanctions the expenditure of Rupees 7,000 by the Darjeeling municipality for a further trial on a larger scale of Mr. Hickey's plan of conservancy by carbonization.

No. 612T.

COPY of the above, and of Dr. Palmer's report, forwarded to the Government of India, in the Home Department, in continuation of the letter No. 97T, dated the 14th August.

From the HON'BLE A. EDEN, Secretary to the Government of Bengal, in the Judicial Department, to W. R. G. HICKEY, ESQ., Darjeeling,—(No. 613T., dated Sooree, the 8th October 1869.)

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, dated the 28th ultimo, and in reply to state that the Lieutenant-Governor has sanctioned a further trial by the Darjeeling municipality of your plan of conservancy by carbonization.

From J. GEOGHEGAN, ESQ., Under-Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department,—(No. 448, dated Simla, the 8th October 1869.)

FORWARDED to the Government of Bengal, Judicial Department, (with reference to letter from this department, No. 396, dated the 8th ultimo,) with a request for an early report, and with the remark that the system ought, if possible, to have a fair and full trial.

From W. R. G. HICKEY, ESQ., C. E., to the Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department,—(No. 1619, dated Darjeeling, the 19th September 1869.)

I HAVE the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 404, dated 13th instant, which I immediately sent to Major Morton, Deputy Commissioner and Chairman of the Darjeeling Municipality, who informs me that he "has not heard about any further experiment, though the Municipality have asked that one should be undertaken at their expense."

I would respectfully point out that the test ordered by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal has already occupied more weeks than days would have been necessary to set the matter finally at rest in England, and that there appears little prospect of any orders being passed before the Doorga Poojah holidays.

I would also most respectfully inform His Excellency the Governor General in Council that my temporary employment here as Municipal Engineer ceases at the end of next month, and that my circumstances are such that I cannot remain at Darjeeling or elsewhere to carry out the system without some salary for the support of myself and family.

I beg earnestly to repeat that unless I have some substantial assistance from Government to carry out my system, I must give the matter up at once and for ever, as I stated in my last letter. I have no private resources on which to fall back, and I have now for upwards of a year, at considerable personal expense, been trying to induce the authorities to take an interest in the matter.

Not one single valid objection has as yet been raised to my system, and I have no hesitation in asserting that it is the best yet proposed for India. I have lately made great improvements, decreasing the cost of the apparatus and increasing the efficiency of the process. The only objection I can foresee is that the idea of dwellings being lighted by gas is a disagreeable one, although I have ample testimony that the gas is innoxious. In the year 1860 I proposed to the late Lord Canning to light barracks by hydrogen gas made luminous by platinum wire gauze beaks, and after a long interview the only drawback appeared to be the cost of the charcoal. His Lordship expressed himself greatly interested in the proposal.

In the year 1859, I wrote a pamphlet on water gas and assisted Monsieur Gillard both with advice and a sum of £500 in perfecting his system. Now this water gas, which is in point of fact nearly pure hydrogen, may readily be made by sending a spray of superheated steam through a perforated pipe, or to the top of the incandescent pindrette as it rests in the bottom of the retort.

The gas from the ordure can thus be used for heating the furnaces and for out-door lamps, and the hydrogen gas (system Gillard) for in-door lights. Professor Faraday, Sir Charles Fox, Sir Macdonald Stephenson, and other distinguished persons visited my works near London, and expressed their high opinion of the brilliancy, steadiness, and beauty of the light. His Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge sent an officer on purpose to see it.

I wish particularly to impress the fact that my system of conservancy gets rid of liquid filth, and that the amount of nitrogenous matter will be enormously increased, as solid excreta yields a very small proportional quantity.

The statement before made, that without the assistance of Government I must give up the whole matter, is a simple fact. I trust the great magnitude of the question as regards conservancy will induce His Excellency in Council to entertain favorably, and immediately, this my humble petition for such assistance as will enable me to carry out the system in its entirety.

From the HON'BLE A. EDEN, Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Judicial Department, to the Under-Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department,—(No. 661T., dated Fort William, the 15th October 1869.)

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 448, dated the 8th instant, and in reply to refer you to my endorsement, No. 612T. of the same date, from which the Government of India will see that the Lieutenant-Governor has sanctioned a further trial by the Darjeeling Municipality of Mr. Hickey's plan of conservancy by carbonization.

Memorandum from J. GEOGHEGAN, ESQ., Under-Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department,—(No. 456, dated Simla, the 21st October 1869.)

FORWARDED to the Government of Bengal, in continuation of endorsement No. 448, dated the 8th instant.

From W. R. G. HICKEY, ESQ., C. E., to the Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department,—(dated Darjeeling, the 2nd October 1869.)

I HAVE the honor to send, for the information of His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General in Council, the following extract from a private letter from the Chemical Examiner to the Government :—

"The experiment is finished and the report sent in. I think very highly indeed of your system ; it is susceptible, I believe, of great improvements, from some experiments recently made."

I would respectfully and humbly suggest that a fair trial be made at Calcutta, Allahabad, Jamalpore, or Roorkee, on such a scale as will be conclusive. At these places there are conveniences for foundry work, and I most earnestly solicit that I may be allowed to superintend personally.

The improvements alluded to are, I believe, those suggested by myself.

Houses of Refuge in the Soonderbunds.

From CAPTAIN H. HOWE, Officiating Master Attendant, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, in the General Department,—(No. 4650, dated Fort William, the 7th September 1869.)

WITH advertence to paragraph 11 of Resolution dated the 9th ultimo, forwarded with your memorandum No. 2852B. of the same date, I have the honor to refer to my letter No. 4301, dated the 17th ultimo, submitting copy of one to the address of the Chamber of Commerce, which gives a history of the houses of refuge, their origin, position, and progressive increase, and the mode of access to each, with the proceedings adopted, and the precautions observed by the exploring parties which go down to inspect the houses and search for wrecks or shipwrecked people after a gale of wind.

2. In addition to the foregoing, I now beg to submit a sketch of one of the houses, which, it will be observed, is secured not only by posts in the ground, but by a mast which is firmly fixed in the soil, and goes up through the centre of the building.

This additional means of security was adopted after the cyclone of November 1867.

3. Houses 4 and 5, east and west of the entrance to the Mutlah, were washed away by the storm-wave during the above cyclone, and in consequence other houses were erected on new sites in protected creeks, as sanctioned in Mr. Under-Secretary Mackenzie's letter No. 5040, dated 9th December 1867; a copy of the report of the officer who superintended the re-erection of the houses is submitted.

Captain Butler's letter dated 12th March 1868.

4. A chart shewing the position of the houses is also submitted.

5. As regards the number of times each house has proved of service, I cannot trace more than three instances.

1. Alma in 1859, in charge of Mr. Pilot Laing.
2. P. C. Kinch in 1865, Pilot Mr. Wise.
3. Jane Jack Mitchell in 1866, Pilot Mr. Fosbery.

6. The houses were established at the entrance of the Hooghly to the eastward of Saugor Point, because experience shewed that the natural tendency of the currents is to land the fragments of vessels wrecked on Saugor Sand within a limited space on the sea-face of the Soonderbunds,—vide Superintendent of Marine's letter to Government, No. 3141, dated 2nd September 1850, and ships were, and have been since frequently wrecked during the south-west monsoon on the sands that bound the Eastern Channel, in which case the heavy sea and rollers would naturally set floating bodies on to the beach somewhere on Saugor or the sea-face of the Soonderbunds within the distance indicated. Similarly, when the Mutlah was established as a port, two houses were erected at its mouth.

7. The only instances in which the houses have been used have been on the occurrence of wrecks as above described, during the south-west monsoon, when the wind and set were on to the shore.

8. As cyclones at the Sandheads usually commence from the eastward, veering by north, the set is at first to the westward and then to the south-westward, so that there is little chance of vessels in distress being found in the north-east quarter after a cyclone; and although after such events the houses of refuge and the sea-face of the Soonderbunds from Saugor to the eastward, including Lacam's Channel and intervening rivers between Saugor and the Guasubey River, are searched, and latterly the Hooringatta, no wrecked vessels have been fallen in within that direction; but it should be noted that when the Sultana was wrecked near the mouth of the Mutlah, a raft with some survivors was picked up in the Hooringatta, having been set across the sands in a north-easterly direction, and lately a mast, some pieces of wrecked boats, cabin fittings, and other debris have been picked up to the westward of the mouth of the Hooringatta, most probably belonging, some of it, to the Inner Mutlah Floating Light and to the Cheduba; and a knowledge of operating causes has always led the search by sea (both by Government and private steamers) for missing vessels to the western coast, and to the south-west and south-east.

9. Thus during the cyclone of October 1864 the Star Light Ship in the Gaspar Channel drifted into Balasore roads; the steam tug Alexandra at anchor off Saugor drove, and with steam up and steaming her best, keeping her head north-east, she drifted over to the southward and westward off Piplee, near Balasore; the Foam Pilot Brig dismasted was drifted off Berhampore, on the Madras Coast: other vessels experienced the same drift; and precisely the same occurred during the cyclone of the 1st November 1867. To go further back. In the cyclone of October 1838, when the Protector was lost at the Sandheads with 160 recruits, the gale commenced at east with a strong westerly set. In the June gale of 1842, which was almost, if not quite, as severe as that of 1864, the gale commenced at north-north-east, the heaviest part was from the northward, and in the May cyclone of 1852, the gale commenced at east and north-east; and thus it has generally been found that disabled vessels are in no danger of being driven on shore on the sea-face of the Soonderbunds during or immediately after a cyclone; but, on the contrary, that they are, as a rule, drifted to seaward if they do not founder; this general condition is, however, subject to alteration in the case of a vessel like the Cheduba, which went out on the 15th May last with the wind at north-east and if she fell in with the cyclone would have had the wind from the south-east, in which case, if the vessel had been disabled and remained afloat, she would in all probability have been set up towards the north-west or north-east.

10. Of course after a cyclone, and when the southerly set returns with the recurring south-west monsoon, abandoned wrecks may turn up and be found floating in the neighbourhood of the Sandheads, as reported to Government to be the case in 1867; and a wreck might be discovered eventually in the Soonderbunds, but notwithstanding all that has been written lately on the subject, there is no authentic information of any wrecked vessel having been actually seen.

11. If it be the case that the Thunder or Morayshire are somewhere on the sea-face of the Soonderbunds, the question naturally arises, why do not the Agents or Owners establish the fact, get hold of these vessels, and claim them?

12. Mr. Seaman, Mutlah Pilot, arrived in town yesterday from a cruize down the Mutlah to seaward. He landed on Bulcherry Island and walked all round it and over the south side, and there he found no less than 18 natives who had gone out in native boats and were out searching for shells: these natives could give no information regarding any wrecked vessel.

13. If these natives could go out thus beyond the shelter of the land, there would seem to be no cause why a party cannot be sent out by those concerned to board the Thunder, if her whereabouts is known, as asserted; and the same remark applies to the case of the Morayshire. Mr. Seaman describes the sea as having been perfectly smooth, and he states that he saw no sign of the object on Bulcherry sand, which he reported as appearing like the wreck of the Mutlah Floating Light on his last visit to this locality.

14. With regard to the question of increasing the usefulness of the houses of refuge, it is difficult to offer any suggestion that could be practically carried out without great increased expense.

15. The houses have been so long established, that their existence and locality are very generally known.

16. In almost every case of recourse being had to them, there would be a Pilot on board well acquainted with the subject; besides that, the houses or flagstaffs would be plainly visible to any unfortunates who reached the shore. In some cases, however, shipwrecked people have been washed upon the shore in such an utter state of exhaustion that they must have perished on the spot if help had not been at hand: this happened to Mr. Mate Pilot Lloyd after the wreck of the Nereides in 1852, when, had it not been for a party of people from the Torch Light Ship that happened to be on the spot, Mr. Lloyd and those with him would not have survived.

17. To meet cases of this kind, one or two houses of superior description would be required to be erected in secure positions, to be inhabited by a party of two or three men, who should be on the look out for wrecks and wrecked people, or a hulk might be stationed near the mouth of a sheltered creek with a small crew, whose duty it would be to be always on the watch for cases of distress.

18. Three or four small Martello Towers might possibly be the best and cheapest structures in the long run: four of these would embrace a distance from west to east of at least fifty miles to the eastward of Saugor, and each might have two keepers residing in them; the provisions and stores, which are now so frequently plundered, would thus be saved from future depredation.

19. If Government thought fit to extend the houses of refuge still further to the eastward, one might be erected on an island that lies between the Roymungul and the Mollinchew Rivers, and another at the mouth of the Hooringatta, or a small station with a boat and a few men might be established in a selected spot near Tiger Point, the more especially as a port is about to be declared open at Morrellgunge; but in these localities the buildings must be strong and substantial, to withstand the combined assaults of a cyclone and a storm-wave.

20. The sea-face of the Soonderbunds from Saugor to Kootubdea on the eastern coast extends for a distance of 210 miles, and although a writer in a recent article in the Englishman appears to advocate the supply of houses of refuge over this whole distance, such a scheme appears to me to be entirely unreasonable, and without sufficient grounds to recommend it.

21. It must be borne in mind that all that has appeared lately on this subject has originated in the vaguest and wildest rumours of wrecks, not one of which has been traced to any authentic source, and it is the duty of any one having charge of a department to weigh well and calmly the probabilities and the grounds of these rumours before acting upon them, or determining to recommend action upon them, as if they were founded in fact.

22. As has been reported to the Lieutenant-Governor, the whole of the sea-face of the Soonderbunds has been inspected as closely as the monsoon would allow, since the cyclones of May and June last. Not only have river steamers and the schooner Alexandra visited the houses of refuge and inspected the localities, an inspection in which the Undaunted joined, but the rivers between Saugor and the Mutlah have been carefully examined, and beyond the Mutlah the search has been continued down the Hooringatta, and eventually along the whole sea coast to Chittagong by the steamer Moulmein, while the local authorities at Barisal and Backergunge have caused a careful search to be made along the entire eastern portion of the Soonderbunds for the European corpses that were said to have been on the Soonderbund coast west of Sundeep Island.

23. Before concluding this subject, I would desire to point attention to the enquiry made by the writer, who has already been alluded to, as to why the entrances of numerous large rivers to the eastward of the present terminus of the houses of refuge should not be explored. One reason amongst others is that the rivers are not surveyed and buoyed to render their navigation safe to a sea-going steamer, and that it is not safe to take a river steamer outside to enter such rivers, and that it has not been considered to be necessary to search beyond the Hooringatta, because cultivated lands and inhabitants and fishermen are to be met with to the north-eastward of that point. And whilst reflections on the Marine Department are made by this writer for the alleged non-adoption of measures, I would call to mind that it is solely to the forethought and foresight of that department that the refuge houses and periodical and other searches have any existence, and that the houses extend as they now do in a line fifty miles east from Saugor, a distance which has been hitherto considered quite sufficient by my experienced predecessors, and in which opinion I myself concur, although, for the reason given at paragraph 21, I am disposed to recommend a station at the mouth of the Hooringatta.

24. The degree of usefulness of the houses will depend upon the number of wrecked people having recourse to them from vessels which may be so ill-fated as to be wrecked in the neighbourhood, a sign of success which would be deeply to be deplored.

NOTIFICATION.

The 20*th November* 1869.—Under the provisions of Sections 10 and 14 of Act VI. of 1863, the Lieutenant-Governor has been pleased to declare that Morrellgunge shall be a port for the shipment and landing of goods, and also a warehousing port or place for the purposes of the said Act.

The following directions for entering the Hooringotta river from sea are notified for general information.

The channel leading from sea into the Hooringotta river having been buoyed off, the following notice is published for general information :—

The outermost or fairway buoy is a first class spire buoy, painted white, and laid in latitude N. 21° 26′, longitude E. 90°, in 6 fathoms low water spring tides.

The lower land fall flat buoy is a second class spire buoy, painted black ; it lies in 3¼ fathoms low water spring tides, 7 miles north-north-west (mag.) from the fairway buoy.

The Argo flat buoy is of the same description, but painted red; it lies in 2¾ fathoms, about 6½ miles north-north-west, 1¼° west (mag.) from the eastern buoy.

The upper land fall flat buoy is of the same description, painted black, and lies in 2¾ fathoms, about 6½ miles north-east-half-north from the Argo flat buoy.

The lower spit buoy is a second class spire buoy, painted black; it lies in 2½ fathoms, about six miles north-west by north from the upper land fall flat buoy.

The upper spit buoy is a third class buoy, painted red, laid on the south end of the spit above Tiger Point; it bears from Tiger Point north ¼ west, distant about 7 miles.

A beacon, with a basket on it, is placed on Tiger Point, to mark the Point; and a similar one on Deer Point Bush.

A vessel bound for the Hooringotta river in the north-east monsoon must first make the fairway buoy, and then stand over on the starboard tack till the lower land fall flat buoy is sighted. Should, however, the wind be well to the northward and the buoy is not sighted, she should take care to tack to the eastward in time, as there is usually a westerly set of from 1½ to 2½ knots per hour during this period of the year. After sighting the lower land fall buoy she should tack as soon as she can fetch it, and when close to it, she will be fairly in the channel; she should then work to windward during the flood-tide and anchor at high water.

A vessel drawing less than 14 feet can anchor in any part of the channel during the north-east monsoon; but, if drawing more than that, must anchor below the Argo flat buoy, unless she can make certain of passing the spit buoy before the tide is done.

In working up, the lead will be found a safe guide, as the soundings in the channel are all soft mud; but the following bearings of the buoys should be attended to:—

In standing to the westward—

The Argo flat buoy must not be brought to bear to the eastward of north by east ½ east, or to the southward of south ½ west, when to the northward of it. And the spit buoy must not be brought to bear to the eastward of north.

In standing to the eastward—

The lower land fall flat buoy must not be brought to bear to the westward of south by west ¼ west, and the upper land fall flat buoy must not be brought to bear to the westward of north by west, or to the westward of south ½ west when above it.

A vessel should pass close to the spit buoy, when she will be in the channel, and must not stand over to the westward further than to bring Tiger Point Beacon to bear north by west: when this bearing is on, she should tack, making short tacks to the eastward all the way up the channel.

Having passed Tiger Point, a vessel may stand close in shore on the starboard tack, making short boards over to the eastward till abreast of the upper spit buoy. After passing it, the tacking mark to the westward will be buoy bearing south, when short boards must be made to the eastward, till Deer Point Bush is reached.

Being to the northward of that, the water is deep close to on the eastern shore, and short boards must be made to the westward till clear of the upper spit shoal.

The vessel will then be fairly in the river and clear of all dangers, and careful attention to the Chart by Lieutenant Sweeney will enable her to proceed in safety to Morrellgunge.

It is to be understood that these directions have been framed from the latest survey in 1861 by Lieutenant Sweeney; but as he found very little alteration since 1840, the date of Captain Lloyd's survey, it may fairly be assumed there has been no material alteration in the channels up to date.

All bearings in these directions are magnetic.

It is high water at the fairway buoy, full and change, at 10 hours.

The port will be opened during the north-east monsoons only, and by attending to the above directions, and b[illegible] careful observation of the Chart and att[illegible] the sounding, no difficulty can be experie[illegible] commander of a vessel in making or leav[illegible] port.

Beyond the [illegible] aids, commanders visiting the port must [illegible] their own skill.

7. No tender of money, Bank of Bengal receipts, or public securities, on account of Opium, upon which the prescribed deposit may not have been made before 4 o'clock of the fifth day following the day of sale, will be afterwards accepted.

8. The Opium advertised for sale shall be paid for within fifteen clear days from the day of sale, and in case any lots of such Opium shall not be so paid for and adjusted, then the cash deposit made under the fifth condition, or any public securities that may have been deposited on account of such lots or chests shall be forfeited, and the Opium shall be disposed of on account of Government at such time and in such manner as the Board of Revenue shall think fit, and the first purchaser shall further be required to make good any loss or difference of price between that obtained at the re-sale and the amount at which the Opium was first purchased, forfeiting all advantages that may arise from such re-sale.

9. Purchasers taking out Certificates or Orders for the delivery of Opium, after making full payment as above prescribed, shall have the option of naming the number of lots of their purchase, which they may desire to be included in each Certificate or Order, and it is to be clearly understood that the Certificates or Orders so taken out shall be considered final, and not afterwards changeable for other Certificates or Orders authorising the delivery of single lots, or of a different number of lots or chests, whether more or less than the number of lots or chests originally required to be included in each Certificate or Order.

10. No deposit of public securities under the fifth of the present Conditions will be received in this Office, except from the party recorded as the purchaser in the sale book, or his authorised Agent. The receipt for deposit of public securities will be granted only in the name of such purchaser, and the securities so deposited will be returned when payment in full has been made by the said purchaser or his order.

11. The Officer superintending the sale on the part of the Board of Revenue is empowered to reject, at his discretion, the bid of any individual, unless such individual shall, on demand, tender at the time a deposit either in Government of India Notes, Bank of Bengal receipts, or Government securities, a sum equal to the amount for which a Promissory Note would otherwise be taken under the fifth of these Conditions.

12. With a view to prevent fictitious biddings designed to obstruct the sale, it is hereby notified that the Officer of Government superintending the sale shall be competent, at any time during the sale, to withdraw any unsold lot, and immediately to put it up again for sale at a maximum upset price diminishing the same gradually until a bid is obtained, and the first bond fide bidder for a lot after it has been offered for sale in the mode here described shall be held and declared to be the purchaser of the said lot, and the Officer of Government superintending the sale shall also be competent to dispose, in the same manner, of as many of the subsequent lots as he may think proper, provided always that no lot shall be sold below the minimum price of 800 Rupees specified in the second of these Conditions.

13. The purchaser of any lot shall have the option of naming and purchasing in immediate succession, at the same price and under the same conditions, any number of lots of the same Agency Opium not exceeding altogether twenty-five lots, provided always that there remain a sufficient number of lots of the Opium to complete the said twenty-five.

14. In the event of any dispute or difference touching or concerning any matter or question arising out of the sale of the Opium included in this Notification, or adjustment of the account thereof, the same shall and may be tried and decided in the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

15. The following papers will be exhibited for inspection on the day of sale, or may be seen previously to that date by application at the Office of the Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue:—No. 1, Certificate of the Opium advertised for sale. No. 2, Report of the examination of such Opium.

16. The public are hereby informed that in providing the investment of the Behar and Benares Opium for the year 1868-69, the same precautions have been taken as those which have been observed during past years, to have the drug procured and sent down in a pure state, to have only the prescribed quantity of leaves used in forming the cakes, and to have the due proportion of Opium put into each cake. An account of the weight of the drug when packed at Behar and Benares, and a statement of the average weight of the chests, indiscriminately taken for the purpose of comparison from the despatches on arrival at Calcutta, may be seen on application at the Office of the Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue.

17. Any further information respecting weight or quality of the Opium advertised for sale that may be desired by parties connected with the trade, will, as heretofore, be furnished to them on application at the Office of the Board of Revenue. But, in accordance with established usage, under no circumstances will the Board entertain or recognise any claim to compensation for loss from any alleged deficiency of weight, abstraction of Opium or adulteration of the drug, which may be preferred on reference to chests, after the sale and delivery of the Opium for shipment.

18. It is hereby further notified that, under the 6th Article of the Convention between Great Britain and France, dated the 7th March 1815, quoted below, the Agents of India in the French Government, or persons duly appointed by them, are entitled to demand, that out of the quantities of Behar and Benares Opium declared as above for sale at the twelve sales of the year 1870, there shall be delivered to them, at the average of the particular sale or sales to which the Opium so applied for may belong, a quantity not exceeding in the aggregate 300 chests, and the Agents of the French Government must make requisition specifying the quantity of Opium required by them at any particular sale, within thirty days from the advertisement of such intended sale, provided, however, that the Agents of the French Government may make such requisition for the whole quantity within thirty days from the publication of this notification. If the Agents of the French Government shall not make the requisition for Opium within the time above mentioned, the entire quantity of about 48,000 chests of Behar and Benares as above estimated, will be brought to sale in the usual manner, and if they shall make application for a quantity of Opium to be delivered to them out of the quantity advertised for sale at each or any of the twelve sales abovementioned, but shall not pay for it within the prescribed period of payment, the Government of Bengal reserves to itself the right of disposing of the Opium which the French Authorities may so fail to pay for, either by increasing the quantity reserved at the sale next ensuing the date of payment, or by selling it at a sale to be held expressly for the purpose.

Article of the Convention above referred to:—

Article VI.—"With regard to the trade in "Opium, it is agreed between the high contracting parties that at each of the periodical sales of "that article, there shall be reserved for the French "Government, and delivered upon requisition duly "made by the Agents of His Most Christian "Majesty, or by the persons duly appointed by "them, the number of chests so applied for, provided that such supply shall not exceed three "hundred chests in each year, and the price for "the same shall be determined by the average "rate at which Opium shall have been sold at every "such periodical sale, it being understood that, "if the quantity of Opium applied for at any one "time shall not be taken on account of the French "Government by the Agents of His Most Christian Majesty, within the usual period of delivery, "the quantity so applied for shall nevertheless "be considered as so much in reduction of the "three hundred chests hereinbefore mentioned. "The requisitions for Opium as aforesaid are to be "addressed to the Governor General at Calcutta "within thirty days after notice of the intended "sales shall have been published in the Government Gazette."

Notice.

A SPECIAL Meeting of the Justices of the Peace for the Town of Calcutta will be held at the Town Hall, on Thursday, the 2nd December 1869, at 11 o'clock A. M., for the transaction of the following business:—

1. To receive and consider the Report of the Special Committee on the Police Budget for the year 1870.

2. The Chairman to report that the Water Supply Works are in a sufficiently advanced state for the supply of water to the whole Town, and to move "that with the sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, a Notification be published in the Calcutta Gazette declaring that the Water Supply is complete within the Town as required by Section 12 of Act IX. of 1867."

3. To consider the Water Supply Budget for the year 1870, and the necessity of moving the Government of Bengal to raise the rate from 4 to 5 per cent. on the assessed value of all houses, lands, and premises. This increase being absolutely necessary, owing to the Justices having decided that no allotment can be made from the General Municipal Fund towards the Water Supply Works.

4. The Chairman to bring to the notice of the Justices the expediency of moving Government to amend Section 13 of Act IX. of 1867, so as to bring all houses and premises within the scope of the Water Supply rate, in lieu of restricting the rate to premises within 150 yards of a stand-post.

5. Mr. J. Wilson to move "that it be an instruction to every Committee to appoint its own Chairman, and to report through him the proceedings of every such Committee to the Justices at their monthly Meeting."

6. Mr. J. Wilson to call the attention of the Justices to the working of Trade Licenses and Conservancy Cases, and to move "that instructions be given for more definite modes of procedure in respect to such cases."

7. Baboo Kristodoss Paul to move "that the proceedings of the Committees of Justices be circulated among the Members present at each Meeting for confirmation, and that the same be printed and forwarded to each Member for information, and also laid before the Justices in Meeting."

8. The Chairman to propose that the various Committees be strengthened by the appointment of fresh Members.

9. The Chairman to lay on the table Report (copy previously enclosed) of Conservancy and Finance Committees, on the arrangements made for leasing the Municipal Slaughter Houses to the Suburban Butchers; and to move—

"That the proceedings of the Committees be confirmed."

10. The Chairman to submit proceedings of the Committee of Justices for Drainage and Water Supply, with reference to the Drainage Works in Government Place, North, and Wellesley Place.

11. The Chairman to submit proceedings of the Committee of Justices for Drainage and Finance, recommending the grant of Rupees 37,000 for the purchase of Stone-ware Pipes from England.

Reports on the cultivation of Hingunghat Cotton in Bengal.

From T. B. LANE, ESQ., Officiating Secretary to the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, in the Revenue Department,—(No. 4952C., dated Fort William, the 5th November 1869.)

WITH advertence to the Government orders marginally cited, I am directed to submit the accompanying abstract of reports on the cultivation of Hingunghat cotton in Bengal during the season of 1868.

No. 1200, dated 24th March 1869.
No. 2306, dated 12th June 1869.
No. 3367, dated 14th September 1869.

2. The Board regret to observe that, generally speaking, the experiments made during the past year, in almost all the districts in Bengal, have proved unsuccessful owing to one cause or another; but with the experience that local officers have now acquired in the cultivation of this description of cotton, more satisfactory results may be expected from the experiments made with the seed sown during the present season.

3. Referring to paragraph 3 of Government orders No. 1200, dated the 24th March 1869, I am directed to state that commissioners have been requested to furnish the progress reports of the experiments made with this year's supply of seed, and the results will be communicated to Government in due course.

Abstract of Reports on the cultivation of Hinganghat Cotton in Bengal for the Season of 1868.

			SUCCESSFUL.
Commissioner, Patna, No. 280, dated 10th June 1869.	Messrs. Burrows and Thomson.	Shahabad ...	About the end of September, a quantity of seed was sown by these gentlemen on a piece of ground measuring 2¼ cottahs, composed of light and sandy soil. From this sowing 6 seers of seed cotton had been gathered. The seed is small and hard and the fibre fine, but not so long as the New Orleans or Egyptian kinds tried by them.
Ditto ditto ...	Mr. Tweedie ...	Tirhoot ...	The plants grown by him gave a produce larger than the ordinary country cotton, but not nearly so much or so fine a staple as was produced from some American seed tried by him and planted by its side. The seed was sown in the beginning of June in lines of three feet apart. The plant commenced to blossom in November, and the cotton was gathered the following month.
Commissioner of Burdwan, No. 292, dated 4th June 1869.	Collector ...	Bancoorah ...	A portion of the seed was sown in a select spot in the jail compound, and the remainder on the old parade ground. The seed on the latter ground was destroyed partly by excessive rain and partly by drought in August and September. The seed on the jail ground flourished, being under better care and within reach of irrigation; but in September, when the plants were in full flower, they were maliciously destroyed by the Jailor out of revenge for having been suspended from office.
Commissioner, Chota Nagpore, No. 1488, dated 25th May 1869.	Deputy Commissioner.	Singbhoom ...	One seer and 10 chittacks of seed were sown by the Jailor of the Chyebassa Jail, and when it germinated it was planted out in a piece of land measuring 1 beegah and 3 cottahs. It yielded a crop of 15 seers including cotton and seed. After cleaning this, 3 seers and 2 chittacks of cotton were obtained, and 11 seers and 4 chittacks of seed. A further experiment was made by the Jailor on a plot of ground measuring 13 cottahs, in which was sown broadcast 14 chittacks of seed, and the yield was 9 seers including cotton and seed. After cleaning this, only 2 seers and 4 chittacks of cotton were obtained.
Commissioner, Presidency, No. 867, dated 5th March 1869.	Collector ...	Baraset ...	A gentleman who [illegible]ed the experiment states that although the seed was sown by him after the sowing season was over, his crop had nevertheless germinated, and he anticipates a small yield. The experiments, however, of another gentleman have proved failures.
			UNSUCCESSFUL.
Commissioner of Rajshahye, No. 311, dated 24th May 1869.	Mr. McDonnell, Director, Serajgunge Jute Company, "Limited."	Pubna ...	About 2 acres of the best piece of land available was prepared with all due care, and the seed sown between 23rd June and 12th July last. It vegetated well, but the plant gave few or no branches, and commenced to flower, more or less, up to February last, but very few pods were formed, and the cotton collected did not amount to more than 8 seers of kuppas. The experiment was a failure, and this might be expected, for as far as his experience goes, it appears that where any particular crop indigenous to India will pay, there it is always cultivated to a more or less extent, while in this neighbourhood cotton cultivation is never seen. Besides the cultivation of jute is so widely extended in this part of the country, that it leaves but too little land for other crops.

Commissioner of Rajshahye, No. 311, dated 24th May 1869.	Mr. Rebling, Dooplah Factory.	Rungpore ...	The seed was received too late in the season, owing to heavy rains in the month of March it was not sown till the end of the month. The seeds vegetated very well, and the plants seemingly throve well until July, when they attained the height of 18 inches. Then they all at once became stunted in growth, and were at the same time attacked by a heavy insect, called by the natives "Achapoka." The plants, however, continued to vegetate, but did not thrive so well in June, and in September they were only 30 inches high and looked very poorly. The heavy rains in September affected the plants considerably; more than half of the cultivation was destroyed by the dampness of the soil. About October they were dying off by degrees. Those that remained did not flower freely, and the few pods that appeared were perforated by insects. Only a few of the pods half opened. The cotton had not a woolly appearance, but seemed to be all glued together, and the pods were small and very hard. Attributes the failure to the seed being sown too late in the season. The plants did not branch out into a single stock and did not get higher than 30 inches. Attributes the failure of the seed distributed to other persons by him to the same causes.
Commissioner, Chota Nagpore, No 1488, dated 25th May 1869.	Mr. Forbes, Assistant Commissioner.	Palamow ...	The seed received by him was one parcel containing 16 lbs and 2 parcels containing 6 lbs each. The experiment made has been almost a complete failure. Attributes this not to the unsuitability of the seed to the soil and climate of the district, but to the following causes:—1*st*, the late arrival of the seed, and the ground not being prepared and cultivated at a proper season; 2*nd*, to the excessive drought and extremely unfavorable season; 3*rd*, to a want of interest on the part of those to whom a portion of the seed was distributed; 4*th*, to his not having had sufficient time at his disposal to superintend and watch carefully the various stages of the growth, &c., of the plant. The seed reserved for experiment by himself was sown on two plots of ground measuring, respectively, one and ¾ of an acre. The acre field was composed of light sandy soil, such as is usually selected by natives for cotton cultivation. The other field was composed of soil known as Balsondur, being a composite of sand and black clay. This field had been slightly manured, and had been ploughed three times. It was thoroughly weeded and two more ploughings had been given, and as rain had already fallen the soil was sufficiently damp to admit of sowing at once; 6 lbs of seed was accordingly sown with a plough and bamboo tube, in rows 3 feet apart. The other field was not ready till a week later. It was ploughed three times and 8lbs of seed sown in the same manner. A few days after the seed was in the ground, the pergunnah was deluged with rain, the consequence was that most of the seed rotted in the ground.

References.	Reports from	District.	Abstract.	REMARKS.
			In the small field about one-half of the seed appeared above ground on the fifth day, and in the larger field somewhat less. After this there was a return of hot weather for eight or ten days accompanied with regular hot winds, which proved most destructive to the young plants, destroying nearly half, and those which survived were a long time before they recovered. About the end of July, advantage was taken of favorable weather to fill up the gaps in both fields by sowing the remaining 6 lbs. Feeling convinced that the plough and bamboo tube was a mistake, owing to its liability to bury the seed too deep, and that the non-germination of the seed in the first instance was to be attributed to this mode of sowing, the seed was put in by hand in the second sowing, the ground being first hoed up and prepared. It quickly germinated, and in three days was well above ground. The difference between the plants in the two fields was marked throughout. In the acre field the plants were sickly and weak, and never rose more than 18 inches above the ground, and though no difference was discovered in the size of the flowers, nor upwards in the size of the bols, yet the produce was much less than that of the other field. On the other hand, the plants of the first crop in the small field quickly grew up, eventually reaching the enormous height of 9½ to 10 feet. This was undesirable both on account of the plant running to wood, and also on account of its liability to be blown down, a result which actually occurred, thereby rendering it necessary to support each plant with a stock, as is done in hop gardens. The great height to which the plants grew is to be ascribed first to the manure, and secondly to their not having been topped as recommended in Mr. Carnac's memorandum. From what was observed, however, the plants do not appear to have run to wood, nor was their produce diminished by allowing them to attain their natural height. The degree of benefit to be derived from topping or docking the plants depends much upon the time at which this is done. If too early, that is to say when the plant is from 2 to 2½ feet high, it is just as liable to run to wood as it was before, but only in another direction. Better results are expected to follow were the plants allowed to grow to a height of five to six feet, and when the first flowers appeared, the tender shoot at the top were snipped off This would entail an expense for supporting the plants, but the increase in produce would more than repay both the trouble and expense. The fact ascertained from this experiment is that Hingunghat cotton will thrive well in the sub-district, and if carefully cultivated is not likely to deteriorate. The introduction of the cotton into the pergunnah with any hope of success would be a matter of time and difficulty. The landholders generally, particularly those of the Rajpoot and Brahmin castes, take no interest whatever in cotton cultivation, and never grow it, looking upon it as a crop that is infra dig for a man of family to grow. The cotton cultivation of the pergunnah is carried on almost entirely by the Kharwars, Bhooniars, Koles, Oraons, and some of the other inferior castes. With cultivators such as Jhurmees, Koirees, and others of the more intelligent classes they could be made to understand the proper cultivation of cotton, the importance attaching to a careful selection of seed and other modes of improving the plant, but it is doubtful whether such men as here cultivate cotton could be schooled to any such system. There would be no difficulty in introducing the Hingunghat cotton into the district by gratis distribution of seed, and there is very little doubt that as soon as these people found out the superiority of the plant over their own they would soon discard the latter. Training and teaching might gradually follow, and with time and patience a good result might be expected. If the Government are anxious to encourage the spread of a good class of cotton such as Hingunghat, suggests the selection of one or more of the most suitable of the Government waste blocks and their conversion into pedigree seed farms under European superintendence. The laborers on these farms might be selected from the Government farms and should undergo a regular training. As soon as they had become experienced cultivators, they might be allowed to return home, their places being taken up by others

Commissioner, Bhaugulpore, No. 129, dated 29th April 1869.	Mr. Onraet ...	Bhaugulpore ...	Has been a complete failure. The ground selected was near the Hills. Though sown twice, the plants were completely destroyed by white ants, and the few that escaped were quite stunted and dried up by the severe drought. The land is not adapted for such cultivation.
Commissioner, Chittagong, Nos. 21 and 27, dated 30th April and 7th May 1869.	Baboo Hurkishore Roy and others. Collector's remarks.	Tipperah ...	From reports received from some of the parties to whom the seed was distributed, it appears that none of them tried the experiment. The seed sown by Baboo Hurkishore Roy produced nothing owing to unfertility of soil. From further reports since received, it appears that the experiment has failed altogether, the climate and soil of the plains being too damp for its successful cultivation. But it is believed that in Hill Tipperah where native cotton is largely grown, its cultivation would be attended with success. Suggests that the experiments be tried again in the betel growing portions of one or more of the Government betel-nut estates.
Commissioner, Chittagong, No. 89, dated 3rd May 1869.	Baboo Goroo Doss Roy, Dewan of the Maharajah &c.	Ditto ...	The plants that came up dried and died away after a few days, although every care was bestowed. The seed is not suited to such a climate.
Commissioner, Presidency, No. 297, dated 28th July 1869.	Mr. Morrell ...	Jessore ...	Some seed was sown, it came up but died off afterwards. These lands are unfit for Hingunghat cotton, as it requires a dry soil which is not obtainable down here.

References.	Reports from	District.	Abstract.	REMARKS.
Commissioner, Assam, No. 123, dated 13th May 1869.	Deputy Commissioner.	Luckimpore ...	The seed received was distributed amongst the ryots of the sub-division of Luckimpore, at Suddya, and amongst the Muttocks at Tiphirk. The principal individuals through whom the seed was distributed report that it did not grow well, but sprouted up and died away before it flowered. The seed is not suited to the climate of the district.
Commissioner, Chittagong, No. 17, dated 26th April 1869.	Commissioner's remarks.	......	The experiment has proved a failure in the hill tracts of Chittagong, Noacolly, and Tipperah, and is unlikely to succeed; but suggests that it be tried again in the hill tracts which are more elevated, and probably better adapted to cotton cultivation.
Commissioner, Cooch Behar, No. 1350, dated 13th May 1869.	Deputy Commissioner.	Western Dooars	The seed distributed to the Meechees germinated, but the plants died before coming to maturity.
Ditto ditto ...	Ditto ditto ...	Garrow Hills...	None of the seed sown germinated.
Ditto ditto ...	Commissioner's remarks.		The seed sown by Commissioner germinated freely, but not a single plant flowered and they remained diminutive. Most of them have survived the dry season, and possibly may yield a crop this year. Is of opinion that the soil and climate of this place is unsuited for cotton cultivation.
Commissioner, Presidency Division, No. 243, dated 30th June 1869.	Commissioner ...	24-Pergunnahs	With the exception of a very partial success at Goburdanga in the garden of Baboo Suroda Prosonno Mookerjee there has been an entire failure of the experiment. In Barripore the cultivation was attempted both on high and low lands, but with equal want of success. Probably neither the soil nor the climate of this part of the country is suited to the cultivation, though a suggestion is made in some of the letters of the Zemindars that the seed was not good. The heavy rains in the early part of last year were followed by a premature cessation of the later rains, and the season in which the experiment was made was an exceptional one.
Commissioner, Rajshahye, No. 311, dated 24th May 1869.	Commissioner, Rajshahye.	......	All the experiments seem to have failed. Even where the seed germinated, the plants were found to be weak and sickly, and this was probably owing to excess of moisture. The cotton plant does not seem to thrive in these damp districts, but should a further experiment be thought advisable, Dr. Bowser, Superintendent of the Rungpore Jail, is willing to undertake it, and the Magistrate remarks he will carry it out with care and attention.
Commissioner, Bhaugulpore, No. 129, dated 27th April 1869.	Baboo Soorjoonarain Singh.	Bhaugulpore ...	The result of the cultivation in the village of Singharee is by no means adequate. The growers ascribe the shortness of the yield to two causes; 1st, lateness of sowings; and 2nd, want of sufficient moisture during the year. The village selected was known to have produced red cotton years ago. Experiment was also made to grow cotton in a village called Jhurko. This locality is also known to have produced cotton of the kind described above. The yield, however, was nothing. The plants grew well and pods were formed, but they were not allowed to develope by insects.

Commissioner, Burdwan, No. 292, dated 4th June 1869.	Baboos Joykissen and Juggutkissen Mookerjee.	Howrah ...	The greater portion of the seed did not germinate or quickly withered away on account of its having been sown too late in the season, and also on account of the unusually heavy rains.
Commissioner, Dacca, No. 77, dated 14th May 1869.	Mr. Foley ...	Burrisaul ...	The experiment proved quite unsuccessful, the seed having arrived late in the season. Heavy rain fell at first, a second and a third attempt were made, but with no better results.
Commissioner, Patna, No. 280, dated 10th June 1869.	Mr. Bachman ...	Shahabad ...	No experiment was made by him, owing to his having received the seed too late, the season having already passed.
Commissioner, Presidency, No. 276, dated 20th July 1869.	Mr. Anderson ...	Nuddea ...	The seed was received much too late to sow in Autumn, but has land prepared to sow in Spring.
Ditto ditto ...	Baboo Sreegopal Chowdry.	Ditto ...	The seed reached him when the season for sowing had passed. Measures have been taken to sow in April next.
Ditto ditto, No. 297, dated 20th July 1869,	Mr. Tweedie ...	Jessore ...	The seed reached him too late to try the experiment, more particularly as all his available lands were sown down with other crops.
Commissioner, Assam, No. 123, dated 13th May 1869.	Deputy Commissioner.	Nowgong ...	Cotton is sown in these hills in April and May, but the Hingunghat cotton seed did not arrive until the end of July, when it was too late to sow it with any chance of success. The seed was distributed amongst the headmen in the cotton growing portions of the district, who report no result. Has no doubt that if a fair trial be given the seed, he anticipates the best results, as the indigenous cotton grows here with the greatest of luxuriance, and there is an immense area fit for such cultivation, peopled by men who understand it.
Ditto ditto ...	Deputy Commissioner.	Seebsaugor ...	Owing to his having recently joined the district, is not able to furnish as full a report as he could wish, nor does he know the views of his predecessor in regard to the experiments. He finds, however, that 30 lbs. of seed was made over to a mouzadar who sowed it on 31st July. The cotton was picked in October and November last, but the yield was only 50 lbs., and the sample is bad. The texture of the cotton though finer than that of the Assamese is not so long. Of the seed sown only two-thirds came up; and half of what came up did not arrive at perfection. The seed has not had a fair trial, it being sown too late, and it ought to have been sown in different parts of the district. There are still 2 maunds of seed sent up last year, which he proposes having sown at once in different parts of the district, and hopes the experiment will turn out better than the first attempt.

References.	Reports from	District.	Abstract.	REMARKS.
Ditto ditto. ...	Commissioner's remarks, Assam.	......	The cotton has not had a fair trial in this province. The seed arrived too late in the season, and the results are therefore not such as to enable him to form an opinion of the suitableness or otherwise of the soil for this particular cultivation.
Commissioner, Bhaugulpore, dated 27th April 1869, No. 129.	Commissioner, Bhaugulpore.	......	The experimental sowings in the division have proved almost an entire failure, owing partly to the lateness of the period at which the seed arrived and the continual and severe drought which prevailed last year, and partly to the persons entrusted with the experimental cultivation not having taken such an interest in the matter as he had anticipated. The result has been that the Assistant Commissioners of Pakour and Godda have not furnished him with the results of the experiments in the form prescribed.
Commissioner, Bhaugulpore, No. 129, dated 27th April 1869.	Assistant Commissioner.	Doomka ...	The seed arrived somewhat late in the year, as many persons had sowed their best lands before its arrival, but appeared to get dried up prematurely, or else were attacked by insects. The out-turn was so unfavorable that no attempt at selection was made. Wishes the experiment should be tried this year, if seed can be supplied sufficiently early.
Commissioner, Chota Nagpore, No. 1488, dated 25th May 1869.	Commissioner of Chota Nagpore.	......	Singbhoom and Palamow were selected for the experiments as the best cotton producing tracts. Mr. Forbes in Palamow appears to have interested himself in the matter, but the seed was received rather too late. One maund despatched by Mr. Carnac direct, appears not to have reached him. The remainder was distributed or sown by Mr. Forbes, but a deluge of rain in June destroyed the greater portion of the first sowings. Some seed was received and sown on the 25th July, but owing probably to its being then too late, the out-turn was not encouraging. Mr. Forbes' report shews that with care and in a favorable season, the Hingunghat cotton is likely to answer in Palamow, and the experiment should be repeated.
Commissioner, Burdwan, No. 292, dated 4th June 1869.	Baboo Joykissen Mookerjee.	Hooghly ...	The failure is ascribed to the heavy rains during the past year.
Ditto ditto ...	Gungadhur Mooktear.	Midnapore ...	The seed was distributed to such of the Planters and Zemindars as had expressed a wish to undertake the cultivation. The attempts of almost all of them were unsuccessful. Gungadhur Mooktear managed to rear 7 or 8 plants, and these yielded fourfold in proportion to the country cotton with a long and soft fibre.
Ditto ditto ...	Baboo Nobin Chunder Naug and others.	......	Baboo Nobin Chunder Naug, an intelligent and enterprising Zemindar, also undertook the experiment. Owing to the unusually unfavorable season he obtained but a small crop, but the quality was excellent and far superior to that of the country cotton.

Commissioner, Chota Nagpore, No. 1488, dated, 25th May 1869.	Chintamoni Mooktear.	Singbhoom ...	The seed was destroyed and no crop was produced in consequence of there being much rain at the time of sowing.
Ditto ditto ...	Debno Manki.	Ditto ...	The experiment proved a failure. In consequence of there being no rain the seed dried up.
Ditto ditto ...	Manager of the Dulbhoom Estate and Gowrie Patnaik.	Ditto ...	The experiment made by them was a failure. Owing to there being no rain the seed dried up.
Ditto ditto ...	Deputy Commissioner's remarks.	......	Is of opinion that the above mentioned gentlemen did not take any trouble in regard to the experiments, as otherwise results would have been obtained similar to that of the experiment made by the Jailor of the Chyebassa Jail.
Ditto ditto ...	Remarks by Commissioner, Chota Nagpore.	Singbhoom ...	Very little care appears to have been taken by those to whom the seed was distributed, and the results reported are unsatisfactory. This is to be regretted, as the soil of Singbhoom is well adapted for cotton.
Commissioner, Assam, No. 129, dated 18th May 1869.	Deputy Commissioner.	Durrung ...	The seed was distributed amongst several Mouzahdars in Chardoar and Nowdoar Mehals. The Mouzahdars report that the seed was carefully sown, but the result of the experiment turned out a failure for want of rain. The Mungledye Sub-divisional Officer to whom also a portion of the seed was sent for distribution reports similarly.
Commissioner, Chittagong, No. 17, dated 26th April 1869.	Deputy Commissioner.	Hill Tracts ...	The result of the experiment has been a total failure, which is not due, however, to either climate, soil, or seed, but simply to the very heavy rain which fell last year. The seed was tried in five different parts of the district, and Mr. Carnac's instructions were carried out but without avail, owing to the continued torrents of rain which appear to have rotted the plants when well advanced.
Commissioner of Patna, No. 280, dated 10th June 1869.	Commissioner, Patna.		On the whole, the experimental cultivation of Hingunghat cotton has not been a success in the districts of the Patna Division. The ryots generally do not seem willing to make experiments with new kinds of cotton, and the Commissioner doubts whether the Hingunghat cotton seed will ever be sought for to any large extent. The past year has been unusually unfavorable to cotton growth, and natives, as a rule, dislike any new kinds of seed, thinking that any plants we introduce will, as a rule, require much more labor than their own ordinary plants, Commissioner at the same time thinks another attempt should be made this year, and proposes to try the experiment again with some seed lately sent up by Mr. Carnac.
Ditto ditto ...	Collector ...	Chumparun ...	Owing to the drought of last year, all the cotton seed distributed to the ryots failed. Even the experiment made by him failed owing to the same cause.
Commissioner, Chittagong, No. 17, dated 26th April 1869.	Collector, Noacolly	(Private experiments) ...	The experiments have proved a complete failure. The seed was distributed amongst six parties, four of whom state that it was bad, and that the plants never came up, although much care and labor were bestowed. The seed was sown early in November. The soil is too low and damp for this cotton. No further experiment is recommended.

Commissioner, Orissa Division, No. 320, dated 26th June 1869.	Baboo Lukhomee Narain Roy and others.	Cuttack ...	Forwards a very unsatisfactory statement shewing the results of the experiments made. The statement has been prepared from a return furnished by Baboo Lukhomee Narain Roy Chowdry and other Zemindars, who state that the seed was old and did not germinate.
Ditto ditto ...	Assistant Collector.	Jugutsingpore	A seer of seed was sown in his garden but did not germinate, and the seed which was distributed also failed.
Ditto ditto ...	Deputy Collector	Kendraparah ...	The sowings undertaken by Mr. Woodhouse were failures, the seeds were old and did not germinate.
			The Commissioner ascribes the failure to the bad quality of the seed, and the Collector hopes to be able to show a better return this year.
Commissioner, Presidency Division, No. 867, dated 5th March 1869.	Collector, 24-Pergunnahs.	Barrackpore, Diamond Harbour, and Barripore Sub-divisions.	The experiments were unsuccessful, the seeds having either not germinated at all, or having done so failed to thrive. The sowings were effected in October, and the unfortunate results are attributed by some to the unsuitableness of the soil, and by others to immaturity of the seed.
Commissioner, Presidency Division, No. 276, dated 20th July 1869.	Mr. Sibbold ...	Nuddea ...	The experiments made by a number of ryots in different villages have not proved fortunate, as in every instance only a certain portion of the seeds germinated. Some of the plants reached a height of 3 or 4 inches, yet all died off without coming to maturity.
Ditto ditto ...	Baboo Radha Churn Roy.	Jessore ...	The seed sown by him came up and then died away.
Commissioner, Rajshahye, No. 311, dated 24th May 1869.	Mr. Payter	Pubna ...	The seed was sown according to directions furnished, but entirely failed to germinate and speedily rotted.
Commissioner, Patna, No. 280, dated 10th June 1869.	Collector ...	Tirhoot ...	The experiment was undertaken by several gentlemen, and the results were more or less a failure almost everywhere, owing to one cause or another.
Commissioner, Patna, No. 590, dated 11th September 1869.	Collector ...	Gya ...	All the Zemindars to whom the Hingunghat cotton seed was supplied report that notwithstanding every care the seed did not germinate. A quantity of the same seed has again been supplied to certain Zemindars this season, and the result will be reported in due course.

Commissioner, Dacca, No. 77, dated 14th May 1869.	Remarks by Commissioner of Dacca.		Reports from other districts have not come in as yet, but understands that the experiment this time succeeded no where.
Commissioner, Orissa Division, No. 320, dated 26th June 1869.	Asst. Collector ...	Jajipore ...	Has been assured both by the Zemindars to whom the seed was given and by others, that the crop will not be fully gathered till the middle or end of June.
Commissioner, Dacca, No. 77, dated 14th May 1869.	Collector ...	Mymensing ...	No experiment was made here.
Commissioner, Patna, No. 280, dated 10th June 1869.	Ditto ...	Sarun ...	Ditto ditto ditto
Dated 14th April 1869.	Secretary, Agricultural and Horticultural Society.		With a small exception the seed supplied to the Society remains in store, although it was notified to the public that the same was available for experimental sowings. The enquiry has been more generally for cotton seeds of foreign growth, and the few who had been prevailed on to experimentalize with the Hingunghat have made no returns of the results of their sowings.

NOTE.

Barometric Pressure.—The pressures in column 2 of the above Table for all stations below 500 feet are reduced from those given in column 3 of the Table on the previous page by adding the weight of a column of air of the temperature given in column 17. For stations of above 500 feet elevation, the reduction is made by Dippe's Table as given in Guyot's "Tables."

Temperature.—The temperatures in column 3 are reduced from those in column 17, on the preceding page, by adding 1° Faht. for every 350 feet.

Wind Direction.—The mean wind direction and its comparative prevalence are calculated from the whole number of wind observations recorded during the month, an equal value (2) being assigned to each day's observations, so that the maximum (exclusive prevalence of one wind) would be 60. The mean direction is calculated in the usual way by the sines and cosines of the compass points.

The above being all comparable, afford the data for constructing a meteorological chart for the month, which shall shew the isobarometric and isothermal lines, and the wind directions, which may be represented by arrows of varying length proportioned to the prevalence of the wind. To these may be added the rainfall from the previous Tables.

II.—In districts and places not brought under the provisions of Section 32 of the aforesaid Act, persons are not absolutely prohibited from carrying arms without a license; but any person not being exempted under the provisions of Section 27 of the said Act so doing, is liable to be disarmed by any Magistrate or Police Officer under Section 26 of said Act, if in the judgment of such Magistrate or Police Officer it is dangerous to the public peace to allow such person to go armed, or to carry arms. LEAVE AND ALLOWANCES.

No. 2657.—The 23*rd November* 1869.—RESOLUTION.—It has been brought to the notice of the Governor General in Council that Rule XXXI.* of the new Leave Rules for the Covenanted Civil Service has been held to entitle an Officer to the acting allowances therein prescribed until he again holds a substantive appointment carrying equal pay to that of the substantive appointment which he relinquished when he proceeded on furlough. Consequently, under the action of that rule, Officers have been allowed to draw aggregate salaries exceeding those which they so relinquished.

2. His Excellency in Council is pleased to rule that Rule XXXI. shall in no case be applied so as to raise the aggregate allowances of any Officer who may return from furlough after this date above the aggregate allowances which he relinquished when he proceeded on furlough.

ORDERED, that the foregoing Resolution be published in the Gazette of India, and communicated to the other Departments of the Government of India, the Local Governments, the Comptroller-General of Accounts, the Director-General of the Post Office of India, the several Accountants-General, and the Deputy Accountants-General in independent charge

No. 2661.

From G H M. BATTEN, ESQ., Under-Secretary to the Government of India, Financial Department, to the Accountant-General, North-Western Provinces.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of Mr. Officiating Deputy Accountant-General A. Anthony's letter No. P. A. 11938 of the 23rd ultimo, and in reply to state that the case provided for in the Resolution No. 3458, passed in this Department on the 29th July 1863, is an exception to the rule that a public Officer cannot derive benefit from promotion during absence on leave until his return to duty.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India, in the Financial Department, No. 3458, dated 29*th July* 1863.

Read—

A memorandum from the Officiating Civil Pay-Master, Fort William, No. 2323, dated the 29th May 1863, enquiring whether Mr W. Sarson, an Uncovenanted Deputy Collector in Bengal, who was promoted to the third grade of Deputy Collectors during absence on privilege leave, is entitled to higher pay from the date of his promotion, or from that of his return to duty.

RESOLUTION.—The Hon'ble the President in Council observes that privilege leave stands on a different footing from all other leaves of absence, being only a month in the year allowed for necessary rest and recreation, and given as much in the interest of the State as of the individual.

2. Accordingly, advancement to a higher class during privilege leave does not bar payment of the higher salary from date of advancement, if the promotion does not involve any increase or change of duties or responsibility. Mr. Sarson's claim should be allowed under this general rule.

ORDERED, that copies of the foregoing Resolution be forwarded to the Foreign and Home Departments; Governments of Bengal, Madras, Bombay, the North-Western Provinces, the Punjab, and the Straits Settlements; Civil Pay-Masters, Bengal, Madras, Bombay, the North-Western Provinces, and the Punjab.

ORDERED, that the foregoing letter, and the Resolution therein referred to, be published in the Gazette of India, and that copies thereof be forwarded to the Military, Public Works, and Legislative Departments; the Comptroller-General of Accounts; the Director-General of the Post Office of India; the Mint Master, Calcutta; the Head Commissioner of Paper Currency, Calcutta; the several Accountants-General, and the Deputy Accountants-General in independent charge.

Ordered also, that copies of the foregoing letter only be forwarded to Foreign and Home Departments, and the several Local Governments.

* "Any officer now absent on leave, who "has no appointment, may, on his return and "until he again holds an appointment carrying "equal pay to that of the substantive appointment which he last held draw the subsistence "allowance of his rank, together with 75 per "cent. of the pay of any appointment in which "he shall officiate Provided that the total "salary so drawn by him shall not exceed the "pay of the appointment in which he is "officiating. This rule shall apply to any "officer who may have already returned from "furlough."

PENSIONS AND GRATUITIES.

The 25th November 1869.

No. 2738.—Read again the following ;—

No. 3324, dated 7th December 1868.

From—E. H. LUSHINGTON, ESQ., Secy. to the Govt. of India,
FINANCIAL DEPT.,

To—The Acting Secretary to the Government of Bombay.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your endorsement dated 3rd November 1868, No. 1597, regarding the proposed grant, as a 'special case, of a compassionate allowance of Rs. 4 a month to Moro Venkutesh, late a Carkoon in the Havelly Talooka Kutcherry, who has been thrown out of employ after a service of more than 30 years in consequence of reduction of establishment.

2. It is observed that, although Moro Venkutesh served Government for upwards of 30 years, his employment in eligible grades has not been sufficiently long to secure him a pension under the Uncovenanted Service Rules; and it has been held by the Accountant-General, Bombay, that as he was not employed throughout his service in ineligible grades, he is not entitled to claim the compassionate allowance authorized in Secretary of State's despatch No. 455, dated 16th December 1867, that allowance being reserved only for servants of inferior grades.

3. The Governor General in Council is, however, of opinion that inasmuch as Moro Venkutesh's claim to pension under the Uncovenanted Service Rule is invalidated by reason of his having been employed in inferior grades during the greater portion of his service, the circumstance of his having been promoted to a superior appointment during the latter years of his service should not deprive him of the claim to compassonate allowance to which he would have been entitled had he not been so promoted.

4. Under rule, therefore, the allowance recommended for Moro Venkutesh is fully admissible, and I am to authorize its grant to him.

ORDERED, that a copy of the above letter be furnished to the Accountant-General, Bombay.

Ordered, that the foregoing letter be published in the Gazette of India, and that copies thereof be furnished to the several Secretariats; the Local Governments (Governments of North-Western Provinces and Bombay excepted); the Local Administrations; the Mint Master, Calcutta; the Head Commissioner of Paper Currency; the Director-General of the Post Office of India; the Comptroller-General of Accounts; the several Accountants-General (Accountants-General, North-Western Provinces and Bombay excepted), and the several Deputy Accountants-General in independent charge.

SEPARATE REVENUE.

ASSESSED TAXES.

The 26th November 1869.

No. 2785.—RESOLUTION.—In continuation of Resolution No. 1888, dated the 24th March 1869, the Governor General in Council is pleased to prescribe the following rules with reference to Act XXIII. of 1869 (to enhance the duties leviable under the Indian Income Tax Act).

1. The proviso in Section 3 of the new Act is meant to meet the case of persons assessable under Part II. of Act IX. of 1869, the rate of whose chargeable income is higher during the last four months of the year than it was in the previous two months. For instance, if an Officer of Government should return from furlough to Europe in the month of November or subsequently, his salary for November, December, January, and February, chargeable in the respective succeeding months, would, under Section 2 of the new Act, be assessable at two and a half per cent., and this would in his case be the entire salary chargeable for the six months commencing on the 1st day of October, if his furlough allowances were paid out of India. Hence, under Section 3, he would be entitled to a refund of the excess over two per cent. Similarly, an Officer promoted to higher salary in November, or subsequently, would be entitled to a refund under that Section

2. It will be most convenient to make this refund by reducing the assessment in such cases on the salary payable in March 1870. The assessing Officer will then be able to ascertain the entire salary chargeable during the six months commencing on the first day of October 1869 and the amount of duty at two per cent. thereon. He will thus be able to adjust any excess over that amount by a diminution of the assessment in March, or, if necessary, by a repayment.

3. The second clause of Section 2 is meant to provide for cases in which the assessments are made in December before the assessing Officer was informed of the provisions of the new Act.

4. The same remarks apply to annuities and pensions assessable under Part II.

5. The Collector should at once bring to the notice of the proper Officer of every Company assessable under Part III. that such Company is liable to a further duty equal to half the amount to which it was liable under that Part, and that this further duty is payable on the 1st December 1869.

6. Wherever a notice has been already served under Part IV., Section 16, the Collector will, under Section 6 of the new Act, serve a supplementary notice in the following form :—

Supplementary notice under Section 6, Act XXIII. of 1869.

No.
To Date

Whereas you were served with a notice under Section 16 of the Indian Income Tax Act requiring you to pay Rs. , you are hereby required to take notice that under Section 5 of Act XXIII. of 1869, you are liable to a further duty of Rs. , payable within 15 days of the service of the present notice. A receipt will be granted at (place) on (time) by (name of officer) to whom payment should be made.

(Collector's Signature.)

7. If a notice has not been already served on any person liable under Part IV. of the Indian Income Tax Act, the form of notice prescribed in the Resolution of the 24th March last will be used, care being taken to enter the enhanced amount in the 5th column of that form.

8. The form of receipt prescribed in the above quoted Resolution requires no alteration; but if in any case a receipt has already been granted, the term 'supplementary receipt' should be used.

9. A register of supplementary notices should be kept in the following form:—

Register of Supplementary notices under Section 6 of Act XXIII. of 1869.

Number of supplementary notice, with date of service.	Number of original notice.	Name of person assessed, with name of trustee or agent, if any.	Amount of additional duty.	Amount of fine under Section 25 of Act IX. of 1869 in respect of additional duty.	Date of payment of additional duty or fine, with number of receipt.
1	2	3	4	5	6

ORDERED, that the above Resolution be published for general information in the Gazette of India, and communicated to the several Departments, Governments, and Administrations, and to the several Accountants-General and Deputy Accountants-General in independent charge, for information and guidance.

Also to the Comptroller-General of Accounts for information and guidance.

D.—CONCLUSION AND SUMMARY

Measures, legal and sanitary, adopted by European countries to oppose the introduction and spread of cattle plague considered in relation to the circumstances of cattle disease as prevailing in India.

Preliminary considerations.

A.—BEFORE proceeding to discuss the particular legal and sanitary expedients adopted in Europe to guard against the invasion and spread of infectious cattle diseases, there are one or two preliminary considerations which have a most important bearing on the whole subject to be noticed.

Diseases spontaneously developed in, or imported into an area?

I.—Are the diseases, against whose ravages it is sought to protect cattle, capable of spontaneous development in, or always imported into the country, province, district, or locality? If the diseases are produced by circumstances permanently abiding in, or apt occasionally to arise in any area of country, from whatever cause, the problem of protecting cattle residing within that area from their influence is entirely different and distinct from the question of preventing the importation of these diseases into the area. In the one case the question is,—what circumstances or causes prevail or arise in the area to give origin to disease? In the other case,—by what methods is disease apt to be introduced into the area? The difficulty of the first question is infinitely greater than that of the second. It is in fact an inquiry into the primary or immediate origin of the diseased conditions under consideration.

Greater difficulty of dealing with an indigenous disease.

We can, for example, in most cases easily ascertain how small-pox, measles or scarletina are imported into a locality or household, but it were a very different matter if the idea of importation became, from any cause impossible, to ascertain the local causes of an outbreak. It is comparatively easy—a matter of mere care and detail—to exclude an importable malady, when all the possible means of importability are known; it is utterly impossible until all the conditions of the development of an indigenous or endemic malady are known, to prevent its occurrence.

EUROPE.

Origin of "rinderpest" in the Steppes of Russia.

Imported into every other country of Europe.

Regulations framed on the belief of invariable importation.

Now with reference to Europe, universal testimony and scientific research have established that the "rinderpest" is indigenous to, or at the least always prevailing in a limited area, namely, the Steppes of Russia, and it is unhesitatingly declared by every other country in Europe that this formidable and fatal disease is not capable of spontaneous generation in their territories; but when it appears is always due to importation. The specific routes and means of importation are laid down, and instances of importation are abundant. Indeed, it is laid down as a preface to all regulation, as an indisputable principle of legislation on the subject—by all European countries except Russia—that it is only by importation and by no other means the disease can arise, and even when the precise means of importation remain undiscovered, as in the case of England in 1865, this is rather attributed to a failure in the attempt to trace the evidence of importation than to the possibility of the disease arising in any other way. All the laws and regulations of European countries proceed upon this axiom, and both reason and experience show that if the disease, when once imported, can be promptly and completely stamped out, there is nothing further to fear.

Austrian regulations.

The preamble to the Austrian regulations distinctly states that the objects to be attained are:—

1.—To prevent the plague from being introduced from the land of its home, and

2.—To destroy the imported plague as quickly as possible, by destroying all the "vehicles and organs of the contagion."

INDIA.

Importation doubtful.

Cattle plague probably enzootic.

In India we have not, unfortunately, a fundamental principle of this sort, clear and precise, to proceed upon. On the contrary, all is vague and dark. We know not, and we can never ascertain, whether our plagues were in the first instance imported or not. All we know is that they spring up and ravage from time to time here and there. There is positively no evidence, and I can't see or conceive the possibility of obtaining any, to show whence and how these plagues arose. My own impression, derived from a close study of all that has hitherto come to light on the subject, is, that these diseases are enzootic in this country, spontaneously generated by conditions inherent in the soil and climate, and not owing to importation from without, that in fact we are in the position of the Steppes, and have these diseases as permanent residents in the country.

Permanently resident in the country

We are seldom or never free of them. Year by year they break out, sometimes here and sometimes there. Whether originally of foreign origin or not they have now established a firm hold; and if not universal within the area of Hindustan are nearly so, inasmuch as if we take a certain series of years, few places will not have been visited by them.

Greater difficulty in dealing with it in consequence.

Our position is, thus, one of much greater difficulty than that of any European country, not even excepting Russia, for the greater part of that country is similarly circumstanced as regards rinderpest to other countries of Europe.

Information imperfect.

In place of a single all-important leading principle of action there is doubt, imperfect information, and positive ignorance. Knowledge, thought and experience have been accumulating on the subject in European countries since the beginning of the 18th century; in this country the subject has been overlooked till within the last few years, and I think I can safely aver that no single outbreak has been thoroughly and exhaustively investigated from its beginning to its termination. It is of the utmost importance to know what the precise nature of the disease has been and the precise loss of cattle; but for purposes of sanitary legislation the origin and progress of the disease—its precise and minute history of rise and spread from beginning to end—are far more important desiderata.

Narratives of outbreaks a desideratum.

Necessary for directing preventive measures.

Natural history of plagues imperfectly known.

This can only be obtained by special investigation, and can only be exhibited by a detailed narrative of the particular outbreak from beginning to end. Such narratives are absolutely necessary in order to furnish clear evidence of the behaviour of the disease as an epizootic on which to found preventive action. In Europe, as I shall show, preventive action has completely superseded medicinal appliances, and has in numerous instances proved successful. In this country, though from the scraps of information obtained from various quarters, certain leading facts have been made out, the natural history of plagues has not been studied with that particularity or detail which is absolutely necessary to render it a basis for action which may interfere with personal liberty or private as opposed to common interests.

Two facts well determined.

Two facts, however, of exceptional importance stand out prominently among a host of conjectural or unproved assertions. They are:—

Occasional invasion of a particular locality.

1st.—That a particular area of country, be it a province, district, sub-division or pergunnah, is only attacked or invaded occasionally; that is, that although these diseases are apparently permanent in the country, they are not permanent in any particular segment of it.

Diseases contagious.

2nd.—That the diseases are contagious and infectious.

The problem of prevention stated.

I have elsewhere adduced satisfactory proofs of these statements, but it is still unascertained in what manner these diseases, universally believed to be contagious, effect their entrance into a sound locality, and how they spread in it. These points can only be determined by closely watching and following up the disease: but, given an infectious disease or diseases, and a series of areas in which they do not reside permanently, the problem of prevention and limitation is placed on a more promising footing, and the object to be accomplished becomes clear, namely, to prevent the invasion of a sound area by a highly contagious disease. The measures by which this object is to be attained will then depend upon the circumstances of the country, its inhabitants, and cattle. This leads me to the second consideration which I would dwell shortly upon.

Purposes for which cattle are used, and their life and treatment as affecting—

Liability to disease and the laws to prevent these.

EUROPE.

1. Used principally for food.
2. For dairy products.
3. For draught and burden.

II.—The purposes for which cattle are employed, and the manner in which they are bought and sold, housed, grazed, herded, moved about and fed, in the fulfilment of these purposes, are most important considerations as affecting, 1st, the modes in which they may contract contagious diseases; and, 2nd, the laws or rules which may be imposed to prevent or limit that result. Here again, between Europe and India, there is a most fundamental difference. In Europe cattle are used primarily for food. Subordinate to this is the use of their skins, horns, tallow, &c. Next in importance is their use as givers of milk and the various dairy products derived from it; and 3rdly, in some countries they are used as beasts of draught and burden.

Using cattle for food implies—

1. Constant slaughter.
2. Breeding.

The use of cattle for food involves—

1.—A constant destruction of them, the number destroyed depending upon the number of consumers.

2.—A systematic breeding for the purpose of supplying the constant demand.

Herding.

Association.

This necessitates herding on a certain area, for the greater number that can be produced on a certain area the more profitable. It also involves association and contact which, however, need not extend beyond the single area or farm. It is easy to see how this particular condition favors the spread of infectious disease.

Fattening.
Movement.
Markets.

3. Fattening.—Most commonly the farm on which breeding is most extensively conducted does not supply sufficient provender for fattening. Accordingly cattle are transferred from one farm to another, and from one proprietor to another for this purpose. This takes place through the medium of lean stock markets. Cattle here come from different points are associated closely for a time and then dispersed to other places. This is a most potent means of spreading infectious disease.

Conveyance.
Markets.
Means by which infectious disease may be spread.
Products.

4. Conveyance from the place of breeding or fattening to the place of consumption. This again involves change or changes of owners, market or markets (fat stock markets) mixing, dispersing and association. No better means could be devised for spreading infectious disease than the series of changes forming and splitting up of flocks, herding, driving, and markets, which occur as cattle pass between the breeder and butcher; and even here the danger does not end, for after slaughter and quartering there remain the skins, horns, and offal which may contain the germ of infection and which are subject to sundry changes of hands and place.

Importation.
Markets, &c.
Importation of products.

5. If the supply of any district or country is not equal to the demand, then importation becomes necessary; with it markets, changes of owner, &c., &c. Thus disease is brought into a country and dispersed in it. Moreover, for particular industries importation of products may be necessary, affording another channel for importation of disease.

Modes of conveyance may spread infection.

The circumstances above detailed not only facilitate contact of cattle and so conduce to the spread of disease, but the very means and paths of conveyance impart additional complications, and conveyance by sea, rail and road, through pastures, commons, bye-ways and streets may become the means of sowing disease broadcast over a large area by means of contaminated discharges and dejections.

Dairy use implies herding.
Stabling.
Commerce.

The use of cattle for dairy products involves (1) herding and the use of common pasturage; (2) stabling, more particularly in towns. In this latter case overcrowding and sundry unsanitary conditions may prevail; (3) buying and selling, importing and exporting. These afford facilities for the spread of disease but in a much less degree than the use of cattle for food. The use of cattle for draught and burden involves—

Draught use implies movement, association, buying and selling.

1. Movement from place to place,
2. Association and dissociation,
3. Buying and selling to a still more limited extent.

Use of cattle for food facilitates spread of disease more than any other cause.

The principal interest to man and the principal modes of extending infectious disease, attach then to the use of cattle for food, and this it is that in Europe at once stimulates—

1. The great traffic in cattle,
2. The easy spread of disease,
3. The stringent regulations to prevent the advent and spread of disease into any territory.

INDIA, contrasted with Europe.
Cattle used for draught and burden.
Dairy.
Food.
Products.

India presents us with an exact contrast to the state of matters in Europe. Here the uses to which cattle are put, are in order of importance:—

1. Draught for agricultural purposes.
2. Draught and burden for purposes of conveyance.
3. Milk and dairy products, butter, dubee, and ghee.
4. Human food.
5. The only products used are (a) the skins for leather, (b) the dung for cooking and lepoing.

Information sketchy.

I shall touch on these in their order; but it is obvious that the more exact and exhaustive the information on these heads, the greater the power in prescribing sanitary and preventive measures. The information I possess has been cursorily and incidentally obtained, and is subject to correction; but I could not too strongly urge the necessity of a systematic enquiry into the conditions of existence and treatment of cattle, as a necessary preliminary to any action in the matter.

Employment in agriculture.

1. The use of cattle for agricultural purposes involves them in conditions which vary with—

(a) The character of the country, dry or wet, inundated or the reverse,
(b.) The kind of crops cultivated, and
(c.) The season of the year.

No systematic slaughter.
Demand for cattle less.
Village system.
Promiscuous communication.

It is obvious in the first place that there is no systematic destruction, nor any loss beyond that caused by wear and tear and disease. Demand for new stock will therefore vary with the loss from these causes, and can seldom and never habitually equal the demand when animals are systematically destroyed for food. Supply, which means breeding, movement, markets, importation, &c., will therefore be less. If, however, the traffic in cattle is necessarily less, the village system which obtains all over the country affords a means of promiscuous and universal communication among cattle.

Communication perfectly free.

During the rains.

Sending cattle for pasture in herds.

The cattle of one village are always herded and pastured together though housed separately. Where large maidans exist between several villages, the herds of these constantly come into contact. During the cultivating and gathering seasons (spring and harvest) the cattle are driven along the same roads and paths, and meet in the same fields and bheels. Communication is absolutely unimpeded and even more so than in Europe, where separate farms impose a sort of isolation. The only isolation existing in India is in inundated districts and tracts during the rains, when every village is an island, and cattle are either housed and fed on rice straw, or pastured in herds on some pasturage which happens to be above water. A practice prevails in some places of herding the cattle of one or several villages and sending them for pasture to some distance when work is not urgent. In other cases the farm of a village or family may be at some considerable distance from the baree or home, and at sowing and reaping times the cattle are driven thither and housed together in considerable numbers.

Hâts.

All the buying and selling is done in the hâts so numerous all over the country. Cattle are driven to them without rule or restriction, and may be sent to half a dozen different hâts, or the same over and over again until they are bought.

Disposal of carcasses.

When cattle die they are thrown into a stream, khall or river or upon the open plain. The hide and horns may or may not be removed by moochies, but the carcass becomes a prey to crows, vultures, jackals, and dogs. It is of importance to note that crows and dogs may come in contact with living cattle. Crows frequently settle on live cows and pick their nostrils, ears or tail.

Disease may easily spread and restriction is a matter of difficulty.

The foregoing imperfect sketch of the circumstances under which cattle exist in agricultural districts will illustrate sufficiently—

1st.—The enormous facilities for the spread of infectious diseases; and 2nd.—The difficulties to be overcome in prescribing sanitary restrictions.

Use for burden implies

Movement.

Contact.

2. The use of cattle for burden involves—

1st,—Constant movement and change of place.

2nd.—Various and incessant contact with other cattle.

I need not enlarge on this head, for the facilities which the use of cattle for draught and burden, (and in this country they are almost the only beasts of burden) afford for the importation and spread of disease are sufficiently obvious.

Dairy use.

Herding.

Housing.

3. The use of cattle for dairy purposes involves in most cases—

1st.—Herding and common pasturages.

2nd.—Housing in considerable numbers; both these conduce to spread disease.

Use for food.

Cattle droves.

4. Cattle are only used for food on a large scale in Calcutta, and places where European troops reside.

The animals are recruited from a wide area by agents or drovers, collected into herds driven along roads, and finally sold to the commissariat and to butchers.

Disease by this means may be scattered far and wide.

Hides.

5. The trade in hides is mainly conducted by moochies, and unless the skin is destroyed by some eruptive disease, it matters not whether the animal have died of infectious disease or not. This unrestricted trade in hides may spread the disease.

Dung.

Lastly, cow manure which is believed in cases of cattle plague to contain the contagious principle,—whatever that may be—is, in this country, collected, caked, dried on the walls of houses, and applied to the floors once a day or oftener.

Importance of cattle as food producers.

If in Europe the importance of cattle as an article of food compels the attention of rulers to their diseases and the prevention of them, in this country their importance as the only available means of growing food and conveying agricultural and other products gives this subject a still greater claim to the attention and concern of Government.

Habits, interests, and prejudices of population.

III.—The habits, interests, and even prejudices of a population are important considerations in coming to a conclusion as to imposing restrictions which may interfere with either. This is a general principle which I need not illustrate, and only state here for the sake of completeness.

Difficulty of the matter of restriction.

The foregoing heads comprise all the conditions which govern the problem of checking the origin and spread of cattle plague. A thorough knowledge and due weighing of all the points which they include is necessary to come to a just conclusion. In this country nearly all the labour upon which the life and prosperity of the natives depend is performed by means of cattle, and it is a matter of the greatest difficulty to adjust the balance between on one side the evils caused by diseases, and good to be obtained by restrictive measures, and on the other the evils which may be caused by what interferes with habits, prejudices, private interests, nay, the very means of bare subsistence of the natives, so that the greatest good may ensue.

The greatest good.

The greatest good in this case to be expected is—the greatest possible diminution of the evils of cattle plagues, with the least possible interference with the private interests and industrial pursuits of the people.

Measures employed in Europe.

B.—I shall now proceed to examine in detail the various sanitary expedients which European nations have adopted to thwart the invasion and spread of cattle diseases, considering in succession the applicability of each to India.

Measures to prevent entry into a country.

Do not apply to India.

I.—The measures adopted to prevent entry into the country are.—(1) Quarantine, and (2) inspection. These measures are applicable only to an area of country in which the disease does not permanently reside. They do not therefore apply to India as a whole, because there is every reason to believe that these diseases do permanently reside within its boundaries.

Until we know more of the precise place of origin and laws of progress of these diseases it is impossible to say whether particular areas, districts, or provinces might be preserved by interrupting the progress of an invading disease.

Europe

In Europe the data are clear. Plague is bred in the east and south-east, and marches with the tide of commerce or war north, south, and west. It is simply a question of special arrangements, special establishments, artificial hinderances to importation and intercourse, until by means of careful inspection the absence of disease has been ascertained, and by permitting time for its development, proved.

Quarantine in Germany.

Importation.

Inspection.

Foreign cattle markets.

The quarantine rules of Austria and Prussia are very precise and strict. They vary however with the actual absence or presence of neighbouring disease. In the latter case, precautions are redoubled and the period of detention of cattle on the frontier lengthened. In great emergencies importation of cattle or products is altogether prohibited, as in France and Belgium in 1866, and into Ireland and Lewis in 1865. England possesses a natural barrier in the German Ocean, and careful inspection at the ports of embarkation and debarkation with powers of preventing either, or ordering the slaughter of cattle are principally relied on. Slaughter of cattle at the port of debarkation and special foreign cattle markets have been proposed to the same end. It is obvious that all depend on the perfection of the means employed both in power and application.

Quarantine not applicable to this country.

In India a habitual quarantine system is not indicated nor indeed practicable, and so innumerable are the paths and channels of communication that habitual inspection is equally impossible.

No line can be drawn.

Nothing has as yet appeared in the history of these diseases to show where, over the whole country, a line can be drawn, and until a definite place or places of origin can be shown or a definite line or lines of travel, the idea of quarantine is simply absurd.

Measures adopted on appearance of disease.

II.—Measures adopted when the disease has appeared, but not spread widely.

Giving notice—importance.

By owner or attendant of cattle to police or civil authorities.

Penalties.

1. Giving notice.—This is a matter of primary importance, and absolutely necessary when it is the duty of the executive to adopt certain measures. It is still more important when these measures are found by experience to be more efficacious when the disease first appears, the cases are comparatively few and the infected area limited. The notice is to be given by the proprietor of the cattle, or by the attendant or conductor to the police or civil authority of the commune or district. Severe penalties are in most countries of Europe attached to the neglect of this all important step.

Causes of neglect.

Circumstances under which notice should be given.

Rule in Prussia.

In ordinary circumstances.

When plague rages.

The area and authorities.

Neglecting to give notice to district authorities might arise from (1) simple negligence, (2) designed concealment in order that an owner might sell his cattle, or to avoid the trouble and worry of restriction and special arrangements. These motives are of the selfish kind which prompt men to consider their own individual interests before the public weal. The precise nature of the "duty of giving notice" will vary with (1) the circumstances under which notice is expected to be given. It is obviously out of the question to expect that, at any rate in this country, every case of sickness or death amongst cattle should become the subject of formal report. In most countries the matter is left to the intelligence of the inhabitants who, under penalty which may attach to their neglect of reporting the existence of "the plague", are left to judge of what may appear "suspicious attacks." In Prussia the matter is more rigidly defined. "It is considered suspicious if at any place two beasts died within fourteen days out of a stock of about fifty head, or three or more out of a larger stock." When the plague is known to rage in a neighbouring country or district notice of the "smallest trace of sickness" is enjoined. In ordinary circumstances the occurrence of suspiciously numerous cases of sickness or death would justify or suggest giving information: when the plague rages, one case of sickness or death would be sufficient warrant for notice. (2.) The area and corresponding civil authorities within and to which notice is to be given.

Report in ordinary circumstances.

Saxony.

Austria.

Russia.

In ordinary circumstances the police divisions of a country and the corresponding executive authorities naturally point to the limits and direction within which and to whom notice, information, or report should proceed. Most countries direct notice to be given to the police or Magistrate of a district. In Saxony notice goes to the Pest Commissioner, in Austria to the Cattle Plague Commission; while in Russia information is to be given to the heads of villages, through them to the rural police who transmit to the superior local authorities.

Report in extraordinary circumstances.

England.

In extraordinary circumstances the country may be divided as in Austria into cattle plague districts or special areas with corresponding special officials to whom notice is to be given. In England the duty of giving notice is left to the sense of the people, and the veterinary surgeon or special inspector will be the first to obtain it, thence the information proceeds to the civil authorities (Magistrates) or to the Privy Council.

The purpose of giving notice.

Obstacles to receiving early notice.

(3.) The end to which the giving of notice contributes. Whatever that end may be, whether (a) for mere information, (b) for ordering investigation, (c) for appointing special agencies or arrangements for treating the sick cattle or exterminating the disease, the importance of obtaining the earliest information cannot be overrated. In this country, most commonly the disease has gained complete possession of a district or sub-division, or is actually on the decline before the civil authorities are aware of its existence, and I am satisfied that many an outbreak occurs which is not heard of at all It is thus impossible to trace the rise and progress of the disease, or to bring special investigation or treatment to bear upon it until it has acquired such a hold of a large area that it is next to impossible either to find out whence it came and how it proceeded, or to extinguish it or limit its progress. In Veterinary Surgeon Thacker's reports on the murrain of Madras, several instances occur of his being informed of a disease among cattle in a certain locality, and finding on proceeding there that it had passed away! Many obstacles exist to receiving early notice of outbreaks in this country, principal among them :—1.—the apathy, suspicion, and prejudice of the people : 2.—the absence of that governmental or police discipline which exists in countries of the continent of Europe : 3.—the small number of civil officers compared with the vast population : 4.—the large areas of districts : 5.—the want of public feeling as opposed to private selfishness on the part of landholders.

Early information particularly necessary in India.

Channels of information.

If any thing to be learnt or done with reference to cattle plague, and in this country the plan of action remains to be determined on the basis of the behaviour and nature of the disease, early information is a sine qua non. The channel of information would be :—1.—the heads of villages or zemindarees : 2.—the Police : 3.—the Magistrate.

Inspection.

A voluntary seeking of information.

Coupled with authority to act.

2. Inspection.—This involves a special skilled agency, and whereas the last paragraph described a spontaneous system of information proceeding through the ordinary paths of official communication, or received by a special individual or department, this contemplates a definite means of seeking for information. The latter may or may not be associated with the power of ordering measures either already laid down by law or devised to meet circumstances as they arise.

England.

Inspection the principal agency employed.

In England inspection vested with powers defined by Act of Parliament and orders in Council is the chief means employed against the cattle plague. Inspectors appointed by the clerk of the Council for the Metropolitan police district, by the justices for petty sessional divisions, mayors of boroughs, &c., are entrusted with powers of visiting, inspecting, killing, disinfecting, secluding, &c. These inspectors are in most cases Veterinary Surgeons.

Prussia.

Inspector of sick and sound separately employed.

In Prussia an inspector of sound cattle and a superintendent of sick cattle are appointed, who, under the direction of the civil authorities, examine cattle sound and sick and carry out the laws and regulations defined by Government.

Austria.

Inspectors.

Guards.

In Austria local inspectors are appointed for examining herds, issuing passports, examining cattle, granting certificates, and in addition "guards" are entertained for carrying out quarantine and other sanitary regulations.

France and Belguim.

In France and Belgium inspection is performed by the police assisted by Veterinary Surgeons.

Russia.

In Russia, also, the police and Veterinary Surgeons are associated in the duty of inspection.

Saxony.

In Saxony the police and Pest Commissioner or Commissioners are the active agents in investigating disease and applying remedies.

Special skilled agency employed in all countries.

In every country special skilled agency is thus recognised and employed for the twofold purpose of investigating diseases and directing the application of remedial measures.

According to circumstances.

Must be competent men.

Vested with powers or able to command authority.

Increased when disease increases.

These are the two main objects of special skilled agency, and the amount of such agency will depend on the circumstances of the country or time. It is evident in the first place that the agents must be competent, that they should possess a sufficient knowledge of cattle diseases and their treatment, so as to be able satisfactorily to investigate and describe the one and apply the other: 2ndly.—that they should be vested with certain defined powers of interference, or better perhaps, should as skilled advisers, be able to command and put in motion the ordinary civil authorities; and 3rdly.—that when disease abounds their number should be increased.

Special agency necessary in India.

Reasons.

In this country, except the employment of one Veterinary Surgeon for a presidency or province, nothing in this direction has yet been done: yet seeing that little can be expected from the intelligence or public feeling of the inhabitants, and that already existing establishments have duties enough and to spare assigned to them, special agency is peculiarly indicated.

Skilled men not to be had.

One man insufficient for a large area.

Natives must be educated.

Proposal of Veterinary Surgeon Farell.

If anything is to be systematically learned or done with reference to cattle diseases, the whole time and attention of qualified men is needed, and as yet such men cannot be found. The experience of Madras proves that one man's services are utterly inadequate to the demands of an extensive area. All other countries have their Veterinary Surgeons: in this there is no native who has the smallest pretension to a scientific knowledge of the diseases of cattle, and European Veterinary Surgeons are few and their services expensive. The proposal of Veterinary Surgeon Farrell, which has to a certain extent received the practical sanction of Government, to have natives properly instructed in veterinary medicine is therefore a necessary preliminary to any step in the direction of bringing skilled agency to bear on the investigation or management of these diseases.

Experience of England.

Notice.

Information.

The experience of England shows:—1st, that the earliest notice of the existence of the plague came through Veterinary Surgeons in communication with a special department, 2nd, that the most reliable information of its progress, peculiarities and spread

Disastrous consequence of inefficiency.

Suitable agents must be first obtained.

was obtained by the same means; and 3*rd*, that the incompetence of many of the men appointed, for the demand exceeded the supply, was a most potent hinderance to efficient dealing with the plague. While, therefore, the considerations I have adduced above would strongly point to the advantages of special agency, the absence of suitable agents is the first thing to be taken into account, and until such exist the ordinary executive police agencies in existence must be employed, assisted by any medical advice which Civil Surgeons or native doctors can give.

Human and veterinary practice associated in Austria.

Instructing native doctors in veterinary medicine suggested.

In Austria both human and veterinary medicine are learnt and practised by the same individuals, and it is worth considering whether our native doctors might not obtain in addition to what they are already taught a sufficient amount of instruction in the diseases of domestic animals to render them capable of employment in cases of emergency, and until a special veterinary department exists, the medical department might, as it has to a certain extent already done in the person of Civil Surgeons, direct investigations, receive and compile reports, and generally fulfil the functions performed by Pest Commissioners in other countries.

Provisional separation.

3. Provisional separation of cattle.—This measure is adopted previous to the formal examination and identification of the disease, and consists in carefully keeping sick cattle separate from sound.

Prussia.

In Prussia the duty is minutely defined. The suspiciously sick are forthwith to be isolated; sound cattle removed and the stable locked up. No beast is to be used for draught or field work..

In other continental countries similar precautions are enjoined.

When the case of sickness is suspicious and the system of isolation is practised and enjoined, this precaution is obviously a most necessary one. It proceeds on the assumption that the disease is infectious, and the seclusion and separation cannot in this case be too complete.

Identification of disease.

Importance.

4. Identification of the disease.—It is plainly of the highest importance, as soon as possible, to determine what the disease is, as on this will depend the ordering or not of future measures.

Conducted by Civil Authorities and Veterinary Surgeon.

Dissection.

Skilled observer required.

Instruction of officials and population.

Accordingly in continental countries the civil authority or authorities to whom notice is given are enjoined to associate with themselves a veterinary surgeon and to proceed to the spot to acquaint themselves with the exact state of matters. Not only must the sick animals be carefully examined but any animal that has died is directed to be examined, and in Saxony and Austria a diseased animal may be killed for that purpose or disinterred as in Russia. For identification a skilled observer is obviously required, and the sooner it is done the better. In this country this duty will ordinarily, in the absence of other skilled advice, fall to the Civil Surgeon. In order to assist in this important duty, it is highly desirable to diffuse among officials and population, a sufficient amount of information as to the nature and features of infectious or epizootic cattle diseases to enable them to identify these, and to distinguish what is harmless from what is dangerous as regards other cattle.

In European countries.

In this country.

This is done by concise descriptions appended to most of the instructions issued by European Governments. In this country all that could be done in the circumstances has been already done in the way of disseminating information, and there should be no difficulty in recognizing the nature of epizootics. The instruction of the population in this matter will also materially contribute to stimulate attention and prompt the giving of notice.

Proclamation and report.
Warn inhabitants.
Acquaint authorities.
Warn neighbouring districts.

5. Proclamation and report.—The disease identified, the next step is to (1) apprise all the inhabitants of the district of its existence; (2) acquaint the higher authorities; and (3) either directly or indirectly warn neighbouring districts.

Special agency.

When special agencies exist, their attention and services are now put in request.

Isolation of sick and separation of healthy.

Healthy removed.

6. Isolation of sick and separation of healthy.—Immediate separation of sick and healthy is the first measure enjoined. In most cases the sick are left in their stables, and the healthy removed elsewhere This is the rational proceeding, and should be repeated as often as sickness re-appears. The disposal of the sick will depend on the rules in force or the will of the Inspector,

Disposal of sick.
Separation must be complete.
Splitting up herds.
Difficulty of common pastures.
Removing sick objectionable.

Commissioner or Commission, or responsible authority. The separation of the healthy must be complete—separate stables, separate pastures, separate attendants—and, if the herds are large, it is found convenient and useful to split them up into sections completely separate from each other. In a country divided into farms this proceeding is comparatively easy; but where, as in this country, there is a community of pastures, &c., separation must be a more difficult matter. In this case the people must combine to carry out the idea of seclusion of sick and separation of sound cattle. The precise means can only be indicated by one ascertaining the circumstances of the case on the spot. Removing the sick and leaving the sound in their old stables and pastures has been advised and practised, but it only subjects the sound to any contagious influences which may reside in the locality or may have proceeded from the sick.

The distance to which the sound are removed will depend on the space at disposal, but the greater it is the better; in Prussia quarantine stables are ordered, to which suspicious cases are sent.

Isolation of infected areas.
Sanitary cordons.
All communication suspended.
A very effectual measure.
Sacrifices.
Liberty.
Commerce.

7. Isolation of infected areas.—This is done on the continent by means of sanitary cordons, circles of observation and restriction drawn round infected areas by means of guards, police—military or special—by which all communication except what is absolutely necessary is interrupted. If this system is possible, and thoroughly carried out until the disease has spent itself in the locality or been otherwise stamped out, nothing can be more effectual, but the sacrifices involved are most serious. Personal liberty is compromised and commerce impeded, because no individual nor article can be allowed to go out of the area nor any thing received into it, except what has been deposited by one set of persons and received independently by another. Even clergy, medical men, and midwives must change their clothes and disinfect in passing or re-passing the circle.

Impracticable in India.

Without entering into a discussion, I have no hesitation in saying that this system is perfectly impracticable in this country.

Census of cattle, with occasional inspection.
Austria.
Census of neighbouring districts.

8. A census of cattle is a part of the cordon system and occasional inspection to ascertain that no beast has been removed. In Austria the process of making the census is minutely laid down, so as to prevent conveyance of infection from sick to sound; and the census of neighbouring districts is also to be made, so as more efficiently to control the movements of cattle.

Stopping markets and cattle movement.
Recommended by English Cattle Plague Commissioners.
Applicable to India.

9. Stopping of markets and all movements of cattle within infected area.—This measure is a part of the cordon system on the Continent and in England, is left optional with the magistrates of counties in session. It constitutes the principal recommendation of the Cattle Plague Commissioners, after taking minute evidence on the subject from all persons concerned. When cattle are used for food, it is obviously a more severe measure than when they are used for draught or agriculture. I can see no difficulty in prescribing a measure of this sort in this country, prohibiting the driving of cattle to hâts within an infected area during the prevalence of cattle plague.

Purchase of cattle.

If agricultural operations are not in progress, there can be no immediate need for purchasing; and if agricultural operations are in progress, the purchase of cattle to supplant those which die might be managed by a special agency under precautions.

Stopping movement of gharries.
Difficulty.
Precautions.
Commissariat supply.

Stopping the movements of gharries, in other words the conveyance of produce, is a more serious consideration. If boat conveyance is possible, the difficulty is less, or vanishes. But otherwise, it becomes a matter of serious doubt, whether movements of draught cattle can be, under any circumstances, prohibited in India without prejudicing the interests of the people to an extent not compensated by the saving of cattle effected. In times of severe disease however, the routes of movement, the housing of moving cattle, &c., might be so ordered as to minimise the risk of conveying disease. It is also worthy of consideration whether exportation for the purpose of Commissariat supply should not be prohibited from infected areas.

Defining the infected area.
Germany.

For the purpose of this and other measures, it is of primary importance to define the infected area. In Germany it is accurately laid down—a radius of three German miles from the centre of infection. The accuracy of definition will obviously depend on the accuracy of information, and the infected area should at the least contain all the seats or centres of disease. If the area coincides with the ordinary police divisions it simplifies the matter considerably; but the disease may prevail over portions of two adjacent pergunnahs or districts, in which case a special definition will be necessary.

Slaughter, rationale.

Efficiency of this measure.

Object.

Austria.

10. Slaughter.—The rationale of this measure is, that by destroying all the sick and suspicious cattle the contagium or contagious principle of the disease may be summarily got rid of. It is the sharpest, and, in certain circumstances, the most efficient arrow in the quiver of remedial measures. Its object is by the voluntary sacrifice of a few beasts to save a district, province, or country, from being universally seized on by the plague. The laws of some countries are very pronounced. The Austrian regulations put the matter in a clear and sensible light.

Circumstances in which slaughter is advisable.

Prussia.

Saxony, France, and Belgium.

"The efficient means of quickly annihilating the plague in a locality are various, according to the greater or lesser spread of the malady at the time of its first appearance. If the result of the recent census of live-stock shews that only a few cases have sickened with the malady in the place whence no further spread abroad is to be apprehended, and that consequently the plague may be expected to cease there by removing quickly the diseased and suspected beasts from the place, and proper cleansing of the stables, then it will be expedient to kill all such beasts, or, as the saying is, to "use the club." Prussia says:—"It is especially of the utmost importance, and is most sure to contribute to the prompt extinction of the plague, that every beast attacked at the very commencement of the malady be forthwith killed, and put away, without taking too much trouble in examination in the quarantine stables." Saxony, France, and Belgium, proceed on similar principles.

England.

In England Inspectors are empowered to "enter and inspect all premises within their district in which any animal (including neat cattle, sheep, goats, and swine,) may be found, to seize, slaughter, and bury animals diseased, and to disinfect the premises, and to order the separation of animals suspected of being diseased."

From these extracts the circumstances under which slaughter is either necessary or desirable will be easily seen.

Disease must be infectious.

1. The disease must be an infectious disease, not developed in the locality nor due to conditions permanently, or even temporarily resident there.

Area must be limited.

2. The area infected must be limited, and the number of animals affected (sick) or which have come in contact with these (suspected) few.

Sick and suspected must be killed.

3. All the animals capable of imparting infection (sick and suspected) must be slaughtered.

Hides, horns, &c., must be destroyed.

4. All other means by which infection may be spread (hides, horns, offal, dung, litter, fodder, halters, stables, &c.,) must be destroyed or disinfected.

Other measures simultaneously adopted.

5. All other means (isolation, separation of sound cattle, &c.,) for preventing the spread of infection must be simultaneously employed.

Circumstances in which killing is of no use.

By the observance of all these precautions the contagium may, and often has been destroyed, and a large loss of cattle saved. After the disease has extensively spread, and numerous centres of a large area have been developed, destruction of cattle becomes a measure of extremely doubtful propriety.

Value of recovered cattle.

Even in Austria this is admitted, and in Aberdeenshire in 1865 this measure was unsparingly adopted, with no satisfactory result. In the Netherlands an official report states that slaughtering will not always be sufficient to eradicate the disease, as by this means no recovered animals, whose value, as not liable to a second attack, is so much greater, remain; killing is, however, recommended when the disease first appears, and cases are few.

Russia. Bavaria.

In Russia, Bavaria, and districts where cattle plague is habitually or frequently present, killing is not practised.

Dead meat markets.

Where cattle are used for food, and means of rapid conveyance are available, killing can be more extensively practised without loss, by establishing a system of dead meat markets.

Killing not advisable in India.

Looking to the circumstances of this country, and the uncertainty as to the origin of the disease, killing, as a measure for general or even occasional adoption, cannot be thought of.

Perhaps, when the behaviour of the disease has been better ascertained, killing may be practised when its appearance at a new centre can be promptly ascertained.

Burial.

11. Burial.—This is prescribed in the regulations of every country.

Subjects to be buried.

(a.) The subjects to be buried are all cattle dying of the plague and the sick slaughtered. The suspected are permitted to be used as butcher meat under certain precautions.

Place.

(b.) The place of burial is specially pointed out in the Prussian regulations. It is to be a piece of waste land, far removed from cattle and human habitations, and, if possible, adjoining the quarantine stables. A piece of land may be taken up for the purpose by the authorities, compensation being afterwards paid to the owner. This place is to be railed in, and not used for any other purpose for two years.

Method.

Conveyance.

(c.) The mode of burial is also fixed. Animals must be conveyed, not dragged, to the place of burial. The conveyance must be drawn by horses. The graves must be at least six feet deep, the carcases are to be covered with quick-lime, the skins slashed, and all the earth removed out of pit put over them.

Persons.

(d.) The persons who bury are not to have any communication whatever with live cattle, and are to be specially retained for that purpose.

This precaution of burying the dead of cattle plague is of the last importance, and should be scrupulously enjoined in this country, where carcases are either thrown into a river or left to be devoured by animals. The contagium in either case is sown broadcast. It is hardly necessary to add, that neither the meat nor produce of diseased cattle should be in any way used.

Disposal of dung.

Buried.

In India.

12. Disposal of dung.—The dung of infected stables is directed to be buried in deep pits. This is a point of great importance, as the dung is believed to contain the contagium of the disease.

It is more difficult to deal with the dung voided on pastures; and in this country, where cow dung is collected and used for plastering walls and floors, the difficulty of avoiding this source of infection is greater. The Austrian regulations direct that the dung of sick animals in transit should be buried.

Confining sick in stables.

If the sick are confined in stables on the earliest appearance of symptoms, the difficulty of disposal of dung is much lessened.

Disposal of fodder, &c.

Burnt.

Pastures.

13. Disposal of fodder and litter.—The discharges escaping from the eyes, nostrils, and mouth, contain the contagium, and infect the straw, &c., in the stables. This should be burnt. When discharges fall on pasture no remedy exists, except to confine the sick and remove the healthy.

Halters.

Burnt or disinfected.

14. Halters and stable gear should either be burnt, if of small value, or disinfected, if more valuable.

Stables.

15. Stables are directed to be carefully disinfected, and kept empty for periods varying from two weeks to two months, in different countries.

Dogs.

16. Dogs are to be tied up, or killed if ownerless.

Poultry.

17. Poultry should be confined, and by no means allowed to frequent stables.

Sheep, goats, &c.

Separated.

18. Sheep, goats, swine, &c., are to be carefully kept apart from diseased cattle, because they are not only capable of taking the cattle plague themselves, but are still more so of conveying the disease from sick cattle to sound.

Duration of restriction.

Three or four weeks after last fatal case.

19. Duration of restrictions.—It is usually considered necessary to continue the foregoing arrangements and restrictions for three or four weeks after the last fatal case.

Conditions under which foregoing measures are effective.

The foregoing measures form items of a complete system, by which it is endeavoured to nip an outbreak of imported disease in the bud. This has repeatedly been done in France and Germany. In order that it may be done, it is necessary (a) that information should be promptly and precisely given; (b) that the measures to be adopted should be exactly laid down; and (c) that the agency by which the measures are to be carried out should be defined and available.

Inoculation and medical treatment.

I have not in the foregoing said anything of inoculation or medical treatment, because neither of these means fall under the scheme of isolating and destroying all the existing contagium. They rather tend to its dissemination.

Proclamation of sanity of area.

Finally, as an infected area should be proclaimed, so its freedom from disease should be officially made known.

Measures adopted when disease has spread.

Surrounding sound localities.

Included sound localities.

III.—Measures adopted when the disease has spread extensively over a country.—Hitherto I have assumed the existence of one or a few centres of infection and a small area; now I contemplate a multiplicity of centres and an extended area. The subject may be looked at in two ways: 1. The infected area may be considered with relation to surrounding healthy places; and 2, included sound areas may be considered with reference to the surrounding infected area.

Export prevented.

1. In order to prevent spread beyond the area, it is necessary to hinder the export of contagious material by cattle, cattle products or other agencies to surrounding healthy localities. The same method, already indicated but on a larger scale, will be necessary; more particularly separation of sound from sick, burial of latter and destruction of contagium in every form, together with as much limitation of the movements of men and cattle as possible.

Objects to be attained within infected area.

2. Within the infected area, three objects are of paramount importance: (a) to save as many sound cattle as possible from infection; (b) to procure the recovery of as many sick as possible; and (c) to get over the disease as quickly as practicable.

Killing improper.

Killing moribund cattle.

By common consent killing is considered improper in such circumstances. If sick and suspected animals are all killed, the destruction of cattle must be enormous, and the prospect of gaining a greater advantage to compensate, namely, immunity of a large area from attack, becomes less in proportion to the extent of the area already infected. The only slaughter at all justifiable in such cases is the slaughter of moribund animals, in order to get rid more quickly of a loathsome, pestilent object.

Strict measures of isolation necessary to save included sound area.

If any village, farm, or section of the infected area, remain healthy, efforts must be redoubled to prevent the entry of contagium. In such circumstances the most strict and severe cordon is appropriate and necessary, coupled with precautionary measures, disinfection, careful feeding, watering, &c., If a river comes from the infected localities, cattle should not be allowed access to it.

Measures to be adopted throughout infected area.

Over the infected area, strict separation of sick and sound, isolation of sick, parcelling out of herds, destruction of contagium and disinfection, are the main points insisted on.

Medical treatment.

Must be associated with other sanitary measures.

Medical treatment now obtains sanction with the object of preserving as many alive as possible; but it should, if possible, be applied in special hospital stables carefully isolated. The function of medical treatment refers to individual cases, and it cannot contribute in the slightest degree to the limitation or prevention of the plague generally. On the contrary, as animals retain during convalescence the power of imparting disease, medical treatment, as a mere sanitary measure, rather tends to spread contagious disease. It is, therefore, either not directed, or positively prohibited, as in Prussia. This truth cannot be too strongly stated, namely, that medical treatment rather favours than hinders the spread of cattle plague, and that its employment must be accompanied with the strictest sanitary precautions.

Inoculation.

Must be associated with sanitary precautions.

Inoculation is also mentioned in the Austrian despatches as a means of getting quickly through an outbreak of disease within a certain area; but as this method multiplies and increases contagium, precautions against the spread of disease beyond the limits of the area must be redoubled.

Importance of early adoption of measures.

When plague spreads extensively over a country, alarm is wont to spread along with it. People are willing to undergo any sacrifice, or endure any restriction to get rid of it. Special agencies are then largely entertained, and expensive measures or establishments initiated or employed. Yet if the simplest precautions or the most trifling sacrifice were adopted or made on the very earliest appearance of an infectious disease, these measures and agencies would be unnecessary. These diseases never attack a whole herd or stable at once. First one falls sick, then several, then the whole flock. If the first one or first several, were carefully segregated, and the sound remainder driven off elsewhere till time and disinfection had done their purifying office, it is hardly possible to conceive that disease could spread over a whole district or province; but in the total absence of all precautions, the wonder is that its prevalence is not even greater than it actually is. Meteorological changes and natural barriers are the principal means as yet available in Bengal to stay these plagues.

Measures adopted when plague is enzootic.

IV.—Measures adopted in countries when the plague is enzootic.

Bessarabia.

The following letter which, from its interest, I transcribe in full, details the measures adopted in Bessarabia when the disease is permanently prevalent.

CONSUL-GENERAL MURRAY TO THE EARL OF CLARENDON.

Odessa, January 8th, 1866.

MY LORD,

Source of information.

THE following important information respecting the cattle plague has been kindly supplied to me, in answer to a series of questions I addressed to Prince Manoakbeg and the principal landowners and cattle breeders of Bessarabia * * * *.

Plague permanent.

Cause and cure unknown.

Disease contagious.

1. The Bessarabian cattle owners and breeders state that the plague during the last few years has been permanent in new Russia. It exists sometimes in one district, sometimes in another of that vast country. Up to the present time nothing is known with certainty of the true cause of the disease, or of the proper means of treatment for its cure. On one point only there exists no doubt, it is certainly contagious.

Treatment futile.

2. No remedies which have been yet tried, neither fumigation, friction, bleeding, nor medicine, have met with enough success to warrant their recommendation. From time to time a few beasts recover, and each person attributes their cure to the remedy he has employed; but general experience has not confirmed such assertions in any case.

Vaccination.

3. One opinion only appears to merit serious attention, and is now under anxious consideration. That opinion is in favour of vaccination, which the imperial Government has undertaken to introduce throughout the infected districts by competent veterinary surgeons employed for that purpose

Time can only decide whether vaccination will afford a sure protection from the disease, but at present it seems to promise more satisfactorily than any thing else which has been tried.

Communication prohibited.

4. Effective means may be taken to restrain the plague from spreading. For this purpose it is advisable, as soon as it is found to exist in any district, that all communication with other places should be strictly prohibited.

Burial of carcases with hides on.

5. Dead animals should be buried as soon as possible, and in no case should it be allowed to skin them previously for their hides. They should be buried in the state they die.

Separate drinking troughs.

6. Great care should be taken not to suffer diseased beasts to drink out of the same troughs as healthy ones.

Separation of sick and healthy.

Removal of healthy.

7. Healthy cattle should be separated at once from the diseased; and immediately any beast falls sick among them, the healthy cattle should be taken away and transferred to other pasturages. By these means large herds have been entirely saved.

Theory of origin.

8. These facts are indisputable; but there is still to be mentioned a probable theory as to the origin of the malady.

[This theory attributes the origin of the disease to "the long journeys during the great heat of summer across arid steppes, where no pasture nor wholesome water can be found."]

9. This seems to be really the sole cause of this terrible disease, and the waggons returning to their several houses spread it throughout the country. * * *

The most important features of these rules are—

Summary of system.

1st.—That slaughter is not recommended, nor adopted.

2nd.—That separation of sound cattle and isolation of sick are found to be the best measures.

3rd.—That medical treatment is adopted.

4th.—That inoculation is hinted at.

5th.—That much stress is laid on disinfection ; and 6th.—That the food and water of cattle are made subjects of care and attention.

G. Special measures.

Instruction of population.

I.—Instruction of population.—If the people of a country at large are informed of the nature of the disease and impressed with the reasons on which restrictions, which may be irksome, are founded, a most important aid is furnished in the adoption of sanitary measures. An ignorant resisting people will abort the best devised and most carefully applied means, and the less the aid which may be expected from the owners of cattle, the more elaborate and powerful must be the agency to apply sanitary measures; and the more stringent the penalties for this breach. The importance of disseminating information has been already recognized in Bengal.

Indemnification.

Circumstances in which made.

State assistance for purchase of cattle.

Loans.

II.—Indemnification.—In countries where cattle are slaughtered by order of the civil or other legal authorities, the State pays a fair sum of money to indemnify particular cattle owners for the loss of cattle or property destroyed. As this contingency is not likely to occur in India, I need not enter into particulars as to the mode of estimating the amount of loss incurred. State assistance to ryots in times of severe plague, to enable them to purchase new cattle, is a separate question, not entering into a scheme of sanitary interference. Loans for this purpose are obtained from zemindars and mahajuns at great rates of interest. A system of loaning on reasonable rates in such circumstances would be a boon to cultivators; but other considerations foreign to the scope of this paper enter into this question.

Disinfection, object.

III.—Disinfection.—This process endeavours to destroy artificially the contagium or contagious principle of disease. This is its primary object. A secondary purpose of disinfection is to destroy organic decomposing matters and products of decomposition, which are found by experience to favor the development, or increase the virulence of the contagium. It is an imitation of the natural process, by which, through ordinary agencies, certain deleterious organic matters are reduced to a harmless inorganic condition. Several of the measures already discussed are in reality processes of disinfection. Slaughter, burial, and burning, are examples.

Agencies—heat, chemical agents.

The two principal agencies of disinfection are heat and chemical agents, and heat in the form of fire or boiling water is probably the best disinfectant, and may be used under the following circumstances:—

Heat, valueless articles to be burnt.

(a.) All valueless articles or articles difficult of disinfection by other means should be burnt. Contaminated straw, litter, hay, mats, ropes, bamboos, &c., should unceremoniously be disposed of in this manner; and in this country infected stalls and stables made of matting and bamboo (kutcha) should be also burnt. They are of little value, and can easily be replaced while their disinfection otherwise is difficult.

Clothing boiled.

(b.)—Clothing which may be of some value, and has been worn by attendants on sick cattle or others coming in contact with them, may be disinfected by boiling in water. If of little value, it should be burnt.

Chemical Agents.

English observers.

Best Agents.

Chemical Agents.—The subject of disinfection by chemical agency was carefully and scientifically investigated by Dr. Angus Smith and Mr. Crookes for the English Cattle Plague Commission. The latter studied also, experimentally, its application to cattle plague. The report of Mr. Crookes is most interesting and important. After passing in review the various agents available for disinfection, he remarks, that "the choice is therefore limited to the oxidizing disinfectants—chlorine and ozone, and to the antiseptics—sulphurous and the taracids"—(carbolic and cresylic). The experiments and experience of Mr. Crookes led him to pronounce strongly in favour of the latter class of agents as the most efficient means of destroying the contagium. He details several experiments on farms, from which it appears clear that a free use of sulphurous and carbolic acid does exercise a most potent influence in destroying or rendering inert contagious material.

Sulphurous and carbolic acid.

Directions.

The directions issued by the Cattle Plague Commission founded on these observations are, in short, as follows:—

1.—Cleansing stables, sheds, markets, slaughter-houses, &c.

Wood-work.

Wash wood-work with boiling water, containing a wine-glassful of carbolic acid to a gallon.

Walls and roofs.

Lime-wash walls, &c. Use freshly burnt lime, and add one pint carbolic acid to each pailful of wash.

Floors.

Cleanse floors with hot water, and sprinkle with undiluted carbolic acid.

Fumigation.

Close the house and burn sulphur inside for two hours, men and cattle to be removed meanwhile. One lb. sufficient for ten or twelve stall sheds.

These measures to be used after every evacuation, or periodically.

2.—Cleansing wagons, trucks, &c.

Wagons, &c.

Scrape boards and burn scrapings; wash with boiling water and soda one lb. to a pailful, then with chloride of lime or carbolic acid, as in 1.

3.—Disposal of manure or litter.

Manure, litter, &c.

Burying or burning best, having previously watered with carbolic solution. It may be ploughed in, or covered with earth for agricultural use. Implements, &c., cleaned and washed with solution. Add one pint of carbolic acid to every 100 gallons of liquid manure.

4.—Disposal of carcases.

Carcases.

Bury six feet deep, covering with quick-lime and carbolic acid.

5.—Disposal of blood, offal, hides, &c.

Blood, offal, hides.

Bury blood and offal, having mixed with carbolic acid; wash hides with carbolic solution, or soak in solution of chloride of lime, after covering with salt for twelve hours.

6.—Precautions to be taken by butchers, &c.

Persons

Should not approach healthy beasts in infected clothes: should wash and dip boots in carbolic solution; sprinkle their clothes with the same.

Clothes and baskets may be steamed or placed in boiling water.

7.—Further disinfecting measures.

Washing cattle.

Wash cattle with mixture of one lb. soft soap, one wine-glassful carbolic acid, and one gallon of warm water.

Sprinkling floors.

Sprinkle floors, walls, &c., with undiluted carbolic acid.

Smell of carbolic acid.

The smell of carbolic acid should be sensible over farm-yards, stables, &c.

Cattle may lick acid.

Cattle may lick carbolic acid without danger.

Clothing, &c., fumigated.

Clothing, baskets, tools, utensils, &c., may be fumigated with sulphur.

Cleanliness.

The utmost cleanliness should be always preserved.

Destruction of valueless articles.

In this country destruction by fire will be the most appropriate and effectual disinfecting agency, as the infected articles will in most cases be of little value and easily replaced. Next to it will come sulphur fumigation : sulphur being obtainable in every bazaar. Carbolic acid, which is considered the best antiseptic, is expensive, and not easily obtained ; but tar may be used for many disinfecting purposes, as it is in Russia.

Prussia.

In Prussia, fumigation by chlorine is prescribed, but its evolution is more difficult and dangerous, and its action not so effectual. It belongs to the class of oxidising agents, which are found to attack the contagium of the disease less promptly and efficiently than the antiseptics.

France and Belgium.

In France and Belgium, carbolic acid are employed similarly as in England, and the stamping out of two outbreaks during the prevalence of cattle plague in England were thought to be materially assisted by the liberal use of carbolic acid.

Having pointed out the best disinfectants known, it is unnecessary to enumerate others recommended by other countries.

Inoculation and vaccination.

IV.—Inoculation and vaccination.—The aim of inoculation is, by artificially inducing an attack of disease, to render the subject of experiment not liable to another of the same malady. The well-known peculiarity of eruptive fevers rarely to attack a man or animal twice is turned to account, and the less fatal form of a disease communicated artificially in this manner is the main reason of the measure. English experience proved both vaccination and inoculation a complete failure. Vaccination, which was tried on a very large scale, proved utterly useless as a protective, and the mortality from inoculation was as great as from the disease naturally communicated. On the Continent, especially in Russia, experience has been more favorable. It has been found possible, either by selecting a mild form of disease to inoculate from, or by mitigating the severity of the virus by successive transmissions through animals, to induce a mild disease whose mortality is only 6 to 10 per cent. This result is not, however, uniform, and too mild a manifestation is found not to be protective : that is to say, animals which sickened only very slightly from inoculation, contracted the disease when exposed to natural infection.

Reasons.

English experience.

Russia.

Varying results.

Experiments required.

Before men entertaining the expediency of inoculation in this country, it is necessary to ascertain by experiment

1. Whether a mitigated form of gootee and puschima can be obtained?
2. Whether the one disease either naturally contracted or communicated by inoculation is protective against the other ?
3. Whether the induced mitigated form of disease is efficiently protective against either or both forms of disease (gootee and puschima) ?
4. Whether different localities, seasons, periods, or epizootics, modify the results?

The result of these being favorable, other questions arise.

Presuming that such a mitigated form of disease may be obtained (of which I am far from sanguine) with a mortality of say five per cent.,very serious questions follow :—

Universal compulsory inoculation?

1. Are all the cattle of Bengal to be compulsorily inoculated? Is a vast establishment to be spread over the province—five per cent. of all cattle to be voluntarily sacrificed—a serious waste of the time of the agricultural class, and probable interruption of their labours to be incurred in consequence of the sickening and temporary disablement of their cattle—and the habits and prejudices of a very large section of the community rudely interfered with—and all this for the sake of the few hundred or even thousand cattle that are yearly carried off by cattle plague? To this question there can only be one answer—an emphatic negative.

Indiscriminate inoculation.

2. Are the people to be permitted, if they wish it, to practise inoculation, when, where, or how they like? This would amount to nothing short of voluntarily spreading the disease abroad.

Inoculation with precautions.

3. Are the people to be permitted, under proper inspection and precautions, to protect their cattle? Unless the inspection is strict, the precautions sufficient and thoroughly carried out, the effect of such a system would be the same as the last.

Establishments for inoculation.

4. Are properly trained establishments to be placed in every district in which inoculation may be performed under proper rules and restrictions, the cattle being voluntarily brought by owners for the purpose? This system obtains in Russia. Unless the people were convinced of the expediency of the system, it is highly improbable that they would voluntarily adopt or fall into such a system, and the agency required for the purpose presents an insuperable obstacle as yet.

Inoculation in "infected areas."

5. When plague prevails in a certain area, are all the cattle of this area to be inoculated in order to get rapidly over the plague? This is the Austrian system, but unless an efficient cordon were maintained around the area, the measure would only tend to spread disease.

Conclusion.

Introduction of system not advisable.

It is very evident that the time has not come for the introduction of any system of inoculation into this country; and the slender prospects of much benefit being eventually obtained by its introduction would even contra-indicate the performance of a series of experiments to determine its possibility, which must be on a large scale and involve great expense.

Trade in hides.

Burial of products.

Prohibition of exportation from infected area.

Disinfection.

Cattlepoisoning.

V.—Trade in hides, &c.—If the hides, horns, and offal of animals dying of cattle plague are buried along with the carcase, there can be no risk of spreading the disease by their means. In order, however, to prevent any risk which might ensue from carelessness or culpable neglect, it would be advisable to prohibit all export of such products or dealing in them from, or in infected districts, unless they were thoroughly disinfected in salt, chloride of lime, or carbolic acid, and dried in the sun. The systematic poisoning of cattle for the purpose of obtaining their hides, which has recently been brought under notice, is another question of importance, demanding action of another sort, which I need not discuss. It is plain that such poisoning can hardly occur epizootically, but must be a more or less constant quantity in districts where such nefarious practices prevail.

Penalties.

VI. Penalties.—In all European countries penalties of considerable severity attach to neglect or infringement of the regulations framed for the purpose of checking the spread of cattle diseases. The penalty is always more severe when it can be clearly proved that the spread of disease and loss to the community have resulted from the neglect. The propriety of attaching a penalty to the neglect of regulations of this sort depends upon (a) the clearness of the premises and certainty of the facts on which the rules are founded; (b) on the character of the people; and (c) on the kind and amount of loss to the community which such neglect may entail.

Circumstances on which the propriety of imposing a penalty depends

Conclusion.

Summary of measures applicable to this country.

D. Conclusion.—Of the various sanitary measures passed under review in the foregoing, those which in the present circumstances seem most suitable to this country, are as follows:—

1. Gathering, systematizing, and publishing information.
2. Inspection when disease has been reported.
3. Duty of giving notice inculcated.
4. Skilled examination of disease, and narratives by competent persons of its nature and behaviour.
5. Proclamation of infected areas.
6. Isolation of sick and separation of healthy.
7. Stopping markets and cattle movement in infected areas.
8. Burial of carcasses after scoring hides.
9. Disinfection, including the destruction of dung, fodder, &c., anything by which disease may be spread.
10. Medical treatment, combined with sanitary precautions.

When information has accumulated and experience has been enlarged, the course of preventive or restrictive action will become more definite and clear. Meantime, enough of experience has been gained to indicate what owners of cattle must do and avoid; and if that is clearly set forth and civil authority brought to bear strongly in support of directions and restrictions, good must accrue in the prevention of disease and saving of stock.

The late Soonderbun Dacoity Case.

From Rivers Thompson, Esq., Officiating Commissioner of the Presidency Division, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Judicial Department,—(No. 234, dated Calcutta, the 12th August 1869.)

I have the honor to submit, for the information of the Lieutenant-Governor, the accompanying copy of a letter[*] from the Magistrate of the 24-Pergunnahs, referring to certain remarks which appeared lately in the Indian Daily News, regarding the prisoners arrested in the recent dacoity case in the Soonderbunds. I desired Mr. Smith to submit to me the necessary explanations of the charges publicly made in one of the Calcutta newspapers, and which openly accused the Jail and Magisterial authorities with culpable neglect and ill-treatment of the prisoners. If the Lieutenant-Governor should concur in the recommendation, I would support Mr. Smith's suggestion, that his refutation of the charges should be published.

[*] No. 239P., dated 4th August 1869, with enclosure.

From A. Smith, Esq., Magistrate of the 24-Pergunnahs, to the Commissioner of the Presidency Division,—(No. 239P., dated Alipore, the 4th August 1869.)

With reference to the annexed extract from to-day's issue of the Indian Daily News, I think it right to inform you that the statement which the Editor says he had heard, viz.—that the prisoners arrested on suspicion of being concerned in the recent dacoity in the Soonderbunds, and consisting of about forty men, women, and children, were at first lodged in the Thannah at Bussirhaut, and there underwent severe torture at the hands of the police to extort confession, and that several deaths have occurred among them in the Alipore Jail—in consequence, is utterly untrue.

2. There has been only one death among the prisoners, viz., that of Hurro Doss, an old man of 66 years of age. He arrived at Alipore on the 5th July; he was admitted into hospital on the 20th; and died of dysentery on the 26th. Three others of the gang are in hospital, but their ailments have no possible connection whatever with any bodily ill-treatment, and they deny having received any. Others are in indifferent health, being subject to the malarious fever of the Soonderbunds.

3. The prisoners generally were arrested under the personal superintendence of Mr. Shuttleworth, the District Superintendent of Police. They were taken by him to Bussirhaut, the Sub-division in the jurisdiction of which the offence occurred, and where, in the ordinary course of things, it would have been enquired into; and they were made over by him to the Deputy Magistrate of the Sub-division, and transferred direct from the boat to the lock-up.

4. The prisoners so arrested were twenty-three in number, and among them were two women, one of whom was allowed to take her two children with her at her own wish.

5. The lock-up adjoins the Deputy Magistrate's house, and the prisoners were visited from time to time by the Deputy Magistrate. The two female prisoners were kept in custody at the Police Station, as, owing to the large number of male prisoners, the female ward in the lock-up was required for them.

6. I have seen and examined the prisoners this morning in the Alipore Jail. There are no marks of any violence on them now. The Superintendent of the Jail, Dr. Fawcus, informs me that there were none on them when they came. The men have made no complaint of any violence having been used to them since their admission, and in answer to my questions on the subject, they distinctly denied that they had been subjected to any.

7. If it be thought worth while, this letter may be published.

Extract from "Indian Daily News" of the 4th August 1869.

"We hear that several deaths occurred in the Alipore Jail amongst the ryots who were arrested, in connection with the dacoities said to have been committed in the Soonderbunds. It is said that about forty men, women, and children were taken away from one grant by the Bengal Police, and lodged in the Jail at Bussirhaut, on suspicion of being concerned in the dacoity alleged to have been committed in that locality. These people were at first lodged in the Thannah at Bussirhaut, where, it is stated, they underwent severe torture at the hands of the police, with a view to extort confession. And it is alleged that, from the injuries then inflicted, several people have died. We hope this is not correct, but it may be a suitable subject for enquiry."

From the Hon'ble A Eden, Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Judicial Department to J. George, Esq.,—(No. 6089, dated Fort William, the 20th November 1869.)

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated 1st instant, and in reply to say that the Lieutenant-Governor is satisfied, from the report of the special enquiry made by the Magistrate of the 24-Pergunnahs, that whatever loss the Kankrahabad estate may have suffered from the absence of the manager and his subordinates owing to their arrest, the Government or its officers are in no way responsible for the loss. The allegations made in regard to the conduct of the police in the case are entirely unsubstantiated.

2. The Magistrate's report will be published in an early issue of the Calcutta Gazette.

No. 6090.

COPY forwarded to the Officiating Commissioner of the Presidency Division, with reference to his letter No. 305, dated 8th instant. The enclosures of the Magistrate's report returned, as requested.

From HORACE A. COCKERELL, ESQ., Officiating Commissioner of the Presidency Division, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Judicial Department,—(No. 305, dated Calcutta, the 8th November 1869.)

IN your demi-official note of the 23rd September I was informed that the Lieutenant-Governor considered further local enquiry necessary relative to the accusations made by Mr. George against the police of the 24-Pergunnahs, who were engaged in the enquiries connected with the dacoity committed by Sheppard and his gang in the Soonderbuns.

2. The Magistrate of the 24-Pergunnahs, Mr. Smith, was directed to make the enquiries in person. The points to which he was especially directed to give his attention were those indicated in your note, viz. :—

(a.) The state of the grant before the dacoity, and its present state.

(b.) Whether the loss was what it was stated to be.

(c.) If loss had been caused, whether the result was attributable to the necessary proceedings of the police and the natural dread of guilty men, and to the absence of the manager, whose arrest was unavoidable; or whether it was owing to harsh and unnecessary proceedings of the police.

3. I have now the honor to submit in original a very full report* from that officer, together with the papers marginally noted. The result of this enquiry is to show that the grant had, prior to the date of Mr. Tiery's regaining possession in October last, very much deteriorated; and that though a considerable sum of money had been remitted to the estate for improvements, a large portion of it had been expended by Sheppard irregularly in entertaining Sikh and other orderlies; that the dams and bunds which had been put in order were damaged by the cyclone of the 19th June and required prompt attention, which would probably have been given to them but for the arrest of the manager; that this arrest was unavoidable. Neither Mr. Lazarus nor Mr. George can, it will be observed, specify any distinct act of violence, and the former gentleman's own admissions to the Magistrate show that the charges of oppression on the part of the police, brought forward, were founded on the vague statements of the ryots, who came to him and complained generally of zulm. It is, I think, of much importance to note that Mr. Wittenbaker, who has been manager and resided on the grant since the 10th July, said he knew of no specific acts of violence.

* Magistrate of 24-Pargunnahs' No. 50J., dated 27th October 1869.

From Magistrate to Superintendent, Alipore Jail, No. 34J., dated 8th October 1869.

From Superintendent, Alipore Jail, to Magistrate, No. 688, dated 8th October 1869.

4. The absence of the manager and his subordinates from the grant, owing to their arrest, occurring as it did at a very critical time, has, without doubt, led to serious loss; but for this loss Government cannot be held responsible, nor can the proprietor be considered as having any fresh ground for claiming compensation from the State. The return of the enclosures of the Magistrate's letter, when no longer required, is requested.

From A. SMITH, ESQ., Magistrate of the 24-Pergunnahs, to the Commissioner of the Presidency Division,—(No. 50J., dated Alipore, the 27th October 1869.)

IN accordance with your wishes, I, on the 6th instant, proceeded to Soonderbun lot No. 104, Kankrahabad, for the purpose of enquiry regarding the injuries alleged to have been done to the grant by improper and unauthorized acts of the police during the investigation of the dacoity committed by Mr. Sheppard, the local manager of the grant, and his subordinates.

2. The lot comprises an area of 35,400 beegahs. It was originally granted to a Mr. Mackenzie, but was resumed for non-fulfilment of conditions. It then lay unnoticed for a period of ten years, till the 27th May 1852, when Sree Nath Bose purchased it for Rupees 7. Sree Nath Bose transferred his title to Mr. Atkins, who again conveyed it to Mr. Tiery, on behalf of whose widow and executrix, Mr. Lazarus was recently, and Mr. George, her present husband, is now trustee.

3. From the appearance of the lot, and the statements of the tenants, I gather that after his purchase Mr. Tiery devoted himself actively to the improvement of the property. Mr. Lazarus says that up to 1859 or 1860, Mr. Tiery had told him that he had cleared and bunded the estate, founded on it a flourishing hât, and that it was yielding a revenue of Rupees 15,000 a year. A boundary dispute then arose, in which about 9,000 beegahs were claimed as belonging to a neighbouring grant. Litigation, with its ordinary consequences, ensued; and when the official inspection of the grant took place in 1864, only 980 beegahs were found fit for cultivation in lieu of 8,850, beegahs which should have been cleared in accordance with the conditions of the settlement. Almost simultaneously with this inspection Mr. Tiery died, and his widow and executrix was dispossessed by the rival claimant. The lot was not resumed in consequence of the unfavorable result of the official inspection in 1864, but on the 7th December of that year the executrix was permitted to enter into a new engagement, whereby she bound herself to clear, before the 30th April 1872, 25,550 beegahs, or to purchase the lot in fee simple, subject, in the event of failure, to resumption. Under this agreement the land is now held. Mrs. Tiery was, I have said, dispossessed after her husband's death. Litigation continued, but it was not until October 1868 that it was brought to a close and she recovered possession. The property had in the meanwhile been very much neglected by the usurper, and the cultivated area had been reduced to about 500 beegahs. Mr. Sheppard was in October 1868 appointed to the management, and active measures were taken for the repairs of the embankments and the damming up of the khals. Mr. Lazarus says that up to June as much as Rupees 12,000 to 13,000 were spent on the grant. I learnt locally, however, that about half of this sum was wasted on an unnecessarily strong establishment of naibs, under-naibs, and Sikh orderlies. Nevertheless, the embankments and dams had been put in fair order round a track comprising approximately about 5,000 beegahs. There were from 60 to 70 tenants settled, that is, having their residences on the lot. It is said that the manager was endeavouring to induce others, variously stated at from 200 to 500, to come and cultivate. Had the dams and embankments continued in order, and had the ryots with whom negociations were in progress been forthcoming, a considerable part of the embanked area, which is covered with grass jungle, which might have been burnt, would probably have been cultivated; you are aware, however, that embankments and dams in the Soonderbuns, especially when newly constructed, require to be very carefully looked to during the season. When the present manager, Mr. Wittenbaker, took charge, about the 11th July, he found the whole lot, with the single exception of the homestead lands, under salt water; and all the dams, except 10, protecting an area of about 500 beegahs, which had, however, been inundated through breakages in the embankments, broken open. It was said locally that the dams originally gave way in the cyclone of the 9th June, and that the breaches widened through neglect. About the 15th June Mr. Sheppard obtained Rupees 1,360 from Mr. Lazarus for repairs—Mr. Lazarus says of one bund; but as the communications between Mr. Lazarus and Mr. Sheppard, on this point, appear to have been only verbal, and the former gentleman does not appear to have been intimately acquainted with the details of the management, I should suppose it was intended for the general repair of cyclone damages to the protective works. The condition of the lot, so far as cultivation for this year was concerned, was, on the breakage of the dams, necessarily very critical, and required all the care and attention the manager could possibly have given to it.

4. The dacoity had occurred on the 4th June, and as it was perpetrated by Mr. Sheppard, the manager of the grant, and his subordinates, the grant was necessarily visited by the police for the purpose of enquiry. By those whom I have examined, at the grant, not a single act of violence is alleged to have occurred there during the enquiry. It is utterly improbable that recourse should have been had by the police to such acts, for Mr. Sheppard and his Sikhs were then on the grant, and the local constabulary were under so much fear of them, that, even after searches had been made, and the stolen rice was found in the houses of the tenantry, they did not dare arrest them until after the arrival of the District Superintendent. Mr. George's allegation, that such violence was used, is professedly based on what appeared in the local papers and the statements of Mr. Lazarus. I infer from the extract from Lazarus' statement, copied in the margin, that the articles which appeared in the press were based on the information which he supplied. It appears, therefore, necessary to examine only whence Mr. Lazarus derived his information; and here I copy from his statements the parts referring thereto. "About the 10th July some 15 or 20 ryots waited upon me in a body; they complained of the oppression they were undergoing at the hands of the police. I cannot give any details of the acts complained of beyond what is stated in the letters. I cannot specify by name any ryot subjected to illegal violence. What the ryots said to me was that the native police were arresting one after another and illtreating all without respect to age or sex; not when the sahib was there, but when the sahib was not there. I cannot say if any one was arrested and let go again. The word zulm was used. They said they were made to point out what rice they had; to shew if they had any rice; that their houses were examined to see if they had any rice buried; that they were asked to point out any one they knew to have rice, and that they were beaten till they were made to say 'yes'. If no rice was found, they were beaten for telling lies and misleading the police. I cannot give the names of any of these 15 or 20 ryots."

"I had no intention either of bringing the matter to the notice of Government or in any way making the action of the police in the grant public until after the case should be decided in Court; but in casual conversation which I had with the Editor of the Englishman newspaper, in reference to another subject in which the name of Mr. Sheppard appeared, I related to him what had occurred, and he stated he would much like to see the correspondence, and that he did not see that it in any way interfered with the case then pending. Then I sent Mr. Clarke copies of the correspondence with the Magistrate and Mr. Shuttleworth, upon which the article of the 12th August appeared. As I had given the correspondence to Mr. Clarke, I thought it but fair that the other daily journal should be put in possession of the same information, and I gave the same correspondence to Mr. Wilson, Editor of the Daily News. Upon these records the articles were founded."

5. Bearing in mind that this was a deputation to enlist the sympathy of the trustee of the proprietors, and the degree of exaggeration by which, in such cases, native representations are ordinarily coloured, it appears to me to afford little room for supposing that any unlawful violence occurred. It will be noted that Mr. Lazarus was unable to specify any distinct act of violence. Mr. Wittenbaker, who has been manager of the grant, and has resided on it since the 10th July, also said he knew of no specific acts of violence on the part of the police while at the abad. As none of the ryots or zemindari agents could specify any, the reasonable inference is that none occurred.

6. The breaking of the dams and embankments, and the arrest of the manager and his subordinates, at a time when all their energies were needed to set the bunds in order, and to induce to cultivation the outside ryots, who were expected to come to the lot for the purpose, are alone the causes of the injury the grant has sustained.

7. The lot could not be cultivated in consequence of the salt water by which it was covered, and there was no one, the manager and his agents being arrested or having absconded, to assign lands to the tenants who were expected to come to cultivate, even if in the circumstances they had been so unwise as to come.

8. The result to the owners of the property has been serious; but no blame can be imputed to the police. The proprietors are deserving of the sympathy due to those whose misfortunes originate in the misconduct of those whom they have trusted, but they have no just grounds for claiming compensation from the State.

9. In addition to the general charge of injury to the grant by acts of violence during the investigation of the dacoity, the police are charged with surreptitiously taking away the accounts kept at the grant, or allowing the naib, who became informer, to remove them. In the conduct of the enquiry the police were very anxious to obtain these accounts; but the District Superintendent, while at the grant, was informed that the only accounts kept were kept in English by Mr. Sheppard and submitted in original to Mr. Lazarus. There can be no doubt that if the accounts could have been produced before the District Superintendent, to shew that the suspected rice had been purchased, they would have been produced; and if they on production would have proved the contrary, the manager and his native amlah had a direct object in keeping them out of sight. The naib, who became evidence for the Crown, was sent back to the grant, to point out the site where the boat was sunk and otherwise to aid in the enquiry. While there, he removed his private property from the premises where he had been lodging, and it is alleged that he at the same time removed the accounts. He denies that he did so remove them, and the inspector who accompanied him and examined the articles he removed supports his denial. He states that the accounts were never kept at his house, that he merely made memoranda dictated by him to Mr. Sheppard, who kept the accounts in English, the memoranda being kept afterwards with the English accounts on Mr. Sheppard's boat. The present naib, who was for some time naib under Mr. Sheppard, but who was discharged to make away for the late naib, then one of his subordinates, corroborated the late naib as to this usage. I have no doubt of its correctness, and I have also no doubt that the absence of the accounts is not due to any act of the police.

10. I forward for perusal and return the record of the enquiry. While there is not a single allegation of violence on the grant, you will perceive that one or two statements are made of what may be called rough handling, on the way from the grant to Bussirhaut and from Bussirhaut to Alipore, and at the time of arrest by the Calcutta Police in town. The complaints are all of a very petty character; they contradict the statements made to me at the Alipore Jail, when I visited it to enquire about the allegation published in the Daily News, that several of the accused had there died of torture to which the police had subjected them, and which former statements were made at a time when the parties making them had had no opportunity to prepare tales or communicate with others outside. Where, (as in the case of Ghumno Pyke, who says he was treated in the Alipore Hospital for injury done to his eye,) there is opportunity to confront the allegations with testimony above suspicion they are contradicted. But whatever may be said of the truth of the statements, it is obviously clear that, even if true, such acts as are charged, committed at a distance from the grant, could have had no possible influence on its prosperity.

Magistrate's Court, 24-Pergunnahs, 27th September 1869.

Mr. C. Lazarus stated that he wished his statement to be recorded on oath.

As the enquiry is not being held into any specific criminal charge, this could not be done.

Mr. Lazarus then stated :—To the best of my knowledge and belief, about the year 1850 or 1851 Mr. Tiery became the owner of lot 104, Kankrahabad. How he became possessor of the grant, I am unable to state; whether he became owner by purchase, or got the grant from Government, I cannot say. From that period until 1859 or 1860 Mr. Tiery cleared and bunded the grant, and it became, to the best of my belief, a very flourishing estate; yielding, as he informed me at that time a revenue of about Rupees 15,000 per annum; and he had also established a hât reported to be one of the most flourishing in the Soonderbunds About this time a suit was instituted in the Alipore Court by certain parties, Kistodhone Bose, Nitto Lall and Nundo Lall Bose and others, on a question of boundary, in which they claimed about 9,000 beegahs of this cleared land, as appertaining to their estate lot 100. This was tried before Mr. Latour, the Judge of the 24-Pergunnahs, who gave a decree in favor of Mr. Tiery, confirming him in possession of the land. The case was appealed by the opposite side, and Mr. Latour's judgment was reversed. Mr. Tiery appealed to the Privy Council, but while this appeal was being sent to England he died, in March 1864. Soon after his death there being no responsible person in charge of the estate (Mr. Tiery had personally superintended it), a man, by name Nundo Lall, who, I believe, was gantidar of lot 100, or a portion of it, took illegal possession of Kankrahabad. Mrs. Tiery was sole executrix. There were little funds left in the estate available at the time, and she hesitated about commencing proceedings. However, shortly after a suit was commenced in one of the Alipore Courts, and Nundo Lall was dispossessed in October 1868 or thereabout. During the occupation of the abad by Nundo Lall, he caused it to become much deteriorated; the bunds were neglected, the jungle ceased to be cut, and numbers of ryots left the grant On getting the decree in October 1868, Mr. Sheppard was despatched to take charge. Shortly after that Baboo Ashutoss Dhur, attorney of the High Court, came and asked me if I would allow him to become gantidar of the estates. I refused to do so. He stated, as his reason for asking, his impression that the estate had no funds to go on with. I stated that ample funds, for the purpose were available. About six weeks after this time, as near as I can now remember, Ashutoss Dhur purchased the right, title, and interest of Nundo Lall in lot 100 at a sale, I believe, in execution of a decree against Nundo Lall. He then applied for a review of judgment, and to be admitted a party to the suit under which we had got possession; but the applications were generally thrown out. After Mr. Sheppard took possession, I, on behalf of the estate, proceeded vigorously with the repairs of the bunds, which had been neglected during Nundo Lall's occupation, cutting jungle which had overgrown once cleared lands, and generally putting the previously cleared portion of the grant in thoroughly good order for re-occupation by the ryots. About (12,000) twelve thousand to (13,000) thirteen thousand Rupees were expended in restoring the grant and bringing ryots to it from neighbouring grants, as per accounts furnished by Mr. Sheppard. About the middle of June, Mr. Sheppard called and reported that a bund across one of the large khals had given way, and a sum of Rupees (1,360) thirteen hundred and sixty was given for repair of the damages caused by the cyclone. Mr. Sheppard left me on the 15th June. He then proceeded to the grant with the money, and between this period and his return to Calcutta the police visited the grant, and all work ceased. About the 10th July, some fifteen or twenty ryots waited upon me in a body. It may have been earlier than the 10th June;—not quite sure of the date. They complained of the oppression they were undergoing at the hands of the police. It then occurred to me to wait upon Mr. Smith, the Magistrate of the 24-Pergunnahs, to whom I detailed what they represented. Mr. Smith requested me to write to him the circumstances officially; I did so, and produce copy of the letter marked A. S. Mr. Smith referred me to Mr. Shuttleworth, the District Superintendent of Police, upon whom I personally waited with the letter. Mr. Shuttleworth received me very courteously and said he would depute Assistant Superintendent Burne to visit the grant and enquire into the case. He also suggested the propriety of sending down some one to quiet the ryots and settle them on the estate. Mr. Symmonds, my partner, it was arranged, should go together with the new manager; and it was suggested that Mr. Burne should accompany me or meet me at the grant. Mr. Burne arrived at the grant before Mr. Symmonds. On his return from the grant Mr. Burne called on me. I was out at the time, but waited on him at his residence in Chowringhee Road. He related to me what he had found at the grant, as detailed by me in letter to Mr. Smith of the 14th July, marked A. S. After despatching this letter I received an official letter from Shuttleworth, confirmatory in the mere details of what Mr. Burne had stated to me as the result of his enquiries. Upon this I replied to him. I ceased after some further correspondence with Mr. Shuttleworth, fearing it might interfere with the course of justice, as the dacoity case was then pending. I had no intention either of bringing the matter to the notice of Government, or in any way making the action of the police on the grant public, until after the case should be decided in Court, for the same reasons; but in a casual conversation which I had with the editor of the Englishman newspaper, in reference to another subject, in which the name of Mr. Sheppard appeared, I related to him what had occurred, and he stated he would much like to see the correspondence, and that he did not see that it in any way interfered with the case then pending. Then I sent Mr. Clarke copies of the correspondence with the Magistrate and Mr. Shuttleworth, upon which the article of the 12th August appeared. As I had given the correspondence to Mr. Clarke, I thought it but fair that the other daily journal should be put in possession of the same information, and I gave the same correspondence to Mr. Wilson, Editor of the Daily News. Upon these records the articles were founded. They had no other information from me. I had no wish that the correspondence should appear before the decision of the case; and had it not been for Mr. Clarke's wish, I should not have put it in.

Questioned by Magistrate—I cannot give any detail of the acts complained of beyond what is stated in the letters. I cannot specify by name any ryot subjected to illegal violence. What the ryots said to me was that the native police were arresting one after another, and ill-treating all, without respect to age or sex; not when the sahib was there, but when the sahib was not there. I cannot say if any one was arrested and let go again. The word zulm was used. They said they were made to point out what rice they had; to show if they had any rice; that their houses were examined to see if they had any rice buried; that they were asked to point out any one that they knew to have rice; and that they were beaten till they were made to say 'yes'. If no rice was found they were beaten for telling lies and misleading the police. I cannot give the names of any of those 15 or 20 ryots. Neither myself nor Mr. George have ever visited the grant. We have no list of the tenants, but one may be forthcoming. When the police visited the grant, a great many of the new ryots left. It was said that about 500 beegahs were under cultivation last year, but there is reason to suppose that this was under the mark; because the ryots kept out of sight as much as they could to avoid paying rent. Nundo Lall had also so oppressed the ryots by screwing them, that they ran away; several of the old ryots also came back. It was past sowing season when we recovered possession. The estate expected to realize about Rupees 2,000 this year, that is, if all the paddy had been sown; but now the abad is ruined for this year.

C. LAZARUS.

27th September 1869.

Mr. George says:—Of his own knowledge he has nothing to communicate, and what information he has, he has got from Mr. Lazarus, and has been communicated above by him. My complaint to the Government has been based on the articles in the Englishman and Daily News, and the letters of Mr. Lazarus to yourself and Mr. Shuttleworth.

Shah Mudun Chowdry, son of Basur Mahomed Chowdry, of Semuldul, Pergunnah Bahudur, in the 24-Pergunnahs, saith:—

I am naib of Kunkra; I have been naib since July, but I have been a servant of Mr. and Mrs. Tiery for seventeen years. I was formerly naib for two years, while Mr. Tiery was alive. There are now 64 ryots on the abad. I cannot say how many there were before the dacoity. When I was naib before, there were 300 ryots, and before that there were as many as 700. About five years ago Mr. Tiery died. I cannot say how much land was cultivated last year. There are about 400 beegahs in cultivation this year. The embankments were repaired and the khals were dammed last cold weather in Chuk Dhankhalee. There are eight chucks in the lot; the area of the lot is 35,400 beegahs. Chuk Dhankhalee mentioned above, comprises four of the eight chuks. The area of Chuk Dhankhalee is about 4,000 to 5,000 beegahs. The 400 beegahs of cultivation are mostly in Chuk Dhankhalee. There is some trifling amount of cultivation in the other lots. The embankments in Chuk Dhankhalee are all right, but the khals have burst their dams. There are in Chuk Dhankhalee, the Keoratollah khal, the Passkeoratollah khal, the Dhankhalee khal, the Narian Paramanth khal, the Pass Dhankhur khal, the Pousurtollah khal, the Madhub-Myetu khal; all these were burst before my arrival, and still remain open. Besides these, No. 1 Chota khal, No. 1, Burra khal 5 other khals without name, Toolsiram's khal, Mandoorjoorah khal, the khal below the cutcherry, and 3 more without name, small khals, in all 11 khals, have been dammed since I came. They were burst when I came. I believe that they had been recently dammed and burst, because the stakes were still in their places. If these dams were closed during May, June, and July, their being now open would not matter. I cannot say when the khals burst, but they were burst when I came, on the 11th July. I have heard from the ryots that if the khals had not broken, there were tenants to come to cultivate the whole embanked area. There were pottahs or kubooleuts, merely verbal agreements, with Mr. Sheppard. Mr. Sheppard drove me away from the lot. I had been the mem's (Mrs. Tiery's) servant. He said he was master of the lot—who was his mem? He made Umachurn naib, Umachurn had been my subordinate. I went to the mem who returned, and joined her at Calcutta. I cannot say how much money Mr. Sheppard spent on the embankments and dams. I cannot even estimate. The saheb used to reckon by feet, we reckoned by haths; for 80 haths long, 5 broad, I give, 2-8-6. According to the way the saheb paid, the same work would come to more than Rupees 4-8. The reason why it was more expensive I don't know. The saheb said that in reckoning by feet the bunds were stronger. Sheppard, too, kept Sikhs. In my time we kept chuprassies, who did work as coolies. They got Rupees 5 or 6. Sheppard's Sikhs got Rupees 16 20, 25; so I have heard. The dams require constant supervision. If a small breach occurs, and it is not immediately attended to, the whole dam gives way. I have heard that the cause of the breaking of the dams was that on the arrest of Sheppard and the naib, the naib's relatives, namely his nephew, son-in-law, and another—names, Koylash, Juddoo, and Preonath,—absconded. They were under the naib and generally looked after affairs. On their absconding there was no one to look after matters; hence things went wrong. Of the ryots who were on the lot, I have heard that nine or ten ran away and they were new ryots. I removed four steadings to build the cutcherry, and the ryots have burnt for fire-wood one or two more, and the others are standing. I have heard that the police came and made arrests. I have heard only from two ryots that they were beaten. The two men who have told me they were beaten are Ghunno Pyke and Budden ryot. I have not heard from any one else of beatings nor have I enquired. Ghunnoo and Budden were arrested, but have been acquitted. They did not tell me when, where, how, or by whom they were beaten, except that it was by the police. I have not heard that any body who was arrested by the police and released by them of their own authority was beaten. I know nothing of the accounts of Sheppard's time. Umachurn and Sheppard can speak regarding them. The ryots say that Umachurn came and removed the papers after the dacoity and after his arrest. They were at Adar Bhooya's house. Umachurn used to stay there. Umachurn came with three or four police officers; who they were I can't say. they were said to be constables.

Adar Bhooya, son of Goburdhun Bhooya, a resident of Kankrahabad, says.—Umachurn, when naib, stayed at my house. He used to keep his accounts at my house. He kept all his papers, &c., at my house. I cannot read, so don't know exactly what papers. They were the accounts of the lot. Umachurn was naib. Umachurn took them away when he came back from Bussirhaut. I was not at home at the time. My wife told me that the naib took away the papers and all the rest of his effects. He had got thalies, ghotees, batees, quilts, razais, &c. I saw the accounts at my house after the naib's arrest

Umachurn Banerjee, son of Petumber Banerjee, resident of Churghât, in Thannah Kulergah,—

I was naib of Kunkrahabad. There were no Bengalee accounts kept. Whatever accounts there were, were kept in English by Mr. Sheppard. I kept no regular accounts, but I had thokas of the coolies. My dufter was on Mr. Sheppard's boat. What became of the papers I don't know. I cannot say how much money was spent on the lot last season. I should say about Rupees 3,000 to 4,000 may have been disbursed on the embankments and khal dams. Chuk Dhankhalee was completely embanked and dammed. At the time of my arrest several khals had broken open. They had been broken by the cyclone of June, and had not been repaired. Mr. Sheppard went to Calcutta for money to repair and to attend to a case. The khals might all have been dammed in a month had vigorous efforts for the purpose been made. Even so, the whole enclosed area would not have been cultivated, because of the jungle grass by which it was covered. There were, when Mr. Sheppard, came about 35 ryots; after that, about 30 or 35 more came. There were no agreements with any other persons to come as ryots to the lot. I cannot say if there were any verbal agreements between Mr. Sheppard and ryots to come. For two or three months I had been occupied with the cases that had been brought against Mr. Sheppard. Koylash and Preonauth were there; Juddoo also was from time to time. They looked after affairs. The saheb did not permit me to keep accounts. The saheb said Bengalee accounts were no use. I was to tell him and he would keep his accounts in English. Accordingly, I did so. I kept thokas; they stayed in the saheb's boat.

Sheik Mudun Chowdry, re-called, saith:—I was naib to Mr. Sheppard for about a month and a half, but I could not agree with him, as stated above, and I left. The saheb would not let me have anything to do with accounts. Umachurn then kept accounts by the foot. The accounts were kept on Mr. Sheppard's boat. Mr. Sheppard kept the accounts in English. Umachurn gave them in Bengalee. There were no jummah wasil bakee papers or rent accounts. Rent had not then begun to be collected. The collections began after I left.

Umachurn continued:—I was brought here from Calcutta. When I came I took part of my effects from Adar Bhooya's house. There were no papers among the effects removed by me. I took the things with me to Calcutta. I was brought back to help to search for the boat that was scuttled. There were two dinghies also that were scuttled with the big boat.

Ghunnoo Pyke, son of Urgun Pyke, resident of Kankrahabad.—I was arrested in the dacoity case. I was arrested at my house. I was arrested by the darogah and a constable. The darogah asked me to shew my rice and asked where I had got it. I said Sheppard saheb had given it as khorakee. The darogah took it to the cutcherry. I stayed at my house; two days after the District Superintendent came and told to bring the ryots. The darogah called me and the other ryots to the Pyenarah khal. We stayed during the day. At night we were taken to Takee. The darogah asked the saheb what the asamees would get to eat. The saheb told to give them julpân. The darogah gave us some. We were then taken to Bussirhaut, to the Deputy Magistrate. The Deputy Magistrate asked if we had committed dacoity, we said no. The Deputy Magistrate ordered us to be taken to hajut. We were kept seven or fifteen days; we were then hand-cuffed and brought on to Gowreepore. We were kept there hand-cuffed. There were in all twenty-seven men. We told the subadar we were hungry and thirsty. The subadar sent for about half a pice of julpân to each, and we ate. We could not go from hunger. The subadar beat us with the musket and ruler. He struck me a blow (ghoossa) in the eye. I was treated in the jail hospital. The saheb said, as you have been hard struck, your eye will never get well. The doctor who said this was a mussulman. I was not beaten here; none of the ryots that were arrested were beaten here, nor until they got to Bussirhaut. It was only on the way between Bussirhaut and Calcutta that they were beaten. They were only beaten to make them walk faster. They were slapped and pushed. Bhurdoss got a slap; all were pushed and slapped. They were not beaten or slapped severely, only pushed about. All the twenty-seven had not to walk all the way from Bussirhaut to Alipore. For two or three, who were unable to walk, garries with bullocks were got. The garries were not got at Bussirhaut, but when required on the way. We left Bussirhaut about 8 A. M., and came to Gowreepore that day. We stayed there for the night, next morning we were brought on to Alipore, and reached at 11 A. M. We did not eat before leaving Bussirhaut. We breakfasted after getting on about four coss from Bussirhaut.

We got choorah to eat. After that we got nothing till we got to Gowreepore. We arrived at Alipore at 11-30. We were ordered to be taken to hajut about an hour of the day remaining. We only got choorah in the jail that day. Next day at 10 we got that, and we had that regularly afterwards. I was arrested in my house.

Budun Doss, son of Punchoo Doss, of Kunkrahabad.—I was arrested in the dacoity case. I was arrested at Kidderpore. Mr. Sheppard sent me with him to Kidderpore. I was arrested with the boats by the Watgunge police and sent to hajut. I was beaten on the boat by the constable. I cannot tell the constable's name. I was beaten with a baton. I was struck so that I tumbled down. There was no mark. We said we had brought a sahib's rice and they said it was stolen property. Besides this I was not beaten. Essur Doss, Gobind Doss, Ameer Sheik, Rajoo Sheik, were beaten before me. They were struck with the baton. They were pushed with it. Besides being pushed, they were not otherwise struck with it. Along with me four others were arrested, viz, Essur, Gobind, Ameer, and Rujoo; Essur, Gobind, and Ameer have been convicted.

Damoo Pyke, son of Koronohur Pyke, resident of Kankrahabad.—I was arrested in the dacoity case and sent up for trial and acquitted at the Sessions. I was arrested at my house by the darogah and the District Superintendent. I was not beaten when arrested. After arrest I was taken to the boat. After being taken to the boat I was beaten. When I was beaten it was in the big now. I was beaten by a constable. I cannot tell the constable's name. I could not recognise him if I saw him. Gungoo Burwa was with me in the boat. I cannot tell the others. They were ryots of this abad. Question—Though they were ryots of the same abad with yourself, and were arrested in the same case, you cannot tell who were with you in the boat? Answer—Yes. Ram Boona, Nullit Boonah, Poornu Shibaru, and two women were in the boat. The constable beat me "saying," why do you move about and talk. I was pushed sharply. There was no mark. Except this constable and another constable there were no police on the boat. I did not tell the District Superintendent nor the Deputy Magistrate of my having been struck. I was pushed once with the baton and got two ghoossas. I was not otherwise beaten when chellaned from Bussirhaut. I was handcuffed and pushed to walk fast. The constables carried arms. There were two bullock carts also for those who could not walk. Two carts came from Bussirhaut to Gowreepore and there was one from Gowreepore.

To manager.—We and other outside ryots would have to cultivate the whole of the land. I cannot say if any arrangements had been made with outside ryots.

Gunga Boona, son of Golam Boonah, of Kankrahabad.—I was arrested in the dacoity case at my house. The darogah came and found the rice. Then the saheb came and arrested me. I was not beaten when the rice was found. When the constable came to arrest me I said I would come to the saheb after I had eaten. The constable took me by the neck and brought me off. I was not otherwise beaten. When I came down to the river I wanted to make water in it. The constable gave me a push with his baton, saying I wanted to run away. Between Bussirhaut and Alipore, I was pushed with the butt of a musket for letting go the rope that was passed round the gang. I was violently struck; there was no mark. I know of no case of any ryot having been arrested by the police and let go of their own authority.

Goluck Doss, son of Purushram Doss, of Kankrahabad.—I was arrested in the dacoity case. The police came and asked us about the rice, and we showed it. The rice was taken to the cutcherry. There was no beating when we produced the rice. The saheb came the next day, and sent for us to the boat and took us off to Bussirhaut. We were not beaten then. The saheb's boat went ahead. The inspector (a fat man) and a constable were on the boat. The darogah said your saheb committed the dacoity, tell us the truth. I said the saheb gave us the khorakee, we know nothing more. The constable pushed me with the baton three or four times, saying as the darogah had said. At Takee and Bussirhaut I saw the saheb. I did not tell him of this. I did not also tell the Deputy Magistrate. The push was not such as to make any mark. I did not tell it to the Magistrate when he asked in the jail.

Ghunnoo Pyke, re-called.—Mr. Sheppard had arranged with about 125 ryots including the resident ryots to settle on the grant. There were also about 200 to 300 ryots to come and cultivate the land.

Gorachand Munnah, son of Doorga Churn Munnah, of Kankrah.—I was arrested in the dacoity case. The darogah came and we produced the rice. I was not beaten then. After that the saheb came and sent for all the ryots. I came with the others and we were put in a pansway. Up to this there was no marpeet. The saheb's boat went ahead. A fat darogah and three contables were in the boat I was in. The darogah said your saheb has committed the dacoity, tell us. The constable gave me a dig with the baton, saying "go," he gave three or four digs: there were no marks. I saw the saheb at Takee. I did not tell him. At Bussirhaut I saw the saheb; I did not tell him. I saw the Deputy Magistrate; I did not tell him. The Magistrate came and enquired in the Alipore Jail; I did not tell him. I was afraid I might be worse maltreated in the jail. I did not see any body ill-treated in the jail; but still I thought if I spoke I might be ill-used.

Inspector Mohendronauth Ghosal.—I know nothing of Mr. Sheppard's zemindaree papers or accounts, which are said to have been taken away by the late naib of Kankra from Adar Bhooya's house. When I first came to search the house, I asked Umachurn if he had any accounts; he said "no; the accounts were kept with Mr. Sheppard; I would never see the accounts." When the District Superintendent came, he asked Mr. Sheppard for the accounts. He said they were with Messrs. Lazarus and Co. I did not even see the papers, nor do I know what became of them. Umachurn was brought here in custody to point out where the rice was landed when the big boat was scuttled and also to point out some of the persons named in Umachurn's confession. I met Mr. Assistant Superintendent Burne there; the naib came there and went to Adar Bhooya's house. I was with him and there were also two constables. I did not see that he took any papers. He took some clothes, thalees, lotahs. I did not see that he took; he was not out of my sight. I examined what he brought at the boat. I accompanied him to the boat.

Mr. Whittenbaker.—I am now manager of Kunkrahabad. I came on the 10th or 11th July. I found that with the exception of the homestead lands, all the lands were under salt-water. All the khal dams, except, I think, two very small ones, were broken. Dhankhalee had been embanked and dammed. Dhankhalee comprises chuks 1, 3, 4, and 7. All the dams but one, in 3, 4, and 7 were broken. In Chuk 1 there are 10 dams all right. The area of it is about 500 beegahs, but it was still under salt water from breakages in the embankment. About 400 to 500 beegahs are now under cultivation. From what I have seen of the embankments and dams, I should say that the embankments had been thoroughly repaired, but one or two of the dams had been carelessly constructed. The rest of the dams had been efficiently done. I can't say why they broke. It is said they were breached in the cyclone and got worse afterwards. If the dams had been promptly closed, and sufficient ryots had been got, the whole of Dhankhalee might have been cultivated. The area of Dhankhalee is about 4,000 to 5,000 beegahs. There are now on the lot about 60 to 70 families. There is no written record to shew that Mr. Sheppard had arranged with any other ryots to come and settle. I have heard from the ryots that he had verbally agreed with about 500 to 600. The most reliable man on the estate says 300 to 400. I have heard of no specific acts of violence on the part of the police while at the abad.

From A. SMITH, ESQ., Magistrate of the 24-Pergunnahs, to the Superintendent, Alipore Jail,—(No. 34J., dated the 8th October 1869.)

I SHOULD like to see the hospital register showing the treatment of Ghunnoo Pyke, one of the prisoners in the dacoity in which Mr. Sheppard was concerned, for ailment of the eye in the Jail Hospital. He alleges that his ailment was the result of a blow given him by the police on his way from Bussirhaut to the Jail.

2. What time did the gang arrive at the Jail, and when did they get their first meal? It is alleged, on their part, that though they reached Alipore at 11-30 they were not taken to the Jail till about 5 P. M., and that even being so taken they were only allowed a little choora, and got no regular food till the following day. What does the Jailor say, and what do the jail records show on the point? I should like to have the reply to this letter during the day, to enable me to report on a complaint preferred to Government by the proprietors of the grant on which the prisoners were tenants before the office closes for the holidays.

From DR. J. FAWCUS, Superintendent, Alipore Jail, to the Magistrate of the 24-Pergunnahs,—(No. 688, dated Alipore, the 8th October 1869.)

IN reply to your letter No. 34J. of this day's date, I have the honor to inform you that prisoner Ghunnoo Pyke was never admitted into hospital during his incarceration in Jail: in fact, he was never under medical treatment.

2. With reference to paragraph 2 of your letter under reply, I beg to state from the Deputy Superintendent's report that the gang arrived at the Jail between 5 and 6 o'clock on the 5th July last, at a time when it is impracticable to supply prisoners with cooked food; they were consequently supplied with julpân; this is invariably done when prisoners are admitted into Jail at a late hour.

Report on the Cultivation of Cinchona at Darjeeling for the month of October 1869.

From C. B. CLARKE, ESQ., M. A., Officiating Superintendent, Botanic Garden, and in charge of Cinchona cultivation in Bengal, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 150, dated Rungbee, the 3rd November 1869.)

I beg leave to submit the report of the Government Cinchona plantations here for the month of October 1869.

THE month has been fine, and the growth of the plantations (of Cinchona Succirubra and C. Calisaya) very great for so late in the season. The coolies have been chiefly employed in cutting the weeds throughout the plantations. Continued efforts have been made to propagate

C. Calisaya. This species is particularly difficult to multiply by cuttings; the seed capsules which are now set may probably be ripe in March next.

Seed has been distributed as under :—

To Captain Stenhouse, Darjeeling ...	...	½ oz. of	C. Succirubra.
Dr. King, Botanic Garden, Saharunpore ...	..	½ „	Ditto.
and ...	...	½ „	C. Officinalis.
Colonel Strutt, Kangra Valley ...	...	½ „	C. Succirubra.
Mr. Peachey, Ditto ...	...	½ „	Ditto
Mr. Mackay, Punjab Cinchona Association...	...	½ „	Ditto
Mr. Munro, Darjeeling Cinchona Association	...	½ „	Ditto

Postscript dated Calcutta, the 6th November 1869.

This day has been received from Java, by the kindness of H. Von Gorlcons, in charge of the Dutch Government Cinchona cultivation, a packet containing about ⅛oz. of seed of "C. Calisaya of Weddell." It is hoped that this will prove the variety of C. Calisaya which it is so greatly wished to extend at Rungbee; but until plants from this seed are at least one year old it will be impossible to tell whether the Java botanists understand by "the true Calisaya of Weddell," the same variety of Calisaya which at Rungbee is supposed to be Weddell's plant.

SEPARATE REVENUE.

(STAMPS.)

No. 2932.

The 3*rd December* 1869.

Circular—To all Local Governments and Administrations.

The Governor General in Council desires to direct the attention of all Local Governments and Administrations to thep rovisions of the Court Fees Bill which is now under the consideration of the Legislature. This Bill will probably be enacted and come into operation from the 1st January next. Arrangements are therefore necessary for the supply of a sufficient quantity of the stamps prescribed in the schedule. The only new denomination of stamps contemplated are those which include fractional parts of a rupee. For these, adhesive stamps might be used to denote the fractional part.

There is no stock of adhesive stamps at present in hand specially designed for this purpose, but there is a very large stock of foreign bill and other (adhesive) stamps which might be utilized. When the Act is passed, orders will be issued legalizing the use of such stamps for Court fees, pending the provision of appropriate stamps. At the same time instructions will be given for bringing such stamps to the proper head of account. Each Local Government and Administration is requested at once to take the necessary steps for insuring a sufficient supply of stamps being in the hands of the vendors throughout the country.

With reference to Section 21 of the Bill, any additional rules which are required for the sale of these stamps should be drafted and submitted to the Government of India.

Ordered, that the above Circular be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

The following Order issued by the Government of India, in the Marine Department, is re-published for general information :—

No. 16.—Fort William, the 1*st December* 1869.—Notification.—In continuation of Marine Notification No. 14, dated 7th September 1869, the following Notification by the Colonial Secretary at Hong-Kong and the despatch therein referred to, are published for general information :—

GOVERNMENT NOTIFICATION.

No. 88.—Notice is hereby given, in reference to the annexed despatch of the 23rd April last, from the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for the Colonies, that, on and after the 1st of October next, no signals will be made or answered from Government stations on shore, or ships at sea, except by means of the Commercial Code of Signals.

COLONIAL SECRETARY'S OFFICE; HONG-KONG, The 27th July 1869.

By Command,
J. GARDINER AUSTIN,
Colonial Secretary.

CIRCULAR.

DOWNING STREET,
The 23rd April 1869.

SIR,—I have the honor to transmit to you extracts from two letters which have been addressed to this Department by the Board of Trade, with reference to the use of the Commercial Code of Signals throughout Her Majesty's possessions.

I have to request that the suggestions of the Board of Trade that no signals should be made or answered from Government stations on shore or ships at sea, except by means of the Commercial Code of Signals, may be adopted as soon as possible without risk of inconvenience, and that you will report to me how soon this can be done.

I have, &c.,
GRANVILLE.

To

THE OFFICER ADMINISTERING THE GOVERNMENT OF HONG-KONG.

Extract of a letter from MR. GRAY, to the Under-Secretary of State, Colonial Office, dated Board of Trade, the 28th November 1868.

I am to state to you, for the information of His Grace the Duke of Buckingham and Chandos, that the use of the "Commercial Code of Signals" has now become a matter of international importance. No other Code is now supplied by the Admiralty to Her Majesty's ships, and no other Code is recognized by the Governments of France and of several other Continental States for communicating with each other at the signal stations and with merchant vessels generally.

Extract of a letter from MR. GRAY, to the Under-Secretary of State, Colonial Office, dated Board of Trade, the 27th March 1869.

The Board of Trade have already, in their letter above referred to, pointed out the increasing importance of the Commercial Code of Signals, and they have received from the Admiralty a distinct intimation to the effect that Marryatt's Codes are no longer supplied to Her Majesty's ships.

They would therefore further submit, for the consideration of Earl Granville, whether the Officersa dministering the Governments of Her Majesty's several possessions abroad, might not properly be requested to give notice that after a certain date no signals will be made or answered from Government stations on shore or ships at sea, except by means of the Commercial Code of Signals.

I am to add that, to ensure the answering of signals and the reporting of vessels on their signalling their names to any signal station, it is essential that each station should, in addition to the Commercial Code Signal Book, be kept repeatedly supplied with the latest Code List of Ships.

Unless this is done, and shipmasters can feel certain that their distinguishing signals will be recognized when exhibited, the general use of the Commercial Code must necessarily be retarded, and the exertions that have been made by the Government of this country and the principal maritime States will be frustrated.

Completion of Famine relief operations in Jessore, arising out of the recent Cyclones.

From J. WESTLAND, ESQ., Officiating Collector of Jessore, to the Commissioner of the Presidency Division,—(No. 408, dated Jessore, the 25th October 1869.)

I HAVE the honor, in continuation of my No. 395, dated 4th October, to report completion of famine relief operations. I recalled Baboo Kisto Behary Mookerjee, the Deputy Collector appointed for this special duty at the end of last month, and have learnt from him the exact state of the country at present.

2. The programme laid down in my letter of 19th June has been accurately followed, and the results there anticipated have shewn themselves. The zemindars came forward with liberality. Baboo Hur Nath Roy and Baboo Kaliprosaud Chowdry advanced each of them Rupees 3,000 or 4,000 to their ryots. Kumar Suttyanund Ghosal advanced Rupees 1,700 to his ryots, and gave a small sum for gratuitous distribution to the indigent; and Baboo Mohima Chunder Roy advanced Rupees 500. It has been already reported that the Morrells were making large advances in all directions to their ryots, and that Mr. Clarke, of Rhynda, had distributed advances to his ryots there. The smaller zemindars and talookdars also came forward with money to aid their ryots.

3. Baboo Kisto Behary Mookerjee visited all parts of the country where the distress was gravely felt, and being in constant communication with the zemindars and their servants, his presence induced the landholders to deal generously with their ryots, possessing as they did the knowledge that their conduct was being watched.

4. These timely advances enabled the ryots to procure seed, and though rather late in the year a fair crop was sown. The weather has been propitious up to date, and the crops promise very well. As soon as they were fairly above ground and afforded expectations of a decent harvest, the intermediate talookdars and howladars also shewed a disposition to assist their cultivators.

5. Earlier than I anticipated the ryots betook themselves to the Soonderbuns, and in August and September many of them were enjoying a fair income by bringing wood to the markets, and by weaving mats from reeds. Thus it has come about that Baboo Kisto Behary Mookerjee has found himself in no instance obliged to offer aid to the able bodied agriculturists or their families. We were successful in inducing the zemindars to do all that was necessary to tide over the distress, and the aid distributed upon our part was distributed solely to the indigent and necessitous.

6. This was done chiefly in two tracts. The first was that which I described fully in my first letter as the region where the distress was chiefly felt.

7. The second was a region further north, on the north-east corner of Bagirhat Thannah, where the River Chitra brought the storm-wave over the little tract of land which separates the bheels Markunda and Goyalia. At the time I first wrote I did not know particularly about this tract, but early information was received as to the effect of the inundation there, and the serious loss of aman dhan; and the same steps were taken with regard to it as with regard to the vicinity of Morrellgunge.

8. The zemindar, however, Bisheshur Dutt, of Calcutta, has not shewn the same forwardness which characterized the other zemindars in the distressed portion.

9. Principally in these two regions, but also in the country lying between them, where in June I reported partial distress to be prevalent, the Deputy Collector has expended in gratuitous relief Rupees 1,798-8. The sums distributed have been in each case given by the Baboo himself after personal enquiry.

10. Of course a certain amount of indigence always remains, but I am confident that so far as the necessitous classes are concerned, they are now relieved from all that distress which the cyclones brought upon them. The Durga poojah supervened immediately our relief operations were stopped, and as the pooja is the time when, above all, the richer natives open their purses and fill the mouths of the poor, I make no doubt that matters have reached their normal conditions.

11. The Deputy Collector before he left reported that rice was pouring in at both places (Chitalmarry and Morrellgunge), and that the prices were ranging at ordinary rates. What he had to deal with mostly during that last fortnight of his stay was the complaints urged by the ryots, that the zemindars were demanding rent. As we may rest assured that no ryot will starve himself to pay his rent, we may conclude also from this circumstance that the distress has reached a phase where the interference of Government is unnecessary.

12. Both near Morrellgunge and on the banks of the Chitra, however, fever has broken out, as it has in many other parts of the district, and as it usually does at this season. I have already employed medical aid in some places and will do so more extensively when a demand I have forwarded to the Medical authorities meets with compliance.

13. I think we may congratulate ourselves on having met a rather severe calamity at such a small charge on the imperial revenues, and I beg that I may be instructed to convey the commendation of Government to those zemindars whom I have named, and through whose assistance and co-operation we have accomplished our object.

14. I enclose detailed statement of the expenditure of Rupees 1,798-8, which you will see includes no charges beyond purely charitable donations, and I request you will obtain the sanction of Government to this charge.

15. Baboo Kisto Behary Mookerjee received Rupees 3,000 from the Treasury, under date the 29th June, and his balance Rupees 1,201-8 was credited to the Sub-Treasury of Bagirhat, under date the 6th October 1869.

The mean Barometer, as likewise the Dry and Wet Bulb Thermometer means, are derived from the twenty-four hourly observations made during the day.

The Dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants.—The figures in column ten represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken at unity.—The receiver of the lower rain gauge is 1½ feet, and that of the Anemometer 70 feet 10 inches above the level of the ground.—The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's Anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.

Reverend W. Spencer,—6th December 1869.

The following Orders issued by the Government of India, in the Financial Department, are re-published for general information :—

Leave and Allowances.

Fort William, the 8th December 1869.

No. 3056.

From F. Lushington, Esq., Accountant-General, Madras, to the Secretary to the Government of India, Financial Department,—(No. 1289, dated the 1st November 1869.)

I have the honor to point out that the concluding portion of certificate A, attached to Resolution dated 11th October 1869, No. 3904, Financial, is defective, the last sum mentioned is the minimum absentee allowance of a Military Officer in civil employ and not of a Covenanted Civil Servant; and to suggest, in order that the certificate may meet the cases of both kinds of officers, the substitution of the words "or fall short of £300 per annum in the case of Covenanted Civil Servants, and £250 per annum in that of Military Officers" for "or fall short of £250 per annum."

From G. H. M. Batten, Esq., Under-Secretary to the Government of India, Financial Department, to the Accountant-General, Madras.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 1289 of the 1st ultimo, and in reply to state that in the note on the face of Form A appended to the Notification of this Department, No. 3904, dated the 11th October 1869, regarding last pay certificates, the figures showing the maximum and minimum of furlough allowance should be altered when necessary to make the certificate accord with the rules of the service to which the officer to whom the last pay certificate is given belongs.

Ordered, that the foregoing correspondence be published in the Gazette of India, and that copies thereof be forwarded to the other Departments of the Government of India; the Local Governments; the Comptroller-General of Accounts; the Director-General of the Post Office of India; the Mint Master, Calcutta; the Head Commissioner of Paper Currency, Calcutta; the other Accountants-General, and the Deputy Accountants-General in independent charge.

No. 3061.—The 9th December 1869.—Resolution.—The Governor General in Council is pleased to declare that the rule prescribed in the Resolution of the Financial Department, No. 2236, dated the 26th July 1869, to the effect that no officer will draw the pay of any appointment until he has actually taken charge thereof, was meant only to withdraw the exceptional rule referred to, which previously obtained regarding an officer returning from leave who had lost his appointment. It was not meant to deprive an officer of the substantive pay of a post to which he might be transferred while acting in some other appointment. In such cases it is of course unnecessary for the officer to join his new substantive appointment in order to obtain the pay thereof. In the case of an officer returning from furlough, having no appointment, if he be appointed substantively to one post and to act in another, he will commence drawing the substantive pay and acting allowances from the time he takes charge of his acting appointment.

Ordered, that the foregoing Resolution be published in the Gazette of India, and communicated to the other Departments of the Government of India; the several Local Governments and Administrations; the Comptroller-General of Accounts; the Director-General of the Post Office of India, and the several Accountants-General and Deputy Accountants-General in independent charge.

Pensions and Gratuities.

The 7th December 1869.

No. 3035.—Read the following :—

Extract from a Notification of the Government of India, in the Home Department, No. 794, dated the 25th January 1865, and published in the Gazette of India, of the 28th idem :—"The Governor General in Council is pleased to pass the following rule, which shall be held applicable to all Military and Naval Officers in civil employment, and to Uncovenanted Officers holding gazetted appointments, and receiving such appointments direct from Government. After the age of 55 years, no Military or Naval Officer, or Uncovenanted Servant, shall be appointed to a new office in civil employment, or shall be permitted to retain any such office which he has held for five years and upwards, except in special cases, which are to be referred for the decision of the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State. This rule will be applicable to every Military and Naval Officer, and to every Uncovenanted Servant appointed to any civil office after its promulgation, and to all other Military and Naval Officers and Uncovenanted Servants employed under the civil administration at the close of five years from the date of its promulgation."

Read also—

A letter from the Accountant-General, Punjab, No. 117, dated the 17th ultimo, enquiring with reference to the rule quoted above, "whether, in cases where salaries are personal and irrespective of the particular appointments held, the five years during which an officer 55 years old is permitted to retain his office, should not reckon from the date of his last promotion to the class to which he belongs."

Resolution.—Concurring in the opinion of the Accountant-General, Punjab, the Governor General in Council is pleased to decide that in the cases of classified officers of the Financial Department, and all officers similarly situated, promotion to a new class shall, for the purposes of the rule quoted above, be considered equivalent to appointment to a new office.

Ordered, that the foregoing Resolution be published in the Gazette of India, and communicated to the other Departments of the Government of India; the Comptroller-General of Accounts, and the Accountants-General in Bengal, Madras, Bombay, the North-Western Provinces, and the Punjab.

Ordered also, that the foregoing Resolution be communicated to every Military and gazetted Uncovenanted Officer appointed by the Government of India in this Department to the Account, Currency, Postal, Mint, or Assay Department, with the request that he will submit without delay to this Department an autograph statement of the date and year of his birth.

The Sanitary Treatment of Epizootics.

From H. A. COCKERELL, ESQ., Officiating Commissioner of the Presidency Division, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Judicial Department,—(No. 319, dated Calcutta, the 23rd November 1869.)

WITH reference to your letter No. 2462, dated 19th instant, I have the honor to forward at once Mr. Farrell's report* to the Magistrate of Jessore, which has only just reached me. I request that a copy, if printed, may be sent for record in this office, as to save time I send it in original.

2. It is not necessary that I should express any opinion on Mr. Farrell's remarks regarding the nature of the disease, as the question will be thoroughly investigated by the committee specially appointed to enquire into the subject; but as far as my recollection serves me, Dr. McLeod in his report does not class gootee or bosunto and puchima or puschima rôge (as I think Dr. McLeod terms it) as one and the same disease.

3. From Mr. Farrell's report it is clear that, with proper care and attention to food and shelter, much may be done, if not to avert, at any rate to diminish, to a very great extent, liability to the disease. Should Government determine hereafter to legislate on the subject, it will be very desirable to arm local officers with full authority to insist, in villages where the disease is prevailing, that dead cattle shall be buried with their skins, in such places as the Magistrate may from time to time direct, and to punish severely any breach of this rule.

* Dated 20th October 1869, and the Magistrate's letter accompanying.

From J. WESTLAND, ESQ., Officiating Magistrate of Jessore, to the Commissioner of the Presidency Division,—(No. 169G., dated Jessore, the 12th November 1869.)

I HAVE the honor to forward veterinary surgeon Farrell's final report upon his operations in this district.

2. I much regret that I am unable to offer any additional report or information, as I was absent from the district during a very great part of the time Mr. Farrell was engaged in it, and was, therefore, unable to keep up my information regarding the progress of the disease. The information which was continually being submitted by the police is scattered up and down so large a mass of reports that it would be mere waste of time now to collect it. Mr. Farrell's statistics, I believe, are reliable, he had ample means of collecting them, and nothing that I have heard leads me to imagine the actual loss of cattle to be greater than he reports. The reports usually given by ryots and zemindars are quite unreliable, for every isolated case of disease is with them a violent and extensive outbreak.

3. I would endorse what Mr. Farrell says in one part of his report—We have no reason to look upon these attacks of disease as something new and unheard of.' All information of this sort now pours into us from all quarters; from zemindars, from ryots, from the police, and from doctors, where previously it spread hardly beyond the circle where it was first developed; and I think that the apparent unhealthiness of the present and of a few past years, both in respect of cattle and in respect of human beings, is due at least as much to the extension of improvement of our sources of information as to any real increase in the prevalence of disease.

4. Mr. Farrell mentions that he suspects a good deal of poisoning went on; and I think the item of proof he brings forward is one of no small weight. He does not mention another matter regarding which he enquired, namely, that an extensive system of advances for hides was prevalent over the district. Some hide traders undertake to supply large quantities of hides to merchants, and spread their advances far and wide among the chumars who, in this district especially, are a most unscrupulous set of men. Mr. Barton, then officiating as magistrate, caused some enquiries to be made when the matter was mentioned in Mr. Farrell's reports, but the charges were all vague, and nothing definite could be traced.

5. I am well aware that, in times of epidemic, an ignorant populace is apt to attribute to the machinations of individuals what are really natural effects; but I am myself convinced that much of this poisoning system exists, and that the prevalence of a "rinderpest" affords a tempting opportunity to the chumars to exercise this nefarious practice. By every death the chumars are direct gainers, for it is the regular practice to throw out dead cattle to them. The chumars in fact have a sort of traditional right to it, and look upon their right just as a ryot looks upon his holding, calling it their jumma. Sometimes at any rate paying rent for it and very frequently bringing it into court in cases where a cow dies in a disputed place.

6. The utterly careless way in which most ryots keep their cattle, allowing them almost to shift for themselves, and leaving them, for long periods, entirely without supervision, ensures absolute impunity to any one who desires to accomplish their death; and it is plain that so long as cattle dying under suspicious circumstances are allowed to fall into the hands of the chumars, so long will they have a direct interest in poisoning them. The proposed rule which ordains the burial of the carcases of diseased cattle, on sanitary grounds, will be the best possible proventive of the crimes of the chumars.

7. I have to report separately regarding legislative proposals, and therefore say nothing here.

8. I have only to add that, during the past half-year, instructions about the treatment of cattle disease have been spread far and wide over the district, and if the legislature gives us power to enforce what the people should, in their own interest, do, we may expect that the "rinderpest", when it next enters the district, will leave it with inflicting but a small proportion of the loss which it has now caused.

No. 1. Jessore.—Agreeably to instructions received from the commissioner, presidency division, the necessary supply of medicines were obtained from the Government medical stores; and having engaged the services of five salootrees, I proceeded to that place, and reported myself to the magistrate on 18th May. I gained some information from the inhabitants of the place, and visited several villages in the neighbourhood, and discovered that, happily, the disease had nearly disappeared, and only a few cases remained. Twenty-seven were attended to and treated, of which 19 were fatal. It appears that the mortality has never been very great in this place and its environs, and that in this year of 1869 it has been in excess of former years. I perceived that the owners of cattle are much more careful of them in every respect than they are in most places visited by me, which may account for the disease taking a milder form than usual, and being less destructive; indeed, I believe that much of the loss which has arisen in many parts of the country could have been prevented by ordinary attention to the food, shelter, and cleanliness of the cattle.

No. 2. Chowgatcha.—I next visited this place, and found that the disease did not then prevail. In conversation with some of its people, and chiefly with Mr. Macleod, an indigo planter, and resident of 30 years, I learnt that the disease has been known for years past, and that it appears more or less every year. He remembers one year, some time back, when it appeared in an aggravated form; more recently, deaths were so few that they did not attract any particular attention. In 1869 the disease made its appearance in January, and continued, during February and March, in some villages on the right bank of the Cobaduck river; the loss was about 57 head of cattle. Here also unusual attention is given to the care of the animals.

No. 3. Ketechanpore.—The disease has also been known in this district for several years, but the people with whom I conversed, especially Mr. Newhouse, manager of a sugar factory, state that it generally has taken a mild form. During this year of 1869, however, it appeared with greater virulence, about the same time as at Chowgatcha, and along the right bank of the Cobaduck river; the manager lost nine fine cows from a herd of twelve, and many other owners of cattle suffered to a similar extent. Cattle are not numerous here, and there is not much attention paid to them. The chief occupation of the people is, however, attending to the toddy trees, and the manufacture of sugar therefrom. I can only account for the usual mild form of the disease from good water being procurable everywhere, and the land being higher and drier than common; indeed the water of the river is very clear and sweet.

No. 4. Kallygunge.—The disease was so slight in this place and around it that the casualties were very few, and I was given to understand that it does not appear every year, most probably on account of the high land and sweet water in and around the neighbourhood.

No. 5. Jenada.—When I visited this place, and the district in the vicinity, there was no disease amongst the cattle: on my way to it, however, I came across two convalescent cases in a small village. I was informed by several of the people, and by the deputy magistrate Mr. Wright, (to whom I am much indebted for a good deal of information and for many hints on the subject of cattle disease and its causes, &c.,) that it had been very prevalent during the months of January, February, and March, when three-fourths of the cattle were carried off. For many years past it has prevailed regularly every year, but generally in a mild form, resulting in few casualties. The existence of cattle poisoners was first discovered in this place with the help of the magistrate, as brought to notice in my report of 14th September.

No. 6. Hazerapore.—Found that the disease in this place and its vicinity was somewhat similar in character and appearance to the account given about it at Jenada. I conversed a good deal with many of the people, and with Messrs. Oates and Tweedie, indigo planters; the former gentleman informed me that there was much cattle poisoning in the district, and the latter, that the disease during the past cold weather had followed the course of cholera. On this subject I subsequently made many enquiries, and from what I could gather, it appears to have been the case in some villages, but I could not procure any records, or any more reliable information to substantiate the opinion of those who noticed the matter. In future I purpose to attend to this particular point.

No. 7. Pulampore.—There was no disease prevalent when I visited this place, but I was informed by many people that it existed to a great extent at the commencement of the year. In the course of conversation with a chumar named Boycanta, a broker in hides, he mentioned that he had sold upwards of 7,000 hides during last cold weather, principally taken from cattle which died from the disease. I am inclined to think that very many of the casualties reported have been caused by poison: but more of this hereafter.

No. 8. Magoorah.—The head-quarters of a sub-division was visited several times; there was little or no disease at the place; but I was informed by the magistrate, Mr. Waller, that it had been very bad in the district during February and March, when it abated for a time, and again broke out with great virulence in the beginning of May, especially at Sullageedpore, about six miles from Magoorah, and the villages on the banks of the river Nobogunga. I was also informed that the ravages of the disease are great every year, which may be accounted for, in some measure, by the low and swampy nature of the country, bad drinking water, and the great apathy of the cattle owners, who would not listen to any persuasion or argument on the subject of sanitary and other arrangements, and were inclined to kick against preventive or curative measures.

No. 9. Sullageedpore.—This place is referred to in the preceding paragraph. On my visit to it I found that the disease had been raging for some time in and around the villages, and that it had extended to several villages down on the right bank of the Nobogunga river, and others more inland, the deaths averaging 25 to 30 daily. The country is low and swampy, the drinking water is not good, and the cattle owners are most apathetic and superstitious. A case in point will illustrate this, and their great ignorance. Mr. Westland, the magistrate, on one occasion visited Sullageedpore some time before I arrived, and observed a sick animal among a herd of about 20 head of cattle, belonging to a prosperous ryot; the magistrate recommended separation, cleanliness of stall, and other preventive measures, which the owner faithfully and thankfully promised to carry out. It remained for me, however, to discover that the ryot did not pay the slightest attention to the good advice he received from Mr. Westland; that the sick animal had died, and had been buried in the door-way of the cattle shed, from a superstitious idea that the disease would never again cross the threshold.

When I arrived at the village the ryot had lost all his cattle but one, which was so ill that I recommended its destruction; the owner agreed, and the animal was destroyed. Some days afterwards I was informed, to my great astonishment, that criminal proceedings had been instituted against me by the same ryot for killing animals in the district for their hides. The man had been instigated to the act by the chumars of the place, who found their trade stopped to a great extent by the burial of animals without removing their skins. In Nos. 5 and 6 sections it is noticed that the destruction of cattle by poison had been discovered, but it was in Sullageedpore that the matter first came under my personal observation, from peculiar symptoms in several cases of disease which caused me to suspect that poison had been administered. To verify the suspicion, I had a small portion of the contents of the fourth stomach of two deceased cases given to a common pariah dog and to an ordinary-sized Bengalee goat: the dog died within six hours afterwards, the goat the next day, both expiring in great agony.

No. 10. Birendpore.—This village is on the left bank of the river Nobogunga, opposite Sullageedpore on the right bank. During my visit there was little disease prevailing among the cattle, but I learned that it had prevailed in the early part of the year, and reached to many other villages on the same bank, causing great mortality. The ryots here, for the first time in my hearing, openly expressed their opinion that there was foul play on the part of the chumars.

No. 11. Nowhatta.—Eight miles below Birendpore on the same bank of the river. Here the disease appeared in February 1869, extending inland to many villages, and had been raging with great virulence to the time of my visit in the end of May, the deceased cattle numbering thousands. During my visit to several neighbouring villages I found that ryots, who had formerly owned three or more hundred head of cattle, had very few left, some of them not five out of their large herds. The information I obtained from the natives was confirmed by Mr. R. Savi, an indigo planter and zemindar, who has been a great loser by the disease. Notwithstanding his great loss of cattle, I understand that the out-turn of indigo in his factories has far exceeded that of any factories in the district.

No. 12. Nerail—Head-quarters of a sub-division in charge of Mr. Deare, from whom I learnt that the disease had appeared in the beginning of the year, but was not followed by much loss of cattle; it was greatest in a few villages situated in the vicinity of a hât for the sale of hides. From this place I returned to Jessore to arrange for proceeding to the Soonderbunds.

No. 13. Jessore.—See No. 1.

No. 14. Koolnah.—In the Soonderbunds, head-quarters of sub-division, in charge of deputy magistrate Gourdoss Bysack, who informed me that there had been very little disease; none came under my observation. I missed at this time the pleasure of a conversation with Mr. H. Rainey from his absence in Calcutta.

No. 15. Bhagerhaut—Head-quarters of a sub-division, in charge of deputy magistrate Srish Chunder Biddyarutna, who informed me that there was little or no disease in the early part of the year; it appeared, however, in August and September. See section 18.

No. 16. Morrellgunge.—A large zemindaree belonging to Messrs. Morrell, from whom I learned that there was no disease at the period of my visit; that it had appeared slightly in the beginning of the year, with little mortality; and that every year there was more or less signs of it among the cattle, but not attended with much loss. The cause of this fortunate immunity from disease and loss is quite visible. The majority of the villages belong to the zemindars; they are kept clean, and the cattle are well cared for and well sheltered, fully exhibiting the humane and liberal spirit which influence the owners of the estate. Well would it be for the ryots, the country, and the Government, were zemindars generally to follow their example in the management of their estates, and in their dealings with the ryots and other people depending on them.

No. 17. Sulkeera.—No. 2 sub-division. This place was visited agreeably to instructions received from the commissioner of the presidency division. On the way to it, I called at Hosenabad and Tankee, where I inspected a few cases. On my arrival at Sulkeera I reported myself to the deputy magistrate Poorun Chunder Ghose. I found that the disease had much abated, and that a few cases only remained in some villages about 12 miles distant. The outbreak, as in most cases, had appeared in the beginning of the year. I did not wonder at its occurring in this place, looking at the low and swampy country, and the indifference and utter carelessness of the ryots, who scarcely ever attend to or house their cattle. For the greater portion of the year they are allowed to remain out in the fields, exposed to every description of weather, hot, cold, and wet, and without any food except the scanty herbage which they are able to pick up in their wanderings.

No. 18. Doomriah, Billaghatta, Bagirhaut.—The two first places are police thannahs, under the jurisdiction of the Koolnah sub-division magistrate. Having visited each of them and their neighbourhood, I found that, in the beginning of the year, a few cases were noticed without attracting any particular attention. The disease then appeared to die out, but unfortunately it broke out again, in the month of August, in a virulent form, when there was much loss of cattle in and around the places mentioned, and the villages in their vicinity, especially in Doomriah and the adjacent hamlets. About the time of the last outbreak, dealers, with unusually large herds of cattle for sale, came to the district; the animals were weakly and half-starved from travelling long distances, and readily took the disease; and as they were nearly all bought by the ryots, the loss was chiefly among the purchasers, particularly in the Bhagerhaut district. It was at this period I met Mr. Rainey, who appeared to take a great interest in the matter under report. I furnished him with some medicines and instructions for the treatment of cattle. I visited many of the cases above named repeatedly, and many others which require no particular remark. Their introduction would swell this report to an inconvenient size, without any commensurate advantage.

I now proceed to briefly remark on the nature of the disease, the symptoms, treatment, &c., with such observations as may occur to me.

Nature of the Disease.—I observed it to be of the same type throughout, and known to the inhabitants as "gootee," "boshonto," "puchima," "duckina," "googlanee," &c., names which appear to be given according to the direction taken by the disease, or the severity or otherwise of the symptoms. It has been for several years back known in the country, and in many districts it is of periodical occurrence; many years back it raged as an epizootic. It assumes an aggravated form near or on the borders of swamps and bheels, and in the vicinity of hâts where hides are sold. I am of opinion that it is similar in every respect to the "rinderpest" of Europe, and it is of the same type of disease as that which appeared in the 24-Pergunnahs last year, as reported in the early part of this year; and from communications received from the commissioners at Patna, Hazeerabaugh, Dacca, and Assam, describing the outbreak which has appeared among the cattle in their districts, I am convinced that gootee or rinderpest is the malady which has been reported to the authorities from various places to the Government of Bengal.

On this subject two letters appeared in the Englishman in May and September 1869, by Mr. Rainey, a zemindar; the first describing a disease that he supposed was prevailing in the Soonderbunds, the next remarking on my report of 30th June 1869. The characteristics of the distemper set forth by the writer escaped my observation entirely, although looked for after my perusal of the letter of May. Possibly the information was gained from heresay, and not from personal inspection. The second letter supposes the existence of two distinct maladies, which is, as far as I can judge, an erroneous impression. I believe them, after careful personal observation and study of the subject, to be one and the same disease. In this belief I am supported by Professor John Gamgee, Principal, Albert Veterinary College, London, in his work on the cattle plague, London, 1866. Again, the word "puschima" is incorrect, it should be "puchima," literally meaning coming from the west. It came from thence on its first appearance as an epizootic, which gave rise to the name. In these outbreaks the symptoms are more aggravated than in ordinary cases. When outbreaks come with great severity, death quickly ensues: not so in milder attacks. The natives call the first puchima, and the latter gootee, although they are not two distinct diseases. Were each particular symptom to be dilated on, as attacks occur in different districts, it would be easy to establish many new names according to the nature of each outbreak, &c., &c. In parts of the Soonderbunds the disease is known as "dukina," because the ryots remember that the first outbreak came from the south; in other parts it is known as "googlance," from the peculiar grunt of sick animals.

During April 1869, in some of the abads of Morrellgunge and Tooskhally, about 60 head of cattle died from another disease, which is more prevalent in those parts than "puchima" or "gootee." This distemper I did not witness, but it was described to me as a swelling of the off-hind leg, rapid mortification taking place, and causing death. According to my belief it is the "black leg" or "quarter evil" of Scotland, which I have often seen and treated in that country. The information in this matter I obtained from Mr. Largmore, an assistant of the Messrs. Morrell, who is well informed on the subject of cattle. "Black leg" is not so formidable as "gootee," being more amenable to treatment. It does not appear to be necessary to make any further remarks on the nature of the distemper under report.

Symptoms.—Are fully described in my report from Diamond Harbour, submitted early in 1869.

Causes.—The disease has been known for many years in Lower Bengal: in some parts it has appeared annually, in others at intervals of two or three years. That the outbreaks have become more frequent and virulent there can be little doubt; last year in the Diamond Harbour district, this year, 1869, in Jessore, the Soonderbunds, Assam, Patna (slightly), and in Chota Nagpore. I am strongly of opinion that the distemper is of spontaneous development, the virus finding a favorable habitation in the low ill-drained, retentive soil of the country. Once it springs up, the contagion is propagated in various ways.

It is argued by some people that the malady of "rinderpest," and the various names given to it in India, is of recent importation, which I very much doubt: that they are all one and the same as "rinderpest" I am convinced. I could find no trace, record, or memory of the distemper having been imported at any time. It has been known to exist in this country for upwards of fifty years. The first outbreak that was felt severely occurred in 1817, and it has come at intervals short or long ever since. There are many reasons for its increasing virulence, and for its attracting general attention. Of late years facilities of locomotion, and the great and increasing demands for hides, disseminated the disease. A marked decrease in the culture of cereals, to make room for cotton and gunny cultivation for foreign markets, affects the care and food of animals which are neglected by their owners in every way; over-work, scanty food, bad shelter, and utter indifference to breeding, rendering them unable to resist disease of any kind. In fact, I believe the Bengalee ryot of the present day to be the worst cattle-master in the world, from what I have observed in many parts of India, the United Kingdom, and parts of the European continent.

Again, carcasses were scarcely ever buried; they were skinned, and left to the vultures and dogs, thus spreading contagion. The malady always appears in the worst form in the vicinity of hats for the sale of hides, which are sent all over the country to infect the neighbourhood wherever they go. Stringent rules for preventing the removal of such hides, and for burying carcasses entire, and deep in the earth, would go a great way in stopping outbreaks. An order by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor setting forth this, and directing all district officers to enforce this, has been circulated in the districts of Bengal, and which, I am able to say, has had the most beneficial effect. Instances of gross neglect in the food, shelter, and cleanliness of animals might be noticed by the authorities under the Act for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Prevention.—Too much stress cannot be laid on the means to be used to prevent the spread of contagion by good sanitary arrangements, quarantine when absolutely necessary, the segregation of cattle, ordinary attention to their food and shelter, and the free use of disinfectants. Strict attention to the burial of infected carcasses, with the skins, deep in the earth, is also a desideratum. It will not only help to stop the spread of contagion, but it will prevent, to a great extent, foul play on the part of the chumars, who have done so much mischief heretofore.

I believe that the stamping out system will never succeed in Bengal, and that it is in reality not required. As the distemper is not imported, being evidently of spontaneous production, the ignorant and superstitious natives will never understand that it is necessary to destroy these animals; it is opposed to their creed, faith, and prejudices; and I am much inclined to think that the measure, if enforced, would be followed by unpleasant consequences, and that altogether it would do more harm than good. I have before stated, at page 2, that in the one instance in which I carried it out, even with the consent of the owner, a criminal suit was instituted against me in the magistrate's court.

The preferable course will be, as far as I can judge, to control and check the malady in the promptest manner, according to the means pointed out, and now very well known in various places, especially at the very commencement of the outbreak in any hamlet, town, or place. Mild persuasion and tact with the natives will always have more effect than forcible measures in matters mixed up with their religion.

Treatment.—I still assert my belief that there is no remedy that will prove successful as an antidote to the malady when virulent; and that eradication must take place by prevention, especially in those places where the climate, soil, and bad management of cattle produce the distemper. The chief remedy in prevention will be to bring outbreaks under control by effective sanitary and hygienic measures, to be enforced firmly and gently.

In first stages, I have always found that the administration of saline purgatives, followed by tonics and stimulants, were effective; sulphur fumigation is always efficacious. In letter No. 1503 of 11th August 1869, from the Government of Bengal, the trial of carbolic acid is directed. Last year I procured a small quantity from Messrs. Corfield and Company, and used it partially in the 24-Pergunnahs, but did not give it a full trial. So far, however, it appeared to be a good and useful medicine. When proceeding to Jessore, I obtained a large quantity from the Government medical store-keeper, and used it freely in Jessore and the Soonderbunds, and distributed small portions to Messrs. Morrell and Rainey for trial. The chief effect it has is to disinfect the alimentary canal and the excretions, thus rendering the virus of the disease innocuous to the animal by not poisoning its blood, and to neighbouring animals by disinfecting and deodorizing the secretions, which so much extends the contagion. It therefore acts like any other antiseptic, and is, no doubt, a beneficial medicine; but it will never prove a specific for the distemper. I have likewise used it with some effect combined with quinine, chiretta, and bhung. I have in hand a series of experiments with carbolic acid, which I hope to be able to notice at a future period They require time to carry out.

The treatment adopted by me, and widely circulated in the various districts, is herein abstracted from the printed circular issued in August and September 1869: " When an animal takes ill, separate it immediately from the others. Give, as a purgative, half seer common salt in one seer of rice water (conjee); or 8 ounces Epsom salts: calves, half the dose. If this does not act in six hours, repeat the dose. When the purgative has set, give the following every three hours:—

Carbolic acid (Calvert's No. 5)	10 drops.
Chiretta or bhung solution	1 ounce.

To make the chiretta and bhung solution put one seer of either in eight seers of water, boil for half an hour, and, when cold, strain for use.

Carbolic acid, with 10 grains of quinine, is also good.

In the absence of the above medicine, give—

Asafœtida	½ tolah.
Bhung or chiretta solution	1 ounce.

To be given every three hours.

Or

Asafœtida	½ tolah.
Black salt	1 "

To be given every three hours.

The sheds must be fumigated with sulphur three times a day, morning, noon, and evening; sulphur thrown in the fire will answer; about one-fourth chittack each time.

The animals must be made to inhale sulphur twice a day. This is done by throwing some sulphur on a pan of live coals, and holding it under the animal's nose for ten minutes at a time.

The disease being of a very weakening nature, the animal must be nourished throughout, and the best thing is boiled rice-water (conjee), or "suthoo," three or four times a day, or oftener if necessary. When dysentery sets in, give the following—

Kuth	...	...	...	...	½ tolah.
Opium	...	...	...	...	½ "

Twice a day in water or conjee.

As a tonic and stimulant in the latter stages, the common country liquor, in doses of a chittack or so, will be found useful. This is to be recommended in all cases.

The signs of recovery are warmth of the ears and roots of horns and extremities, and return of appetite. When this takes place, let the animal eat sparingly, and not gorge itself, and give green grass in small quantities, and bran mashes when procurable, or a little "muskulli" well boiled; in fact soft food of any kind that is easily digestible. The animal must not be put to work too soon after recovery."

It is possible that inoculation of cattle might succeed as a preventive measure, but its introduction would require time, and experiments to ascertain its usefulness or otherwise.

Observations on the subject of poisoning cattle are fully set forth in my report of 14th September 1869, submitted to the magistrate at Jessore, for the information of Government. I can only add that the eradication of this vile practice would be attended by the most happy results in respect of the cattle belonging to the ryots in many places throughout the country.

I give an abstract exhibiting the number of cattle attended to by myself and the salootrees, together with the number of deaths which occurred before my arrival. As the police do not appear to have kept any records or returns, the figures of the latter are given at half the numbers reported to me by the zemindars and ryots concerned. They exaggerate such losses so much that their numbers are not at all reliable.

The mean Barometer, as likewise the Dry and Wet Bulb Thermometer means, are derived from the twenty-four hourly observations made during the day.

The Dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants.—The figures in column ten represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken at unity.—The receiver of the lower rain gauge is 1½ feet, and that of the Anemometer 70 feet 10 inches above the level of the ground.—The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's Anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.

NOTE.

Barometric Pressure.—The pressures in column 2 of the above Table for all stations below 500 feet are reduced from those given in column 3 of the Table on the previous page by adding the weight of a column of air of the temperature given in column 17. For stations of above 500 feet elevation, the reduction is made by Dippe's Table as given in Guyot's "Tables."

Temperature.—The temperatures in column 3 are deduced from those in column 17, on the preceding page, by adding 1° Faht. for every 350 feet.

Wind Direction.—The mean wind direction and its comparative prevalence are calculated from the whole number of wind observations recorded during the month, an equal value (2) being assigned to each day's observations, so that the maximum (exclusive prevalence of one wind) would be 62. The mean direction is calculated in the usual way by the sines and cosines of the compass points.

The above being all comparable, afford the data for constructing a meteorological chart for the month, which shall shew the isobarometric and isothermal lines, and the wind directions, which may be represented by arrows of varying length proportioned to the prevalence of the wind. To these may be added the rainfall from the previous Tables.

Government of India.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

THE following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 10th December 1869, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon in a month:—

No. 21 OF 1869.

A Bill to provide rules relating to quarantine.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to empower expressly the Governor General of India in Council and the Local Governments to make rules relating to quarantine; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Power to make quarantine rules.

1. It shall be lawful for the Governor General of India in Council and (with the previous sanction of the said Governor General in Council) for the Local Governments respectively, from time to time, to make rules for putting any vessel into a state of quarantine;

for regulating the intercourse of vessels in a state of quarantine with the shore or with other vessels; and for regulating the intercourse between places where an infectious disease prevails, and other places.

Quarantine rules to be deemed rules under section 271 of Penal Code.

2. All such rules shall be published in the Gazette of India and (in the case of rules made by a Local Government) also in the local Gazette; and shall thereupon be deemed to be rules made and promulgated under section 271 of the Indian Penal Code.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Indian Penal Code, section 271, provides penalties for disobedience to quarantine rules made and promulgated executively by the Government of India or by any Local Government. But no such rules exist in British India, except, perhaps, under the Bombay Act VI of 1867, section 14: doubts have been raised as to whether there is any power to make them; and the object of this Bill is to confer expressly the power in question.

LEAVE AND ALLOWANCES.

No. 3103.

The 11*th December* 1869.

From G. H. M. BATTEN, ESQ., Under-Secretary to the Government of India, Financial Department, to the Accountant-General, Bengal.

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your official memorandum No. 5263T. of the 25th ultimo, and in reply to state that the proviso in the first of the rules published in the Notification of this Department, No. 534 of the 16th June 1868, that two-thirds of the difference between the salaries of the substantive and acting appointments of an acting officer shall be the minimum of his acting allowance, is still in force.

2. The only effect of the orders of this Department, No. 2269, dated the 30th October 1869, on the orders, No. 534, dated the 16th June 1868, is to cancel the following words in Rule I. of the rules for acting allowances therein prescribed—"30 per cent. on the first Rupees 2,000, and 20 per cent. on the remainder," and to substitute in their place the words "20 per cent." The rest of the rules will remain in force until further orders.

ORDERED, that the foregoing letter be published in the Gazette of India, and that copies thereof be forwarded to the other Departments of the Government of India; the several local Governments; the Comptroller-General of Accounts; the Director-General of the Post Office of India; the Mint Master, Calcutta; the Head Commissioner of Paper Currency; the Accountant-General, Madras, in reply to his letter No. 5234, dated the 18th ultimo; the other Accountants-General, and the Deputy Accountants-General in independent charge.

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 2737A., dated October 1869, enquiring, first, if an Uncovenanted Servant should draw acting allowance while on privilege leave; secondly, whether this indulgence may be allowed to all Uncovenanted Servants on salaries of Rupees 10 per mensem, or confined to gazetted officers; and, thirdly, if acting allowance should be granted for the same period to both an absentee on privilege leave and to his substitute.

2. The first and third questions I am desired to answer in the affirmative. With reference to the second question, I am directed to observe that only those Uncovenanted Servants whose salaries are not less than Rupees 100 per mensem are entitled to acting allowance during privilege leave, because only such Uncovenanted Servants obtain privilege or any other leave under rule; but that as the spirit of the leave rules is applicable to Uncovenanted Officers on salaries of less than Rupees 100 per mensem, the claims of such officers to acting allowance during absence on privilege leave should be decided upon in each case by the authority granting the leave, subject to any orders which may be issued by the local Government to prevent any abuse of the privilege.

ORDERED, that the foregoing letter be published in the Gazette of India, and that copies thereof be forwarded to the other Departments of the Government of India; the local Governments; the Comptroller-General of Accounts; the Director-General of the Post Office of India; the Mint Master, Calcutta; the Head Commissioner of Paper Currency; the other Accountants-General, and the Deputy Accountants-General in independent charge.

Circular Orders by the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

From F. B. Peacock, Esq., Registrar of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, to all Civil Judges and Judicial Commissioners,—(No. 12, dated Calcutta, the 3rd December 1869.)

(Civil Side.)

1. Notwithstanding the instructions contained in Circular Order No. 9 of the 26th February 1867, the Court often find it extremely difficult, and in some cases impossible, to ascertain what documents or exhibits have been actually admitted or relied on by the parties as evidence in the Lower Courts: and hence there is no security that documents and exhibits may not be used or offered in this Court which have never been admitted in evidence or inspected by the Courts below.

2. Whilst therefore the Court take this opportunity of calling the particular attention of all Subordinate Judicial Officers to the instructions contained in the Circular Order above alluded to, and especially to paragraphs 2 and 6 and 7 to 12 of it, they direct that in future, immediately after the conclusion of the trial, the Presiding Officer shall cause to be prepared two lists, one containing all the exhibits admitted as evidence in the case numbered with the same numbers as those by which they are respectively distinguished in the Judges' notes,—which should be in numerical order according to their reception,—the other containing those that have been rejected as inadmissible, lettered alphabetically in consecutive order, and having a column for remarks in which should be entered the shortest possible explanation of the reason of their rejection.

Rejected exhibits after being endorsed are returned to the party producing them (Section 134 C. P. C.), so that the Judge must prepare the list of rejected exhibits from his own notes.

3. The lists shall distinguish the exhibits put in or offered on the part of the plaintiff from those put in or offered on the part of the defendant, and shall be signed by the Presiding Officer and shall form part of the record.

By Order of the High Court,
(Sd.) F. B. Peacock,
Registrar.

From Charles Currie, Esq., c. s., Officiating Judicial Commissioner of Oudh, to the Registrar of the High Court, Calcutta,—(No. 1283, dated Lucknow, the 4th October 1869.)

I have the honor to request that all processes in Civil Suits forwarded for service on persons residing in the city or station of Lucknow may be addressed to the Civil Judge, and not to the Deputy Commissioner of Lucknow, as the latter has no Civil jurisdiction within the city or station.

I have, &c.,

Advertisement.

NOTICE is hereby given that on the 7th, 8th, 9th, and 10th of January 1870, a Mêla or Fair will be held at Kassalong, in the District of the Chittagong Hill Tracts, to which the general public, and especially the merchants, traders, and inhabitants of Tipperah, Noacolly, Akyab, and Chittagong, are invited. The Chukmas, Mughs, Tipperahs, Bunjoos, Mooroongs, and other tribes residing in the Hill Tracts, as also the independant Frontier Tribes, have also been invited to attend the fair, and to bring with them the produce and manufactures of their own and foreign countries.

2. Two lists are hereto appended, the first shewing the articles of commerce most likely to be in demand among the hill people, and which should be brought to the mêla by merchants of the plains, and the second shewing what articles are likely to be brought for sale by the hill tribes. There are doubtless other goods which, although not at present forming articles of trade, could be advantageously bought or sold at the mêla.

3. The chief approach to Kassalong is from the south-west by the River Kurnafoolee, which falls into the sea at the port of Chittagong, and is navigable throughout the year to boats of 400 maunds burden. There is also a road passing through the hills from Rangonia viâ Rangamuttea to Kassalong, which is open for foot passengers, elephants, bullocks, and ponies.

4. No taxes or bazar dues will be levied on any articles sold at the mêla, and sheds will be provided gratis for the convenience of shopkeepers.

5. The mêla will last for four days, and during its continuance prizes will be offered to the winners in boat and foot races, as well as for manly games and exercises.

Donation by Harballabh Narain Singh for educational purposes in Behar.

From J. W. DALRYMPLE, ESQ., Commissioner of the Bhaugulpore Division, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, General Department,—(No. 88Ct., dated Camp Sheikpoorah, the 1st December 1869.)

I HAVE the honor to report, for the information of the Lieutenant-Governor, that Harballabh Narain Singh, zemindar of Sonbarsa, in the Bhaugulpore district, whose public spirit is well known to the Lieutenant-Governor, has presented me on account of Government with 5 per cent. Promissory Notes for Rupees 5,000, and has asked me to take steps for having the interest of them applied in future in the following manner:

2. He is desirous in the first place that every year a scholarship at the Patna College of Rupees 10 a month, tenable for two years, should be granted to a boy, belonging by birth and parentage to the province of Behar, or the North-West Provinces, who has passed his University entrance examination at the Bhaugulpore Government School, and who may be selected for the distinction by the Director-General of Public Instruction. The first scholar to be a boy who has passed the entrance examination of the current year.

3. With this aid the boy selected will, he thinks, be able to complete his L. A. course at Patna.

4. The balance of the interest he wishes to have appropriated, as it accrues, in purchasing books for prizes to be awarded, at the discretion of the Local Committee of Public Instruction at Patna, to the boys of the Patna Collegiate Schools.

5. Harballabh Narain Singh, in common with many native gentlemen of Behar, feels that the present generation of the youth of the province are, in the race for distinctions in the Government Schools, somewhat at a disadvantage with their companions who are Bengalees, owing to the friends of the latter being educated men who are able to see that their children avail themselves to the utmost of the advantages at their disposal, and his object in founding these scholarships is sensibly to increase the number of Hindoostanees who will have had a University education, without which the difficulty of obtaining public appointments of the higher class is daily increasing.

6. I would beg that effect may be given to Harballabh Narain's wishes in this matter, and I am sure that the Lieutenant-Governor will authorize me to signify to him his high appreciation of the public spirit and liberality he has evinced in founding these scholarships.

From RIVERS THOMPSON, ESQ., Officiating Secretary to the Government of Bengal, in the General Department, to the Commissioner of the Bhaugulpore Division,—(No. 4059, dated Fort William, the 10th December 1869.)

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 88Ct., dated the 1st December, and in reply to inform you that the Director of Public Instruction has been instructed to place himself in communication with you, with a view to the necessary measures being taken for giving effect to the wishes of Harballabh Narain Singh, in regard to the disposal of the donation made by him for educational purposes in Behar.

Report on the cultivation of Cinchona at Darjeeling for the month of November 1869.

From C. B. Clarke, Esq., M.A., Officiating Superintendent, Botanic Garden, and in charge of Cinchona cultivation in Bengal, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, General Department,—(No. 155, dated Botanic Garden, Calcutta, the 4th December 1869.)

I beg leave to submit the report of the Government cinchona cultivation in Sikkim for the month of November 1869.

Report on the cultivation of cinchona at Darjeeling for the month of November 1869.

The weather during the month has been perfectly dry, and the growth of the plantations is ceasing as the cold season approaches. Cinchona Succirubra is a hardier plant, and will grow during more months in the year than will C. Calisaya.

The coolies have been principally employed during the month in the repair of the roads, and in the last hoeing for the season of the young plantations.

The seed reported last month as received from the cinchona cultivation of the Dutch Government in Java under the name of C. Calisaya Var. Weddelii has germinated very well, more than 2,000 seedlings having already appeared. At the request of the director of the Java cinchona cultivation, there has been sent to him one ounce of the seed of C. Succirubra, and half an ounce of that of C. Officinalis.

The mean Barometer, as likewise the Dry and Wet Bulb Thermometer means, are derived from the twenty-four hourly observations made during the day.

The Dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants.—The figures in column ten represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken at unity.—The receiver of the lower rain gauge is 1½ feet, and that of the Anemometer 70 feet 10 inches above the level of the ground.—The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's Anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1869.

Government of India.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 10th December 1869, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon in a month:—

No. 21 of 1869.

A Bill to provide rules relating to quarantine.

Preamble. Whereas it is expedient to empower expressly the Governor General of India in Council and the Local Governments to make rules relating to quarantine; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Power to make quarantine rules. 1. It shall be lawful for the Governor General of India in Council and (with the previous sanction of the said Governor General in Council) for the Local Governments respectively, from time to time, to make rules for putting any vessel into a state of quarantine;

for regulating the intercourse of vessels in a state of quarantine with the shore or with other vessels; and for regulating the intercourse between places where an infectious disease prevails, and other places.

Quarantine rules to be deemed rules under section 271 of Penal Code. 2. All such rules shall be published in the Gazette of India and (in the case of rules made by a Local Government) also in the local Gazette; and shall thereupon be deemed to be rules made and promulgated under section 271 of the Indian Penal Code.

Statement of Objects and Reasons.

The Indian Penal Code, section 271, provides penalties for disobedience to quarantine rules made and promulgated executively by the Government of India or by any Local Government. But no such rules exist in British India, except, perhaps, under the Bombay Act VI. of 1867, section 14: doubts have been raised as to whether there is any power to make them; and the object of this Bill is to confer expressly the power in question.

Secy. to the Council of the Govr.-Genl. for making Laws and Regulations.

NOTICE is hereby given that on the 7th, 8th, 9th, and 10th of January 1870, a Mêla or Fair will be held at Kassalong, in the District of the Chittagong Hill Tracts, to which the general public, and especially the merchants, traders, and inhabitants of Tipperah, Noacolly, Akyab, and Chittagong, are invited. The Chukmas, Mughs, Tipperahs, Bunjoos, Mooroongs, and other tribes residing in the Hill Tracts, as also the independant Frontier Tribes, have also been invited to attend the fair, and to bring with them the produce and manufactures of their own and foreign countries.

2. Two lists are hereto appended, the first shewing the articles of commerce most likely to be in demand among the hill people, and which should be brought to the mêla by merchants of the plains, and the second shewing what articles are likely to be brought for sale by the hill tribes. There are doubtless other goods which, although not at present forming articles of trade, could be advantageously bought or sold at the mêla.

3. The chief approach to Kassalong is from the south-west by the River Kurnafoolee, which falls into the sea at the port of Chittagong, and is navigable throughout the year to boats of 400 maunds burden. There is also a road passing through the hills from Rangonia viâ Rangamuttea to Kassalong, which is open for foot passengers, elephants, bullocks, and ponies.

4. No taxes or bazar dues will be levied on any articles sold at the mêla, and sheds will be provided gratis for the convenience of shopkeepers.

5. The mêla will last for four days, and during its continuance prizes will be offered to the winners in boat and foot races, as well as for manly games and exercises.

The mean Barometer, as likewise the Dry and Wet Bulb Thermometer means, are derived from the twenty-four hourly observations made during the day.

The Dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants.—The figures in column ten represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken as unity.—The receiver of the lower rain gauge is 1½ feet, and that of the Anemometer 70 feet 10 inches above the level of the ground.—The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's Anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.
